Finance Chiefs Gather in Bonn

TIMES NEWS SERVICES

As Western governments battled the latest international finance crisis, major foreign exchange markets closed throughout Western Europe and finance ministers gathered in Bonn today to plan ways of shoring up the faltering French currency.

Exchange markets also were closed in Stockholm, Oslo, Copenhagen, Madrid, Cape Town, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore.

With the money exchanges closed, the speculators switched to gold and sent its prices soaring.

Many financial experts in London considered the present emergency even more serious than the March gold crisis because three of the world's principal trading currencies—the French franc, the pound sterling and the U.S. dollar—were simultaneously under attack by speculators.

The crisis resulted from frantic selling of French francs to buy West German marks, at present the world's strongest currency. The widespread belief among speculators that the mark would be revalued upward also put pressure on the British pound, but so far the franc was the hardest-hit.

BONN (UPI) — West Germany appealed tonight at the emergency meeting of the world's richest trading nations for a common solution to the international monetary crisis.

As the finance ministers and central bank governors met, banking sources in Switzerland forecast complete chaos in the world markets and possibly a panic unless there is another Bretton Woods-type conference to revalue the world's major currencies.

In an attempt to check the flight to the mark, the West German government announced Tuesday that it would not revalue its currency, but would make tax changes to reduce the large foreign trade surplus responsible for the expectation of revaluation.

France Slashes Spending

And early today, the French National Assembly approved the government's proposal to reduce spending and slice 2,000,000,000 francs (about $440,000,000) off the 1969 budget deficit.

To deal with the currency crisis, West German Economics Minister Karl Schiller called an emergency meeting in Bonn today of the so-called Group of ten — the finance ministers of Canada, Belgium, Britain, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Italy, Japan, Sweden and the United States.

Obsegvers in Paris said that if negotiations led to a realignment of international currency parities, this would probably mean that the West German mark, the Swiss franc and the Dutch guilder would be increased in official value, while the franc could be devalued.

A franc devaluation would threaten the Italian lire and pose a serious threat to the pound sterling—already pushed to a post-devaluation low in the backlash of pressure on the franc and as a result of poor October figures in Britain's trade balance.

Set Off Chain Reaction

A franc devaluation could set off a chain reaction of downward currency adjustments throughout the world that could threaten to undermine the stability of the international payments and credit system.

Reliable sources in Bonn said all French financial markets will be closed for the rest of the week.

In London, it was announced that the foreign exchange market would be closed to day and in Brussels, a national bank spokesman said the Belgium foreign exchange markets will officially close until further notice.

Markets also were closed in West Germany today because of a national holiday.

U.S. Dollar in Plunge

The U.S. dollar plunged through its official floor in relation to the Swiss franc at Zurich, the only major West European market open. The price for $1 at the close ranged between 4.2948 and 4.2953 Swiss francs, compared to 4.2995 francs at the close Tuesday. It was the fourth time since June that the dollar, the only major Western currency trade at Zurich during the day, had closed below the point for government intervention.

Speculators switched to bullion markets and boosted quotations for gold, though they found few

70 Miners Trapped; No Hope for Rescue

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Explosions and flames ripped through a deep coal mine early today with "as many as 70 miners" trapped in the long shafts and 21 scrambling or pulled to safety.

Leslie Ryan, inspector at large for the West Virginia State mines department, said "there's not a chance in the world to get those men out."

The estimated 70 men still in the mine were believed to be pinned one to two miles deep in the smoke filled tunnels.

Rescue teams at one of the mine's entrances waited for gas tests to be made. Officials of the Mountaineer Company Mine said the methane factor rose to a dangerous 6 after the blast.

Sheriff Robert Tennant of Marion County said 21 men had escaped or had been pulled from the mine. But James McCartney of the Mountaineer Coal Co., said 70 men were missing.

The first blast, just before 6 a.m., blew machinery through one of the mine's portals, Tennant said, and closed it as an avenue of rescue. Teams gathered around the Farmington portal, one mile away, to concentrate rescue efforts.

McCartney said either gas or coal just set off the explosion and fire which still was sending towers of smoke from mine entrances early this afternoon.

All communication into the mine was lost, McCartney said.

Rescue teams, working in freezing temperatures and snow flurries, faced a dilemma. McCartney said air was being pumped into the shaft to keep the trapped men from suffocating but the air stream also fed the flames deep in the shafts.

"No one knows exactly where these men were at the time of the explosion," McCartney said. "There were six crews of six men each working in the general area of the explosion. The other men were on other assignments throughout the mine."

Rescuers found eight of the men in the Mohan air shaft and plucked them from the 600-foot level two-by-two, using a big scoop bucket on the end of a crane.

Tennant said the confusion about the number of missing men resulted from the destruction of the "lamp house" in the blasts. Miners check into work at the lamp house at the beginning of their shifts, but the explosion destroyed it and its records.

One of these reported safe was Matt Menas Jr., whose father was killed in the same mine in a blast that took 15 lives Nov. 13, 1954.

Quebec House Reform

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand today introduced a government bill abolishing Quebec's legislative council — upper house — and creating a one-house "national assembly of the province of Quebec."

McNAMARA LIFTED FROM MOB

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — World Bank President Robert S. McNamara was rescued by helicopter today after left-wing Indian students tried to break through police cordons to reach him.

About 1,000 Communist-led students tried to break through police lines at the airport when McNamara, former U.S. defence secretary, arrived here from New Delhi.

Two helicopters lifted McNamara and his party out of the airport as the students threw rocks and bricks at the police.

Polynesian Breezes Waft City

Victoria's sunny weather today comes from Hawaii.

At least from that direction, said weatherman Allan McQuarrie. And after a slightly damp interruption Thursday morning, there will likely be two more days of sunshine.

The cool wet weather the capital usually gets at this time of year comes from winds off the cold ocean to the northwest, he explained.

But a storm which has lingered off the coast for about a week has been pumping air in from the southwest.

The thermometer climbed to 52 in Victoria Tuesday, well short of the record high of 59 for that date seven years ago.

And while it was 54 by mid-morning, the weatherman said winds would keep it short of the record high of 57 for this date established in 1943.

The record high temperature for November locally was 66, set on Nov. 2, 1949.

Viet Cong Steps Up Rocket, Mortar Attack

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong gunners stepped up their rocket and mortar attacks Tuesday night, giving Da Nang its heaviest bombardment in three months and hitting two American infantry units, five district towns and one provincial capital.

Casualties and damage generally were light. But one of the mortar attacks on a night bivouac of U.S. infantrymen 24 miles north of Saigon, was followed by a ground attack by 150 guerrillas. They retreated after three hours of fighting.

Sixty-five rockets and mortar rounds hit U.S. and South Vietnamese military installations in Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city and the biggest military establishment north of Saigon.

Several shells slammed into a U.S. Navy hospital area, but initial reports said they caused no damage or casualties.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said among the district towns shelled was Camlo, 10 miles below the demilitarized zone, which was hit by 45 mortar rounds. No new incidents were reported inside the demilitarized zone.

The South Vietnamese spokesman said there now have been 74 rocket and mortar attacks on population centres since President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam Nov. 1. He said 33 civilians have been killed in the attacks.

South Vietnam repeated charges that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were violating an agreement to stop shelling provincial capitals and district towns in return for the bombing halt. Hanoi has denied making such an agreement, claiming the bombing halt was unconditional.

The U.S. command reported continuing ground activity south of Da Nang, where more than 600 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have been reported killed in the last three days.

U.S. Turns Down Arms Talks Now

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States Tuesday turned a cold shoulder on calls for immediate Moscow-Washington talks on limiting strategic missiles and a hot blast on the Soviet Union for the August invasion of Czechoslovakia.

It made it clear that the rejection was because of the invasion.

The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, in effect, told the U.S. to mind its own business.

Czechoslovakia came up in two speeches delivered by U.S. delegates to UN committees.

William C. Foster, U.S. disarmament negotiator, rejected the calls for negotiations on anti-ballistic missiles and intercontinental missiles in the political committee.

He said that the U.S. and the Soviets had agreed July 1 to talks limiting these weapons, then added "you are also aware that events intervened which forced a postponement of these talks."

TIMING LEFT OPEN

A U.S. spokesman said later that the U.S. would like to hold such talks when the right time comes. But he left open when such a time would arrive.

Canada has been among several non-nuclear countries that have called for such negotiations.

Foster also praised the nuclear non-proliferation treaty that seeks to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons to countries that do not now possess them. Eighty countries have signed the treaty but only three have ratified it. Forty ratifications are necessary before it becomes effective.

The U.S. Senate has held up ratificiation because of the Czechoslovak crisis. Canada has urged more countries to sign.

Senator John Sherman Cooper of the U.S. said in another debate that the invasion of Czechoslovakia violated international law. He was speaking before the legal committee which is discussing the definition of aggression.

The consideration is at the instigation of the Soviet Union and Cooper said there is no visible evidence that the planners of the invasion of Czechoslovakia would follow any new definition of aggression.

Russia's Y. A. Ostrovsky accused the U.S. of attempting to "heat up the atmosphere" to impede the progress of the committee. He said that the U.S. had always objected to defining aggression and that the U.S. was guilty of aggression on several continents and of subversion against the Soviet Union and other Communist states.

Canadian Delegation Headed by Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson flew to West Germany at short notice Tuesday night for an emergency meeting in Bonn connected with the European currency crisis.

The minister was accompanied by Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, deputy governor William Lawson and Alan Hockin, assistant deputy finance minister.

A finance department spokesman said the Canadians had arrived at Bonn in time for the emergency meeting today of the so-called Group of Ten — the finance ministers of Canada, Belgium, Britain, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Italy, Japan, Sweden and the United States.

EMPHASIZING the need to maintain health by reducing the tar and nicotine lung intake, Federal Health Minister John Munro, who released a tobacco report today, has cut his smoking from three to one pack a day.

Cigarettes Rated for Tar, Nicotine

By STAN McDOWELL
Time Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Health Minister John Munro, who has cut his own smoking down from three packs a day to one, today released a table showing tar and nicotine contents of Canadian and American brands of cigarettes.

"We know of no safe cigarette or safe way to smoke, and we strongly recommend that Canadians avoid cigarette smoking entirely," Mr. Munro said.

"Nevertheless, many people find it difficult to stop smoking and we feel it is important to help them to reduce the inhalation of cigarette smoke constituents into their lungs."

The table shows tar content varying from a high of 36 milligrams per cigarette, in an Export king size, plain tip, to a low of 8 milligrams in the Ransom king size with Strickman filter, and in the Viscount king size filter, or king size filter menthol.

Other cigarettes in the low-tar range, 8-12 milligrams per cigarette, Craven A regular filter (nine milligrams); Gitanes regular filter (12 milligrams; Matinee regular filter (10 milligrams); and Richmond king size, Strickman filter (nine milligrams).

A large number of brands are clustered on the table at the level of 22 or 23 milligrams of tar per cigarette.

Nicotine content generally is in proportion to tar content.

"Tar and nicotine measurements on a particular cigarette may also vary from one test period to another," Mr. Munro said, "depending on such things as tobacco blend and filter material but such variations are not generally large."

Mr. Munro had additional advice for smokers.

Apart from stopping smoking if possible, and if that is not possible choosing a cigarette with low tar and nicotine content, he suggested lengthening the time between cigarettes and between puffs, not inhaling, removing the cigarette from the mouth between puffs and throwing away a long butt.

The table of tar and nicotine content was based on a study by Dr. W. F. Forbes, professor of chemistry and statistics, University of Waterloo.

In Montreal, senior executives of Imperial Tobacco Co. of Canada Ltd. and Benson and Hedges Canada Ltd. declined to comment immediately.

'Caucus Secrecy Broken by MLA'

NDP Leader Robert Strachan today sharply criticized Atlin MLA Frank Calder for "disloyalty to the party" by breaking caucus secrecy.

He lashed Mr. Calder's statement Tuesday in Vancouver that he, former MLA Randolph Harding and Dr. Ray Parkinson led a move to unseat Mr. Strachan in 1967 through a caucus putsch.

Mr. Calder said that he proposed a caucus motion before the 1967 convention — at which MLA Tom Berger challenged Mr. Strachan — that the leadership question be opened.

"I regret that any member of caucus would continue what was started in 1967 during the leadership fight in making public what happened within a closed caucus meeting, or what allegedly happened there," Mr. Strachan told reporters today.

"This reflects a disloyalty to the party and can only sow disunity within the party.

"There never has been a vote within the caucus on my leadership as he purports to have instigated and if he will check the caucus minutes of the time he will realize that.

"The motion was that I remain as leader."

holders willing to sell. Gold closed in Zurich at $40.25 to $40.50 an ounce. The mid-session high had been $40.875.

Gold rose 52½ cents in London to $40.75, the highest level there since July 8, but slacked off 20 cents in the afternoon to $40.55. The price set by the U.S. government for official dealings, as distinguished from private trade, is $35 an ounce.

Buying pressure sent prices up on the London Stock Exchange. Investors picked up securities as a hedge against a possible cut in the value of the French franc.

Foreign exchange markets in New York were open today but there were no dealings. "We are not buying anything," said one major bank.

In Melbourne it was announced that Australian banks will cease trading in foreign exchange Thursday.

Economic observers believe the suspension of exchange dealings will give world monetary authorities a breathing space in which to discuss the recent upsets and provide a much-needed respite for the ailing franc.

Although the French National Assembly agreed to sharply trim its budget, Premier Maurice Couve de Murville gave no indication of where the cuts would come.

But qualified economic sources said defence, foreign aid and public service industries would be the first to be hit. Public transport and domestic fuel are likely main targets of austerity measures.

Monday's announcement by Couve de Murville that central bankers had agreed on unlimited support for the franc and that the government planned to cut its budget did nothing to boost confidence on the money market on Tuesday. The franc remained tightly hemmed at its absolute dollar floor level and speculators continued to move out of the French currency.

Family Desperate For Home

A mother with three young sons whose downstairs apartment, at 82 San Jose, was gutted by fire last Monday is in desperate need of a home.

Brigadier Cecil Bonar of the Salvation Army said today a home must be found for Mrs. Eva Hearn and her children, aged 9, 10 and 11.

"I'm taking a special interest in them," he said, "because their situation is so desperate."

"It's really sad that they have to go through so much to get a little assistance," he added.

Although a house is the family's most immediate need, Brigadier Bonar said clothing and furniture are also required. He asked that any such donations be taken to the Salvation Army's Thrift Store.

MAN HELD

Explosion, Fire Aboard Airliner

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — An explosion and fire endangered a Continental Airlines 707 jetliner as it approached Denver Tuesday carrying seven crew members and 63 passengers, including Senator Clifford Hansen (Rep. Wyo.).

The fire was extinguished and, when the plane landed safely on a foam-covered runway, FBI agents arrested one passenger, Lawrence B. Havelock, 47, of Lake George, Colo.

Havelock was arraigned on charges of violating the federal aircraft destruction statute and was held in lieu of $10,000 bail. He sobbed during the hearing, and said he was tired and "a little upset."

Mrs. Havelock said her husband had undergone follow-up surgery about three weeks ago in connection with earlier removal of a tumor from beneath his skull.

The FBI said smoke started pouring into the passenger cabin and a concussion was felt just 12 minutes before the plane was to have touched down.

Helga Wood, 31, a hostess, said a lavatory door was blown off with a rush of flames and smoke.

Plastic fixtures in the lavatory were charred and melted.

The heat activated sensors which dropped oxygen masks to the passengers. The outer shell of the aircraft was not penetrated.

Third Officer Honorary Aide

A third Canadian Forces officer has been appointed an honorary aide-de-camp to the Governor-General of Canada.

Colonel K. E. Lewis, Commandant of Royal Roads Military College in Victoria joins Commander Douglas R. Learoyd and Col. Eric L. Kenny who were named last week.

Police Shot, Panthers Nabbed

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Mayor Joseph L. Alioto called for an investigation of the Black Panthers organization following a gun battle in which three policemen were wounded, two critically. Eight Negroes were arrested.

The shooting Tuesday erupted within 100 yards of a police station after two cruising patrolmen stopped a panel truck minutes after a service station holdup.

Police said Sgt. Robert Flynn, 51, was shot in the groin while questioning the driver of the van, which had "Black Panther —Black Community News Service" painted on the side.

"He had the driver with his hands on the side of the truck when someone inside the front seat shot him," said Jon Paley, a fireman at a station directly across the street.

Lieut. Dermott Creddon, 49, was shot in the chest as he stepped out of the patrol car, revolver in hand, police said.

Alioto called Tuesday night for a grand jury investigation "into any organization which advocates shooting of policemen and to which any of the defendants belong."

Creedon and Flynn remained in critical condition today.

Three officers were in a car which answered an emergency call from Creedon.

ROADBLOCKS 'ANYTIME'

City police plan to set up a number of roadblocks between now and Christmas to check on faulty cars and impaired drivers.

In the past the roadside checks have usually been held on Friday nights but a spokesman in the traffic department said they could be held at any time during the next month.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

Mainly sunny skies are now forecast for the inner south coast today as a ridge of high pressure builds rapidly over Vancouver Island. However, the next Pacific disturbance will bring rain and gales to the outer coast late tonight and to the lower mainland before dawn Thursday.

Seat of Learning

THE PROFESSIONAL OCCUPATIONS, academic honors and personal interests which mark the career of Dr. Bruce Partridge promise a great deal for his incumbency of the presidency of the University of Victoria. Coming from four years of senior service at Johns Hopkins University in Baltimore, with high recommendations, following 16 years of administrative duties in other educational institutions, he has a wealth of experience in the organization and financing of universities.

Such qualifications will be of particular value to the University of Victoria at this time, for the Gordon Head campus is reaching a crucial point in its rapid rise. There appears to be no slackening of the annual increase in students—on the contrary—and the prospect of serious overcrowding looms, unless a greatly augmented supply of capital and operating funds is forthcoming.

Added to this basic problem, common to almost every Canadian university, is another of equally wide concern. That is the new era of undergraduate involvement, which calls for a greater student voice in all affairs of the university and a reorientation of studies to meet new student needs. Some of the student demands are valid, some are exorbitant from the viewpoint of the continuing purposes and needs of a university. But all should be given consideration and reasoned answers, and the great majority of students may be expected to respond with understanding.

Any president, taking charge of the University of Victoria in its present stage of development, must inevitably exert a very important influence on the whole trend of its evolution. These are foundation years, and what is built into the academic structure at this time will do much to set its character for many years to come.

The establishment of new schools in nursing, social welfare, perhaps law and other professional areas; the development of the college system of partition of the student body within the larger university sphere, the trend of graduate studies, the possibility of affiliation with still other projects such as oceanographic institutes, business and political administration—all these factors will determine the character of the university which Victoria is to have in the future. A major decision as to the maximum size of the institution must also be made before long, as well as a broad choice of emphasis on technical or academic pursuits.

Dr. Partridge—although acting in conjunction with the board of governors, the senate, the faculty and the students—to say nothing of alumni, government and public influences—will therefore play a vital role in setting the pace and the pattern of the local university. He comes to his new assignment with an excellent record. The whole community should extend a friendly welcome when he takes over his official duties next July.

The Carter Report Again

LIKE MANY ANOTHER ROYAL commission report before it, the Carter Report on taxation was assumed to have been relegated to gather dust on a shelf in Ottawa. Few politicians have shown much public enthusiasm for the wide-ranging, reform-minded findings of the commission since they were published almost two years ago. But now, almost suddenly, the Carter Report is back in the news with mounting evidence that some of its recommendations will be implemented by the government.

The direction was pointed by Finance Minister Benson's first budget last month which appears to have been based partly on the Carter philosophy. And it is forecast that further proposals in the report will be adopted in a tax reform bill next year. Dominion Securities Corporation of Toronto has been comparing the October budget with the Carter Report and concludes that it "seems to imply" that the government will not slavishly follow the commission proposals but that it "may well introduce the major parts of those proposals."

The most controversial recommendation of the Carter Report was for a capital gains tax at full income tax rates. Dominion Securities predicts that Ottawa has decided to implement a tax on capital gains, but at possibly lower rates so as not to discourage investment. Another Carter proposal is to reduce the 80 per cent income tax maximum to 50 per cent, a possible government move which was presaged by the $120 ceiling on last month's income tax increase. Changes in the estate and gift taxes in the new budget also moved in the direction of the Report.

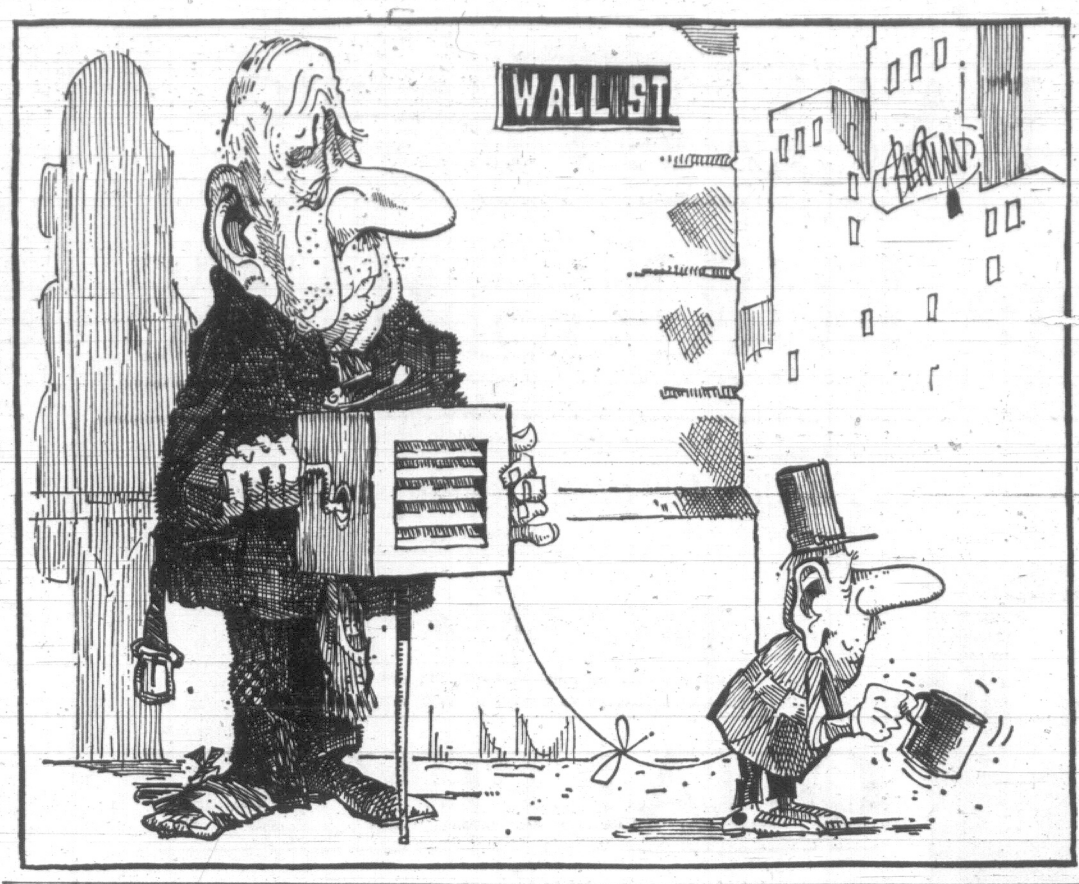

The government may intend to take what it considers best from the Report, with considerable modifications. This would be a reasonable course of action but there are some possible pitfalls. It has been argued that some of the Carter proposals are impractical, such as inclusion of all sources of income, no matter how small, on tax forms. Enforcement would require an army of snoopers and create a bureaucratic nightmare. Nevertheless, the Carter Report was based on the principle of equity, and much of it may be used as a guideline to the future.

What Price Justice?

THE EXPERIENCE OF MR. William Blakeman raises some disturbing questions about the court system. Mr. Blakeman is the young Canadian who was tried on a charge of murder in California and acquitted in 1967 after spending five and a half months in jail. Now another man has confessed to the crime.

Such mistakes cannot always be avoided in the search for justice and do not mean the system is faulty. The injustice lies in the fact that Mr. Blakeman was forced to borrow $30,000 to conduct his defence and now has little hope of reclaiming any of this money or the earnings lost while he was in jail. His mother sold her house to help raise the funds and now both mother and son are trying to fight their way out of debt. Mr. Blakeman could go back to court and attempt to recover some of his costs, but it would take more capital to launch such an action and he is unable to proceed.

He deserves a better deal from society. There has been a move in Canada toward providing compensation for victims of crime, and consideration should also be given to reimbursing the innocent victims of our police and court system in cases where the costs reach a certain level. It is not good enough to say "tough luck" to Mr. Blakeman. Anyone could land in the same predicament.

OTTAWA ON NATO

By MAURICE WESTERN

The Answer Is Softly Confused

THE question which naturally arises from the confusion of statements in Brussels and in Parliament about Canada's role in NATO is a very simple one. How does it all look from the other side of the hill? It is reasonable to assume that the rulers of the Kremlin are calculating men with no desire to plunge their county into a third world war. But great conflicts often result from blunders and faulty appraisals.

Western

For nearly two decades NATO has served very well to deter the Russians from miscalculations in Europe which might have cataclysmic consequences.

At no time in this period has NATO power in the European theatre matched that available to the Soviet command. It was, however, a persuasive deterrent because it was backed by strategic nuclear forces based mainly in the United States. But superior weaponry does not always give pause to a hostile state; it did not restrain Hitler from reentering the Rhineland because he, unlike his generals, correctly read the state of mind of the Western powers at that time. In the last analysis NATO has been a success not simply because of its stockpile statistics but because it conveyed to the Russians a will to resist on the part of the Atlantic alliance.

After an extended period of lessening tensions, the Soviet leaders set the clocks back last summer by the military occupation and coercion of Czechoslovakia. There is a Pollyanna view that this meant no power change since Czechoslovakia was a Communist state, if a liberal-inclining one, and a member of the Warsaw Pact. In fact the danger has increased with the advance of the Red Army on the Bohemian borders where it now directly confronts the NATO forces.

Soviet Calculations

As calculating men, the Soviet rulers presumably were alert to world reaction. Everywhere opinion, even Communist opinion, condemned the aggression. It rapidly became apparent, however, that the Russians ran no risk beyond that of moral censure. In Ottawa, Mr. Sharp's immediate comment on learning of the invasion was almost unbelievably bland; it was nothing more than an expression of disappointment over a setback to the cause of detente combined with soothing assurances that there was no threat to peace.

After a cabinet meeting, Mr. Sharp did certainly use much sharper language. The approved statement condemned "a flagrant breach of the principle of non-intervention" and also deplored "a serious setback to our rational dialogue."

For the Russians, however, the question must have been; how will the NATO powers respond to this lunge into irrationality? Evidently they have been little impressed by these expressions of sorrow because they have spent the intervening months threatening the Germans, the Yugoslavs, and everyone else in sight.

They may, however, have been somewhat apprehensive about the Brussels meeting since NATO permanent officials have warned of the new dangers resulting from the invasion of Czechoslovakia.

Canadian Influence

What intelligence have they been able to glean about the degree of resolution of the Canadian government — Canada being one of the architects of NATO and, through the years, one of its most influential defenders?

They have learned through the prime minister's remarks at Kingston "the kind of background thinking that is going into" our review of defence and external policy. This is that we feel ourselves threatened more by social strife in North America than by anything that is happening in Europe.

They have learned that our delegation has been sent to Brussels to play a role of sceptical passivity. They are free to listen but not to enter into any commitments. Until the review is completed, our hands are tied.

Mr. Cadieux, in Brussels, has clarified this slightly. For the present we are maintaining forces assigned or earmarked for Europe at present strengths. For a period which is not definite, as Mr. Trudeau carefully explained, we are deferring any reduction in the size of the air division.

It is conceded by Mr. Sharp that most of our allies have been seeking some indications of our NATO plans, although he denies that there has been "pressure." But whatever words of reassurance may have been privately offered seem to have been ephemeral. An unnamed NATO spokesman was somehow persuaded that we were offering as an additional contribution four modern anti-submarine destroyers with helicopters. But Mr. Trudeau insists that they represent an old commitment and they are presumably replacements. In any case they are not of much help at the moment, being under construction.

Then there was word from Mr. Healey, the British defence secretary, that all NATO countries except France and Iceland had promised "substantial increases" to the common defence. This also was denied on Friday by Mr. Trudeau.

Mr. Cadieux may have removed a few more lingering Russian anxieties by his cheerful statement that "we are not trying to keep up with the Joneses." We seem instead to be concentrating on keeping up with anyone who has the temerity to infer that we may be doing anything suggesting resolute participation in the NATO defence effort.

Over everything is the review. There is no reason why the effectiveness of our NATO contribution should not be under review; in fact this has been the normal situation here and in other capitals for many years. It might perhaps have made an impression if we had called off the review after the invasion of Czechoslovakia and until a more normal situation developed.

Fundamental Study

But not only did the government press on; it has lost no opportunity to inform the world that the review encompasses the most fundamental questions.

Thus Mr. Trudeau, in answer to a question from Mr. Winch on Friday, explained with some care that the new ships now under construction would not necessarily be continuing commitments, regardless of the outcome of the review. We can, he assured the House, withdraw from NATO in 1969 if we so decide.

Legally, of course we can. But why does the prime minister choose to emphasize such a possibility at this time? We react to Czechoslovakia by wondering aloud if we should remain in NATO. This is a very strange course if we are seriously seeking to impress the Russians with the risks involved in any further aggressions in Europe.

FROM SAIGON

By JOSEPH ALSOP

Big Unit Failures Bring Dawn of Hope

THE dawn of hope in Saigon, after many weary months of gloom, is bright enough to be near-blinding. One can only pray it is not a false dawn. And that seems to depend, oddly enough, on whether General Nguyen Chi Thanh or General Vo Nguyen Giap was in the right in 1965. This may seem a singular approach to the new phase the war has now entered. But as yet, the only real evidence suggesting what the new phase may bring is the important, fully documented evidence of the conflicting opinions of the enemy's two most eminent commanders.

Alsop

Briefly, then, there was a major policy debate in Hanoi about the right courses to adopt, after the United States entered the war in earnest in the summer of 1965. In the face of such a markedly unfavorable development, the enemy doctrine, which General Giap had written, called for a temporary retreat from big unit war to small unit war of a more classic guerrilla type.

The documents make it quite clear that the Hanoi Politburo was divided.

For the Politburo, the decision must have been very difficult indeed. Prior to the U.S. intervention, two North Vietnamese divisions had been sent down to strengthen the big units organized from their local resources by the Viet Cong in South Vietnam. But except for this contribution, plus the needed weapons and ammunition, plus the provision of many leadership cadres, the war in the south had as yet cost North Vietnam almost nothing.

Retreating to small unit war would do. Yet General Nguyen Chi Thanh carried the day in this critical policy debate in Hanoi; and the big unit war was continued.

Could Not Afford Retreat

Furthermore, the documents and other intelligence make it quite clear that General Nguyen Chi Thanh's decisive argument, buttressed by all his authority as the front line commander of the war in the south, could be boiled down to, "You just can't afford the kind of retreat you are talking about." In other words, he warned the Politburo that the whole Viet Cong structure in the south would soon be imperilled, if it were deprived of the active military support of the big units. In his view, therefore, retreat to small unit war meant acceptance of defeat.

Precisely the same issue was again debated by the Politburo, moreover, in July, 1967. Now, however, the circumstances of the debate were infinitely more painful.

Harsh Toll

General Westmoreland's strategy, aimed at the big units, had taken a harsh toll; and it had also pushed the enemy's big units further and further into sanctuary areas, where they were too remote to give serious support to the V.C. structure in the crucial populated areas. In one or two provinces, the V.C. structure was already beginning to show the crumbling effects predicted by General Nguyen Chi Thanh.

General Thanh himself had meanwhile been killed in action. Although the dangers were obviously greater now, the retreat to small unit war was again advocated by some participants, probably including General Giap, in this 1967 debate. Yet the decision, once again, was to go forward with the big unit war at all costs, although this meant a further increase of the burden on North Vietnamese resources that must have been frightful for the Politburo to contemplate.

The results were the three offensives, at Tet, again in May, and yet again, in August-September, that were supposed to make 1968 "the war of decision, the year of final victory," as the enemy documents endlessly repeat.

Disasters

All three offensives were sanguinary failures. The position today in broad outline resembles the grim position in the late spring of 1967, which drove the Hanoi Politburo to sacrifice North Vietnamese manpower with such a cruelly lavish hand.

By all the signs, however, the Hanoi Politburo has balked this time at sending in the 100,000 additional men that would be needed for full-scale continuation of the big unit war. Already, General Creighton Abrams is re-directing his immense resources, with methodical ferocity, against the V.C. structure in the populated areas. And this is why the rightness or wrongness of General Nguyen Chi Thanh's long-ago warnings of defeat have now become questions of great current import.

Looking Back

From the Times, Nov. 20, 1908.

As the Chinese residents in South Saanich who have been making a practice of slaughtering pigs and keeping their piggeries in an unsanitary condition have paid no attention to repeated warnings, prosecutions will be commenced against them. This action was decided at a meeting of the municipal council.

Dr. Nelson, municipal health officer, was asked to inspect all Chinese piggeries and to report on their sanitary conditions.

The Ring of Cash

Those Liberals who would sell out CBC, a distinguished Canadian cultural institution, to private merchandizing interests for cash, would do well to remember, that though they currently enjoy a majority this is by no means a mandate to squander the nation's character and culture for money. This peculiar ailment afflicted the "dynamic" government in Victoria, with their cavalier approach to the people's parks. The tune of the cash register is catching on as the accompaniment to all public motivation. That parks, universities, libraries, museums and art galleries do not show a profit is a source of irritation to those whose mental and political outlook is confined to a bookkeeping entry.

The Victoria MP with his current departmental association has a promising reclamation project conveniently at hand. The misnomered Department of National Defence has an astronomical budget which filches the national product of almost $2,000,000,000. We squawk about a paltry $114,000,000 for a coast-to-coast cultural undertaking and national bond for the Canadian people. I resent fattening armament leeches and condoning international stupidity in foreign relations. I believe in defence through peace as a unilateral Canadian undertaking.

Criticising CBC program content and administration in a constructive fashion should be open season. Matter of fact they should take over a couple of the local stations and provide better reception.—P. Gibbens, 1205 Fernwood Road.

Remembered Czechs

Reading "Death Of A Dream" by Patrick Nagle recalls to my mind an incident in 1945 when a CNR trainload of Czechoslovakian soliders in uniform passed through our town of Roblin, Manitoba, en route to Halifax and home by ship across the Atlantic. They told us that the end of the war caught them on the Russian frontier where they would have been prisoners of war.

Russia gave them transportation across the country to the Pacific Ocean—from there by boat to Vancouver and hence around the world to their home.

Your readers, I am sure, would appreciate an article on the history of those years of occupation of the Czechoslovakians as much as this present splendid contribution by Patrick Nagle.

I have a picture of the train and a group of those soldiers. —(Mrs.) E. V. Brydon, 830 Benvenuto.

Alcorn Centre?

Following the recent passing of Dr. Alcorn, I would like to pay tribute to a selfless, dedicated man, learned in many fields, a man of integrity.

Dr. Alcorn was highly respected by all. I, for one, am indebted to him.

If I may, one suggestion about the proposed new mental health centre. Why not call it the "Douglas Alcorn Centre"? — Marie Davis, 1130 View St.

Time to Stop Exploiting Earth

By JOHN DAVY

We tend to think of the impact of our technological civilization on the planet in terms of large-scale effects—traffic, roads, sprawling cities, deep mines, intensive agriculture, clouds of smoke and fumes, huge dams and power stations.

But we owe our survival on earth to much subtler phenomena—biological processes of delicate complexity in which small shifts and changes can have slow, unforeseeable but sometimes catastrophic consequences.

Consider, for instance, the alarming story of the impact of asbestos. In 1924, a Dr. W. E. Cooke performed an autopsy on a 33-year-old woman who had died of lung disease. From the age of 13 she had worked in an asbestos factory.

The doctor found curious yellowish particles in her severely damaged lungs, and suggested that asbestos dusts were a health hazard. Following a Home Office investigation, legislation was passed in 1931 making asbestosis a recognized occupational disease, and requiring better dust suppression and ventilation in the asbestos textile industry.

For a while, nothing much more happened. Then in 1955 Dr. Richard Doll, of the Medical Research Council, demonstrated that men who had worked 20 years in a large asbestos textile factory were 11 times more liable to lung cancer than the population as a whole.

Second of Two Articles

Since then, a mountain of evidence has accumulated to underline the long-term hazards of inhaling asbestos fibres: this silica-containing mineral is practically indestructible, and remains apparently permanently lodged in the lungs.

In 1910, world production was 30,000 tons a year; today it is four million tons. It is used for roofing and tiling, insulation, filling in plastic tiles, ironing-board covers, building boards, pipes, fireproof draperies, brake and clutch linings, paints, plasters and myriad other products.

There are signs that not only workers in asbestos factories are at risk, but people handling asbestos on building sites, or even those who merely live near asbestos factories or mines. One fatal lung condition, called mesothelioma, can be associated with inhalation of asbestos fibres 20 or more years earlier.

There is also a possibility that asbestos amplifies the hazards of smoking—possibly because the asbestos absorbs cancer-producing agents from the cigarette smoke. Two doctors writing recently in the Journal of the American Medical Association recommended that "asbestos workers who do not smoke should never start, and those who do should stop immediately."

Inhale Asbestos Fibres

It is probably impossible to go through life in a modern city without inhaling some asbestos fibres. Little is known about the minimum dose needed to produce a measurable health hazard.

It may be 25 years before the effects of current asbestos inhalation will be apparent. Yet without asbestos, industrial civilization would be severely crippled, for a time at least.

Not much can be done beyond controlling exposure as closely as possible, and carefully watching the health of people working regularly with this mineral.

A great many other substances have been released into the environment which were previously locked up in the earth, or did not exist in nature at all. Measurements of snow samples taken near the Poles have indicated that there is 10 times more lead in the atmosphere today than 200 years ago.

It comes from lead smelting, and more recently from anti-knock compounds in petrol. Measurements in Los Angeles show an average concentration of lead in the air 50 times that in rural areas, and possibly 5,000 times that existing in the pre-industrial age.

Lead is a cumulative poison, commonly used in the Middle Ages to do people in by stealth. There is no evidence that it is doing anybody in now, and careful studies suggest that concentrations in people's bodies are still some way below danger levels.

But Dr. P. J. Lawther, of the Medical Research Council's Air Pollution Research Unit, concluded a recent analysis of the situation with a warning that it should be kept under "close review."

Meanwhile, we have all been accumulating more exotic poisons, notably the persistent pesticides like DDT, which are now found traces even in the bodies of Antarctic penguins. Here again, the present levels appear to be well below what might be hazardous, and in Britain we can take some cold-hearted comfort from the fact that any new chronic effects are likely to show up first in workers engaged in anti-malarial campaigns in tropical regions, who are exposed to much larger doses.

Nevertheless, the possibility of nasty surprises is underlined by the fate of the peregrine falcon. These are the end of a biological "food chain"—they are particularly fond of pigeons, which may in turn concentrate pesticides by eating treated seeds.

Pesticides Kill Birds

Both in the United States and Western Europe populations of peregrine falcons and other birds of prey have crashed in recent years, and their decline is associated with the introduction of persistent pesticides.

There is now evidence that the pesticides upset liver functioning and calcium metabolism, leading to thinner eggshells which are pecked and eaten by the parent birds, with disastrous effects on their numbers. On present trends, some of these species will soon be extinct in Western Europe and the United States. This is a dramatic example of the queer and wholly unexpected effects of releasing an exotic chemical into the environment.

Some less exotic chemicals which for some years have been generously sprinkled on farmers' fields are now showing signs of backfiring on the environment. Increasing numbers of lakes and reservoirs are now "dying," through excess loads of nitrates and phosphorous compounds deriving from sewage and from fertilizers washed off fields.

Most of the phosphates originate in detergents, and emerge in sewage effluents. Nearly half the nitrogen compounds are washed off fields, which are being dosed with twice as much nitrate fertilizer as 10 years ago.

These substances can lead to explosive growth of water plants, often blue-green algae which can release toxic substances poisonous to fish. Decaying plant matter consumes all the oxygen in the water, which becomes lifeless and often foul-smelling.

This process of "eutrophication" has overtaken at least 40 lakes in Europe and the United States. Excess nitrate in drinking water can also be hazardous, especially to babies, and in the U.S. a number of deaths occurred in Illinois, Iowa, Minnesota and Nebraska before the problem was recognized.

In Britain eutrophication problems are attracting increasing attention. Lake Windermere could become vulnerable, as may new impounding revervoirs which gather up polluted water from rivers. Professor Barry Commone, of Washington University, Missouri, recently warned that the use of nitrate fertilizers in farming might have to be curtailed, which could cause a "massive dislocation." But the alternative, he said, could be a series of "biological cataclysms" in various parts of the world.

These are accidental upheavals in the environment — but we are now in a position to engineer others deliberately. Some biologists have been uttering urgent warnings about the proposal to build a sea-level canal linking the Pacific with the Atlantic near Panama.

The Pacific is cold and its level is on average some six feet higher than the warm Atlantic water across the Isthmus. The tides are out of phase so water-level differences can at times be as much as 18 feet.

No one knows what the effects of the canal would be, but there would be complicated and possibly drastic biological changes among marine animal and plant populations as they began to mix. It has even been suggested that large quantities of cold Pacific water flowing into the Caribbean could produce a new hurricane centre or affect the route of the Gulf Stream.

The biological repercussions of such canals were drastically illustrated by the Welland Canal, which allowed sea lampreys to invade the Western Great Lakes. It took almost a century for their population to build up; then there was an "explosion," and the Great Lakes fisheries were almost destroyed. The U.S. and Canada have already spent over $16 million on research and control measures.

Diversion Cost Unknown

Another vast engineering scheme which might have unforeseen biological or climatic effects is NAWAPA, a plan to divert 36 billion gallons of water from Alaska and northern Canada into the Colorado River to the south-west, and across Canada to the Great Lakes.

In principle, it would solve the continent's worst water problems for the next two centuries — at a cost of 80,000 million dollars invested over 30 years. But no one knows the effects of such a colossal shift in water distribution, and there seems no reliable way of finding out.

Finally, there are some global effects of our rampaging civilization which may turn out to be extremely hazardous. Over the past hundred years, we have begun to consume fossil fuels at what is now a breakneck pace.

During this period, we have as a result poured 360,000 million tons of carbon dioxide into the atmosphere. It has been estimated that the flights of jet aircraft landing at New York alone now emit some 36 million tons of carbon dioxide into the air annually.

This gas is responsible for a "greenhouse" effect which allows in heat from the sun but prevents it from escaping back into space. Space probes indicate that the atmosphere of Venus is extremely rich in carbon dioxide, with the result that its climate near the surface may be, in the words of one American scientist, "very like hell." Our industrial activities may be heading us in the same infernal direction.

By the end of this century, we may have released enough carbon dioxide to raise the atmospheric temperature by two degrees centigrade. Quite soon, this trend could begin to have drastic climatic effects, including melting the ice caps, which would eventually flood many of the world's major cities.

Perhaps fortunately, another global activity of Homo not-so-sapiens is to pump all kinds of dust and grit into the air. Recent measurements show that this is cutting off a noticeable quantity of sunshine and reflecting it back into space, thus offsetting the carbon dioxide warming effect. Indeed we might even be in a position to cool the earth and extend the ice caps by continuing to use the atmosphere as a dustbin in this way.

Locking Up Oxygen

A still more remarkable possibility was recently outlined by Dr. Lamont C. Cole, Professor of Ecology at Cornell University in the U.S. By burning up fossil fuels, he says, we are not only releasing carbon dioxide, but locking up oxygen, thus gradually returning the earth to a more primitive state than before the emergence of man.

The fossil fuels were deposited, he says, while green plants gradually built up the free oxygen in the atmosphere from its originally negligible amounts to its present level of some 20 per cent. Today, oxygen production by plants more or less exactly balances consumption by living organisms. But to this we have now added an enormous combustion enterprise, oxidizing millions of tons of coal and oil each year.

Furthermore, the total acreage of green plants is being steadily reduced. Professor Cole estimates that a million new acres of the U.S. is "paved" in some way annually, and thereby denied to oxygen-producing green plants and trees. A further load is imposed by vast quantities of sewage which are dumped in the sea and there oxidized.

The effect of reducing the total amount of oxygen in the atmosphere would be equivalent to moving the earth's population to a higher altitude. But the ecological effects on climate, vegetation and health of mountaineering on this global scale are quite unpredictable on present knowledge.

Pollution Victim

One could extend almost indefinitely this list of ways in which we are playing around ignorantly and often brashly with our planet — the only one we know of that is remotely habitable for organisms like us.

There are hundreds of additives and chemicals used in foods; exotic compounds released by rockets among the delicate and obscure processes of the upper atmosphere; radioactive fallout and the problems of managing radioactive wastes from nuclear power stations; small earthquakes produced near Denver by boring deep wells and pouring chemical wastes down them; soil erosion and falling underground water levels in many regions; the havoc created by ill-conceived irrigation schemes. (Professor Lamont Cole says that the Aswan dam, designed to bring another million acres under irrigation, could eventually prove "the ultimate disaster for Egypt.")

Attention to Detail

But perhaps the point has been made. If we do not apply the brakes quite savagely to a number of current environmental trends, or acquire a lot more ecological wisdom, or both, there will be some major and possibly irreversible catastrophes in the centruy to come.

It is almost impossible to generalize about remedies; ecological problems demand a meticulous attention to detail coupled with a capacity to see the wood as well as the trees. Most essential, perhaps, is a new state of mind. Two central characteristics of urban civilization up to now have been "growth" and division of labor. These are at the root of many environmental problems.

We have been buying growth by squandering planetary capital at a frightening pace — fuel capital, mineral capital, soil capital, water capital, even animal capital (many whole and fish populations seem likely never to recover from our triumphs of fishing technology).

We have organized this spending spree in such a way that it is almost impossible for anyone to preceive the full environmental implications of the particular productive or consumptive activity he is engaged in.

We consume our food with only the vaguest awareness of the web of biological processes in which its production is involved (remember how large numbers of people failed to see through a spoof BBC film show on one April Fool's Day, purporting to record the "spaghetti harvest" in Italy).

We use the air and rivers as sinks without inquiring too closely about the ultimate fate of our wastes — until some over-stressed biological process breaks down, whether it is the capacity of our lakes to digest sewage or our lungs to handle smog.

However inadequately, modern industrial societies have come to set limits on the exploitation of man by man. There are Factory Acts, welfare states, laws about cruelty and violence. But many of our technological triumphs derive from an exploitation of the earth by man.

The next great step in civilization — which in our own interests we shall have to take long before we have solved many of our other problems — will be to make effective provision for the welfare of the planet. We shall have to move from a violent exploitation of the environment to a knowledgeable and non-violent practice of human ecology.

And, just conceivably, the effort to avoid destroying the environment may prove good practice for finding ways of not destroying one another.

Breakthrough Made On Virus Diseases?

By VICTOR COHN

Two scientists report they have cured a virus disease in rabbits. This could mean a major breakthrough toward a chemical cure of virus diseases in man.

If the same kind of treatment can affect man, it could mean the first chemical cures of important diseases like smallpox, virus pneumonia, hepatitis, mumps, influenza, the common cold and many others.

Penicillin and other antibiotics do not affect viruses, only bacteria—larger, more susceptible disease organisms.

Human treatment—if that proves possible—might be performed by simple inhalation (like inhaling a nasal mist) or by injection.

The report was made last week in the journal Science by Drs. John H. Park, New York Medical College ophthalmologist, and Samuel Baron of the National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases at Bethesda, Md.

They treated rabbits infected with herpes simplex keratoconjunctivitis, a serious, often-fatal eye infection caused by a kin to the herpes virus that causes cold sores.

They treated them with a synthetic ribonucleic acid (RNA), an artifical copy of one of the chemicals the body uses to direct building of new cells. The RNA stimulated the rabbits' production of interferon, a natural virus-fighter produced in man and animals.

And the rabbits got well.

Interferon has been used before to protect animals against virus infection—with the interferon used after virus infection but before onset of disease.

Interferon is hard to garner, however, and has to be of the right kind for each species. So scientists recently began to try various substances, like artificial RNA, to stimulate natural interferon production.

The findings must now be extended to other virus infections and to virus infections in humans before anyone can say an important discovery has surely been made.

But such demonstrations now seem possible, a National Institute of Allergy announcement said. The synthetic RNA has already been shown to be highly active in making human cells virus-resistant in the test tube.

More to Our History Than Illusive Dates

By ART STOTT

Some members of Canada's Parliament believe this country should expand its recognition of our history. John Roberts, who is a Liberal member for York Simcoe, suggests that goal might be approached by giving the Historic Sites and Monuments Board—on which former Times man Jim Nesbitt is British Columbia's representative—more leeway. He would take the board out from under the Department of Indian Affairs and Northern Development, place it under the secretary of state, give it more money, enlarge its membership, probably with the addition of architectural experts, and, on a national basis, include communities, perhaps parks, as sites suitable for recognition.

Stott

He is supported by such men as Barry Mather, the serious former Vancouver Sun humorist who is now an NDP member for Surrey.

They speak, respectively, of the excellence of the Ontario government's assembly of "Upper Canada Village" and British Columbia's restoration of Barkerville, though Mr. Roberts suggests Canada should not adopt an archival approach to the subject.

Mr. Roberts, sponsor of a private bill on the subject, wants to see some of the houses and other edifices maintained as samples of a historic era of Canadian construction and living. He suggests Canada consider following Britain with its National Trust and the even more elaborate procedures in France, which is highly conscious of reminders of eras gone by.

★ ★ ★

I take it from reading the discussion that what is planned for Emily Carr's birthplace falls directly in line with part of the York Simcoe member's idea, improvement of homes which will then be maintained by people living in them.

In the debate, mention was made of Louisbourg, of Dawson City, of Niagara-on-the-Lake and other regions of historical note.

To those of us who believe our history is important, the movement to expand the board's activities is encouraging, though the private member's bill, like so many other private members' bills, was talked out in Parliament.

But I find myself, reaching an age which chronologically makes me something of a relic, if not historic, pondering an old question of history. Like virtually all English-speaking people I have a small memory for dates, recollecting off-hand 1066 and little more. I can make a fair stab at the years of Cartier's voyages, remember Columbus' 1492, and become confused about the exact time that Champlain, Frontenac, Fraser, La Verendrye, David Thompson, Lord Durham, etc., etc., did what was important.

And I have wondered if the widely-chronicled events made the history, or if they were outgrowths of the living of many obscure people who did what they could, or had to do, with what they had at hand in the improvisations of social development in their times. By the dictionary definition, I guess the latter was sociology, but in my mind the two merge. William the Conk would have looked pretty silly on the beach at Hastings if he hadn't had a batch of other Normans along with him. They were there because they were responding to some compulsion that was a result of their manner of living—which, in turn, was dependent on the way unnamed people among them went about the business of survival.

As a child of eight, I lived during a brief holiday in a log cabin in the Queen Charlottes. That remains a relic of history for me—the memory of the kind of housing Canadians used at one time.

Wasn't the sealing fleet historic to Victoria. Wasn't it the essential of a relatively large migration of Newfoundlanders and other Atlantic maritimers to this part of the world, with a definite influence on our history? Wasn't the redwood gingerbread built on early Victoria houses—when it was imported from San Francisco at a time of close relationships between the two towns—a symbol of history, an index of a historic link?

In some homes around Victoria are old spinning-wheels, now decorative period pieces in living rooms, which have come down from forebears who were the anonymous makers of our history. Some families, no doubt, have butter churns. Aren't these part of history?

I like the idea of the expanding concept of historical import suggested in the House of Commons discussion. I'd even like to see the historically-minded restore the family kitchen of my boyhood, when the kitchen was the place where a family lived most of its waking hours indoors. The old wood and coal range, with its small mica windows showing flickering flame, the sofa, where newspapers, magazines and sweaters were piled, the rocking chair where the grandma of a traditional three-generation family took her ease, knitting or just nodding, the big table where a mother prepared meals, did her mending made space for children doing homework, the Sunlight Soap box where the wood was stored, the small, flat crate where the cat slept behind the stove, the kitchen sink, with old-fashioned faucet or pump—isn't all that part of history?

Maybe we should restore samples—a log cabin, a sealing schooner fully equipped, and an an old kitchen, before the new generations fort what went into living for us—a homespun part of our history.

Skin Cancer Afflicts Irish

By NATE HASELTINE

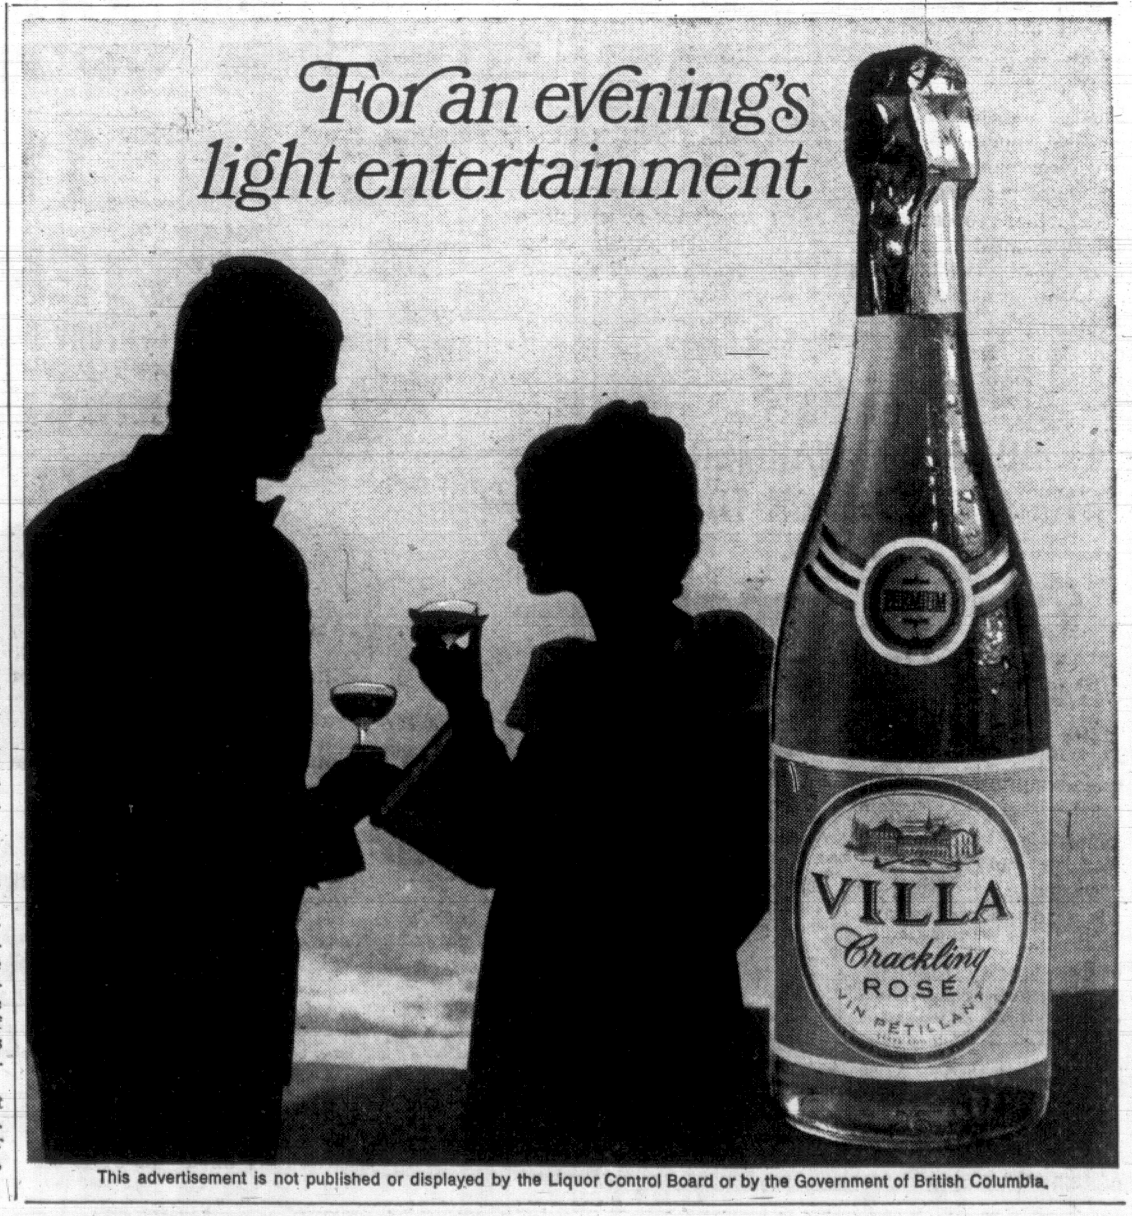

The legendary "luck of the Irish" doesn't hold up as far as susceptibility to skin cancer, recent studies reported to the American Cancer Society indicate.

Parallel studies in Ireland and among Irish-born descendants in Philadelphia showed that descendants of the early Celts have a higher susceptibility to skin cancer as a result of exposure to sunlight, and it is probably due to the genetic makeup of these people.

Fortunately for those who are predisposed to skin cancer—either through excessive exposure to sunlight's ultra-violet radiations, or by genetic make-up, or a combination of both, this type of cancer is detectable early and surgically curable.

Skin cancer has the highest incidence of all cancers. About 105,000 cases occur annually in the United States, of which 5,000 die of it.

Regional Plans Spark Tempers

Municipalities Jealously Guarding Zoning Powers

By JIM HUME

It was back to the drawing board Tuesday for the plan designed to make the Capital Region Planning Board a regional district function.

Requiring a unanimous vote from all municipalities in the region before the incorporation can take place the proposal ran into heavy going from North Saanich, Oak Bay and Victoria.

North Saanich came through with an outright rejection of the proposal.

Victoria and Oak Bay agreed to the move but only if the letters patent were spelled out as clearly giving individual municipalities the right to do their own internal planning.

Central Saanich and Esquimalt are the only two municipalities so far to give outright approval to the move which, in first draft form, would see the regional board responsible for all planning throughout the region.

On the way to a "refer back to committee for further study" decision Tuesday Victoria's Ald. Ian Stewart flashed rare temper at the conference table.

SPARKS EXPLOSION

Chairman of the Capital Region Planning Board, Mayor Gordon Lee, Central Saanich, provided the spark for the explosion when he suggested that Victoria's attitude seemed selfish.

Victoria council has stated that it approves the proposal that the regional planning group come under the jurisdiction of the regional district. But it adds the rider that regional planning should apply only to obviously regional matters and that individual municipality zoning and planning should be the function of the municipality concerned.

Mayor Lee said he could not concur with Victoria's thinking.

"I am assuming, but it seems to me that Victoria is saying 'we want the privilege of voting on other municipalities' planning but we won't let you vote on ours,'" he said.

"You are presuming a great deal," snapped Ald. Stewart.

"Somehow with the irresponsible reporting in this morning's paper, which was a lot of hogwash, the region is being presented with a completely erroneous picture of Victoria's stand.

"The amendments we have proposed would not just apply to Victoria, but to all members of the region. It does not indicate the view that we want to interfere with others while we don't want them to interfere with us.

"Our amendment and Oak Bay's amendment are identical in substance.

"We are saying that until we know just where the regional government is going, without knowing its direction, we will not accept, holus bolus, the overall proposal.

"When it comes to zoning I do not know, and you do not know, what kind of vehicle we are going to have.

"Until I know I am against the proposal unless it is amended."

WOULD DRAW LINE

Ald. Stewart repeated his earlier claim that Victoria council is solidly in favor of gional function. But he insisted gional functiotn. But he insisted that a clear line of division be drawn between "regional planning" and "planning for individual municipalities within the region."

"My temper is short," he said. "But when I hear you (Mayor Lee) repeat an untrue news report I get angry."

Oak Bay Mayor Fred Hawes agreed with Ald. Stewart.

"He said it much better—and much more strongly—than I could," he said. "In Oak Bay we feel that we were elected by the people to control our area and it is most important that we do."

Mayor Lee thanked Ald. Stewart for his "clarification."

NUB OF ARGUMENT

Nub of the argument lies in the wording of the original proposal and the revised wording being demanded by Victoria and Oak Bay.

Defenders of the original proposal claim that although the wording would appear to give the regional group control over all planning, that was not the intention.

They further claim that although the power might be there in the legislation the regional board nor the regional planner would ever infringe on the rights of the individual municipality.

The opposition answers: "Fine, now spell it out that way. We shall not go along with approval of written legislation which gives the regional district the zoning and planning power individual municipalities must hold."

They leave unsaid the fear that once the original proposal is passed the power granted could be abused.

Land Agents Want to Cut Salesmen Share

A proposal that would realign real estate commissions to salesmen is put forward as a means of "cleaning up the local real estate industry and make it more professional."

Victoria Real Estate Board president Douglas G. Peaker, agreeing that some salesmen would be affected by the board's proposed constitutional changes, said the industry is concerned about its public image.

He said the board's constitution as it stands has "no teeth in it," making it difficult for the body to police its members.

"We are not cutting the salesmen's commission," he said. "We are trying to clean up our own house to get rid of unfair advantage and stop the numbers from pouring into the business.

"There are too many per capita in this particular city," he said.

Mr. Peaker said he felt the majority of board members—there are 83—would approve the constitutional changes to be presented at a meeting Thursday. A two-thirds majority is needed.

The board would, as a result, be stronger, more respected and more professional, he said.

New salesmen would go on a 50-50 commission split rather than the current 70-30. The rule would also apply to those who switch jobs.

A real estate board committee recommended the changes as a fairer means of dealing with both salesmen and agents.

The president said agents would be more responsible when hiring salesmen and the pirating of salesmen from other firms would be more difficult.

Every existing salesman has a contract and would not be affected unless he changed agents, Mr. Peaker said.

Meanwhile, salesmen have shown opposition to the proposal, but so far there has been no formal reply through the salesmen's section of the real estate board.

Stay in NATO Urges Expert

OTTAWA (CP) — The European situation could become more dangerous in the 1970s if the Communist Warsaw Pact begins to break up, Alastair Buchan, director of the Institute for Strategic Studies in London, said Tuesday night.

In an interview on the CBC television show Twenty Million Questions, he suggested there could be a role for Canada in mobile forces that would be needed to cope with localized outbreaks.

"The Czech situation isn't by any means over," Mr. Buchan said.

"You could easily get three or four recurrences of mass resistance to the Russians and one of these would spill over.

"So that the business of keeping the peace in Europe, I think, is going to be more complex. We've had a rather easy time of this since the last Berlin crisis."

Mr. Buchan said a major Soviet aggression against Western Europe is implausible, but a local development might explode, demanding forces that could be moved rapidly and could concentrate in an area.

MAY NEED MORE

Canada's "small, but very efficient" forces in Europe would have to be replaced by some other Western country if they are withdrawn, he said.

"Also, I think there's a very strong case, if Canada feels disposed to do so, for providing more of this mobile element that I have suggested will be necessary."

On the same program, Opposition Leader Robert Stanfield said Canada should be prepared to remain in NATO until something approaching an East-West detente has been reached.

"I don't see how anybody can really believe that there isn't a threat in view of what's happened in Czechoslovakia," he said.

The ruthlessness of the Soviet-led intervention, he said, means that "we must recognize that they might be that ruthless towards us too if they get the opportunity."

Mr. Stanfield suggested that Prime Minister Trudeau had pre-judged the current review of foreign policy, including Canada's contribution to NATO, in a recent Kingston, Ont., speech during which he had "indicated he didn't really think there was very much of a threat from outside. . . ."

David Lewis, NDP parliamentary leader, said the Czech invasion "ought not to make us hysterical about the situation." Although reprehensible, he said, the invasion had nothing to do with East-West confrontation. It was an internal matter within the Communist bloc.

RED CHINA REJECTED IN UN BID

By ROBERT H. ESTABROOK
The Washington Post

UNITED NATIONS — By a larger margin than ever the General Assembly Tuesday night turned back for the 18th consecutive year an effort to seat Communist China in the United Nations.

Fifty-eight of the UN's 126-member counties voted against a 14-power Cambodian-Albanian resolution to seat Peking and expel the Nationalist Chinese Government based on Taiwan. Forty-four countries supported the resolution and 23 abstained, with one absentee.

CANADA ABSTAINED

Last year, when UN membership stood at 122, the vote was 58-45 against the resolution, with 17 abstentions.

Tuesday night's result was a victory for the U.S., which had spoken vigorously against expulsion of the Nationalists and argued that this was not the time to bring in Peking.

Earlier the assembly had given a preview of the outcome by endorsing 73-47 an American-sponsored 16-nation resolution to regard any change in Chinese representation as an "important question" requiring approval by a two-thirds majority of those present and voting. There were five abstentions and two absentees.

Last year the vote on the "important question" was 69-48 with four abstentions.

Jets Not for Sale To Furtive People

By STAN McDOWELL
Times Ottawa Bureau

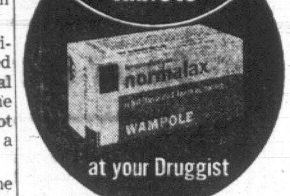

OTTAWA — Defence production minister Donald Jamieson said Tuesday the government would not sell surplus military aircraft to a private buyer until it knew why the buyer wanted them.

Questioned by the opposition on a report that an American arms dealer had made the highest bid on 26 surplus F-86 Sabre Jets, Mr. Jamieson said the 26 aircraft had not yet been declared surplus or turned over to the Crown Assets Disposal Corporation.

"There may be some confusion in that earlier a set of, I believe, some 22 airframes were offered for sale and also a separate set of 25 Orenda engines," he said. "This is the only equipment which has been declared surplus to Crown Assets Disposal Corporation."

Mr. Jamieson did not specifically deny that, as reported earlier, the highest of several bids on the 26 Sabres had come from an American airline pilot understood to be fronting for a U.S. arms dealer.

He would only say that "if the F-86's are turned over to us we will decide as a matter of policy what will be one with them, but so far they have not been turned over to us."

Calgary Mooted As Live Urban Lab

CALGARY (CP)—The federal task force on housing heard criticism of urban renewal and a proposal that Calgary be used as a city-wide, live laboratory for research into urban living.

The Calgary hearing was the last in the West for the group which is to report to the cabinet at the end of the year. It has still to visit Hamilton, Ont., Nova Scotia and Newfoundland.

Briefs from a Chinese cultural association, the Calgary Social Planning Council, and groups of citizens in two urban renewal areas objected to schemes that demolish housing without providing more. The briefs also asked more consultation with residents in affected areas.

The council urged that National Housing Act funds be granted for public housing plans only on "evidence of meaningful participation of potential tenants."

The Sien Lok Society presented a brief saying Chinese communities are being "obliterated" by unco-ordinated redevelopment of downtown areas "without any prior consultation with the community."

DESTROYS TIES

The brief asked who would take over the community's mutual aid to the elderly and immigrants if residents were dispersed.

Submissions by residents' committees from the Victoria Park and Eau Claire neighborhoods said urban renewal had demolished low-rental housing without replacing it and had destroyed community ties.

The Eau Claire brief, presented by Calgary lawyer John M. Johnson, said urban renewal can squeeze former residents into a high-rise "welfare ghetto."

A brief from the city offered Calgary as a site for a centre to research housing and community planning and "carry out living experiments."

The proposed centre, to be controlled by a citizen board and largely supported by the federal government, would be free to experiment with building codes, construction standards, zoning and planning regulations.

It would be independent of any federal, provincial or city department.

The city offered to provide "a substantial cash grant," make land available and relax building, zoning or taxation regulations as the program might require.

Nixon Aide Denies Fear

GENEVA (AP) — A recent economic adviser to Richard Nixon has termed as "absolute nonsense" fears that the president-elect of the United States will be a protectionist.

Pierre A. Rinfret, who advised Nixon for two years up to his election triumph earlier this month, told a gathering of international investment trust managers.

"The only difference between the coming administration and that of President Johnson is that Nixon knows that he must minimize inflation if he is to control the economy."

Tape Reports Help Doctors Keep Abreast

CHICAGO (AP)—Doctors driving from home to the office and from the office to the hospital will be able to catch up on their medical reading by listening to professional reports on tape.

The American Medical Association says the new concept—AMA Audio News Journal—will be offered next year at a cost of $72 annually.

The tapes can be played in the car, at home or in the office and will provide more than an hour of news and feature material about the practice of medicine, business management of a practice and other items of interest to doctors.

AMA Audio News Journal reporters will furnish the editorial matter by covering major medical meetings and conducting interviews.

Limited advertising, directed at doctors, will be on the tapes.

MLA Says Sensation Contrived

VANCOUVER (CP) — The controversy over timber being logged out of the planned Cypres Bowl recreation area is "contrived sensationalism," Allan Williams, Liberal MLA for West Vancouver, said Tuesday.

He told the annual meeting of the Vancouver Little Mountain Liberal Association that an NDP member of the legislature was attacking the project to further his political ambitions.

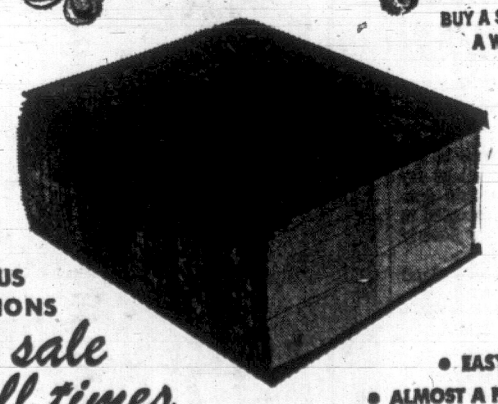

Dave Barrett, NDP MLA for Coquitlam, has attacked the West Vancouver, B.C., project both in and out of the legislature since it was conceived four years ago.

Mr. Williams said charges indicting the project as exploitation of public lands were nothing but a smokescreen to cover lack of constructive policies on the part of the NDP opposition and the Social Credit government.

Heavy machinery howls in the school's huge machine shops, but inside the little class you could hear a needle valve drop.

Nine Indian and Eskimo students sit hunched over textbooks, listening to an instructor detail the finer points of carburetor maintenance.

Some sit passively, but most show signs of tension, twisting pens in nervous fingers, drumming silently on desks or simply glancing from side to side.

They come from points all across northern Canada and for most of them it is their first look at the white man's civilization.

Some are virtually illiterate, barely able to write their own names, but that's not a problem.

The school is Fleet School Esquimalt and the students are youths chosen by the department of national defence and the department of Indian affairs for training in necessary working skills for the northland.

And the criterion is desire.

Commissioned officer Bill Bissett, commander of the school's boat-building section, said: "They come here to learn—that's the main thing.

"We've found that a lack of formal education is not a handicap.

"In fact, we'd rather take the illiterate boy who is willing to learn than the formally educated one who isn't."

TWO COURSES

Two courses are offered by the schold—boat building and diesel maintenance.

Ages of the students range from 17 to 20 and educations from nothing to Grade 12. The average is Grade 6.

While in the course—sponsored by the department of Indian affairs and northern development—the students live on the navy base and wear naval uniforms.

It takes a while for the newness to wear off the uniforms and it takes just as long for it to wear off the students.

Most are quiet young men who smile easily but answer questions with a shyness that shows their unfamiliarity with the world around them.

STICK TOGETHER

Commissioned officer Bissett said: "At first they stick pretty close together.

"Since they've never seen this world before they're pretty much at the 'nutty bar and TV' stage."

Translated, this means the youngsters spend many of the first hours in the TV lounge, eating chocolate bars and watching the monster.

"But later they tire of all that and gravitate to the gymnasium."

But it's not all nutty bars, TV and gymnasiums.

WORK HARD

Inside the well-equipped classrooms of the fleet school the students work hard at becoming mechanics and boat builders.

Sections of the boat-building classes build full-scale runabouts, some from fiberglas.

The mechanical sections go through a grounding in basic theory, then on to dismantling and re-assembling huge ship's diesels.

Eventually, after about 10 months, they will return to the northlands, hopefully to pass on some of what they've learned to their fellows.

The current class is the fifth and the reported employment rate is 100 per cent.

Some have remained behind, to make their own way in the white man's world.

Some have come back.

Commissioned officer Bissett said, "There is never any trouble with these people. They fit in well."

Before Magistrate

Two men were sent to jail for three and six month terms following a conviction Tuesday for stealing four cases of home-made beer.

Court was told Larry Linder, 923 Pembroke, and Gordon Charles, 7 Cooper Road, went to the house of Hazel Ward, 203 Henry on Nov. 3. They were accompanied by four other persons.

Mrs. Ward said Charles took two cases of beer without her permisson. Linder took two cases also, witnesses said.

Prosecutor Cory Stolte said Linder had convictions for breaking and entering and theft, driving while suspended and leaving the scene of an accident. He was given a three-month sentence.

Charles, who was given the six-month term had convictions for theft, assault and breaking and entering and theft, Mr. Stolte said. He was also remanded to appear before Magistrate Byers today on an assault charge.

David Thomas, 2943 Bridge was sentenced to two months in jail following a conviction for stealing a bottle of vanilla extract.

Court was told he took the bottle from a shelf in The Bay Nov. 16 and left the department without paying for it.

Mr. Stolte said the accused had previous convictions for theft dating back to 1950.

Arlene Martell, 4127 Birtles, was remanded to Dec. 2 for sentence after pleading guilty to shoplifting a rib roast from the Town and Country Safeway store Oct. 19. Court was told she put the meat in her handbag and left.

A pre-sentence and psychiatric report is being prepared.

Fined $300 each for impaired driving Monday were Henry Klat, 915 Market, and John Morley, 779 Winfall.

Coat-of-Arms For Everyone Approved

Central Saanich has chosen a coat-of-arms which should satisfy most residents—Indians, farmers, gardeners, fishermen, English, Scottish and Welsh families of pioneering stock.

Designed by Prof. A. L. C. Atkinson, 10651 Blue Heron Road, an expert on the ancient art of heraldry, the armorial bearing received the unanimous approval of council Monday.

It consits of a shield with a dafodil at its base, a red rose in the centre, and a thunderbird with wings outstretched on the upper half.

The shield is topped with a cornucopia—a horn of plenty—filled with fruits and vegetables.

On the flanks of the shield are blue and white wavy lines with a salmon on each side. The wavy lines denote water.

Beneath is a blue and white scroll with the motto "Land of Plenty."

Zsa Zsa Promises Fisticuffs Story

PALMA DE MALLORCA, Balearic Islands (AP) — Zsa Zsa Gabor got her passport back today and said she will tell the American television audience about her fracas with a Mallorcan policeman.

"Certainly I hit an agent with my hand, but it was in legitimate defence," the film and TV star said. "Before, I had received a blow on the leg.

"All America will know how badly they have treated me in Mallorca. I will tell about it on a television show."

Miss Gabor is saving the rest of the story for Johnny Carson's Tonight show audience.

New Home Recipe Reducing Plan

It's simple how quickly one may lose pounds of unsightly fat right in your own home. Make this home recipe yourself. It's easy, no trouble at all and costs little. Just go to your drug store and ask for four ounces of Naran Concentrate. Pour this into a pint bottle and add enough grapefruit juice to fill the bottle. Take two tablespoons full a day as needed and follow the Naran Plan.

If your first purchase does not show you a simple easy way to lose bulky fat and help regain slender more graceful curves; if reducible pounds and inches of excess fat don't disappear from neck, chin, arms, abdomen, hips, calves and ankles just return the empty bottle for your money back. Follow this easy way endorsed by many who have tried this plan and help bring back alluring curves and graceful slenderness. Note how quickly bloat disappears—how much better you feel. More alive, youthful appearing and active.

OAK BAY THROWS OUT HIGH RISE APARTMENT

Oak Bay council will withdraw a much-disputed bylaw which would allow high rise apartment buildings.

A reconsideration of the zoning change and letters of opposition during a meeting of committee of the whole brought the decision to keep building heights down.

The committee resolved to recommend council withdraw the bylaw at its next meeting, two weeks from now.

"Council as a whole recognizes the benefits of such a building," Mayor Fred Hawes said Tuesday. "It is the hope that some other plan can be produced."

The bylaw was for an 11-storey building near the White House, at 1120 Beach Drive. Developer Gordon Lovitt had presented plans during the summer for the building.

A public hearing Sept. 4 brought out considerable opposition to the height of the building. Present zoning regulations limit all buildings in Oak Bay to a maximum height of seven floors.

Contractors Showing Interest in Renewal

Six contracting firms have picked up "calls for proposals" documents from Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation since Thursday.

Chris Dowling, local head of CMHC, said it is impossible at this stage to say how many companies will make serious bids to design and construct 180 housing units in the Rose-Blanshard urban renewal area.

"They may be picking them up just to take a look at the specifications," he said. "It doesn't mean that they will necessarily bid."

Among the local firms at least reviewing the call for proposals are the major companies of Wheaton Construction, Farmer Construction and Bird Construction.

Local architects, following instructions from the Architectural Institute of B.C., have so far turned a cold shoulder on the proposal call.

One proposal specification book has been picked up by a local engineering firm, another by Westwood Homes Limited.

Mr. Dowling said no figures were yet available from Vancouver where the call for proposals is also being advertised.

Deadline for return bids is 2 p.m. Jan. 9.

Choice Given In Languages

MONTREAL (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand says immigrants may choose the language of their children's instruction providing it is English or French.

The premier made the statement here Monday after reading copies of a brief presented by seven Montreal-based organizations recommending a dual-language education system for the province.

Members of the Dual Language Committee said Mr. Bertrand has promised the enactment of legislation by the end of the year which would limit the imposition of unilingualism by school boards.

C. Saanich To Have Full Slate

A strongly contested election is expected Dec. 7 in Central Saanich where seven persons have filed nomination papers for four vacant council seats.

Last minute entries may raise the total to 12 by nomination day Monday.

There are three two-year council seat vacancies, one one-year term, plus the mayoralty.

The one-year council seat vacancy was left by Ald. Charles Mollard who decided not to complete his term of office. Thus far Clarence Rowles, 7041 Wallace Drive, and Alfred Sharp, 7143 West Saanich Road, will contest the seat.

Mayor Gordon Lee is stepping down but so far only Ald. Archibald Galbraith has announced he will run for mayor.

Candidates running for a two-year term are William Edward (Ted) Clayard, 1217 Mount Newton Cross Road; Raymond Lamont, 2946 Lamont Road; Frederick Robert Reed, Brentwood Bay; Howard Laatsch, 6278 Marie Meadows.

ENCIRCLED by her dolls, Mrs. Walter Lowe laughs as she tries to hold six at once. A mother of nine, Mrs. Lowe makes the dolls for the Pixie Shop "in her spare time". They are made of multi-colored cloth and stuffing and their distinguishing characteristic is a Pinocchio-like nose.

Pixie Shop Rented

HOBBY CRAFTS SUPPORT HEARING AID PROJECT

By SUSAN RILEY

Teas and bazaars weren't bringing in enough money and the Society for Hearing Handicapped Children have a teacher to pay.

So it has opened a business —just a little one. They have taken over the tiny ski-chalet-type Pixie shop on Douglas Street at Humboldt.

The Society runs daily classes in Kings Road Hall for pre-school age children with hearing difficulties. The classes are designed to prepare the children for kindergarten.

"We need a steady source of income to keep up payments," said Mrs. Robbins, a society member. So a group of 12—and not an accountant among them—have launched this business.

"It's like we are playing checkers in here sometimes," laughed Mrs. Robbins manoeuvring her way around three customers in the shop.

The shop is about 12 feet wide and a tall man could probably touch the front and back walls at the same time with his arms extended.

The Society took over the shop two months ago from the University of Victoria.

OVERHEAD LOW

Almost as small as the shop itself is the overhead. The corner of the car lot on which the shop is located is rented to them for "next to nothing." And all the women — although only one can staff the store at a time — are volunteers.

About 12 members of the Society (which receives money from no organization) take turns looking after the store from 10:30 a.m. to 5 p.m. every day.

The ladies are selling novelty items, ashtrays, art, dolls and souvenirs—but with a difference. Most of the items being sold are made in Victoria by local artists.

The artists or craftsmen work on consignment, and are paid part of the price at which their article sells. The rest of the profit goes to the society.

Don't look for the traditional plastic Mountie or leather-covered salt and pepper shakers with Made in Japan stamped on them.

All items are carefully made and they aren't expensive.

Take Mrs. Walter Lowe's dolls for example. Each spindly, multi-colored stuffed doll is different; each has an air of authenticity not found in your mass-produced dolls. Besides that, they sell for only $5 to $7.

Mrs. Lowe has nine children. She makes the dolls "in her spare time."

"It keeps me pretty busy," she admits.

The shop also sells items from three major stores but relies on people like Mrs. Lowe who have an interesting and marketable hobby.

People like Elmay Crow. A local artist, Mrs. Crow sells paintings and watercolors in the shop. Also on sale is pottery by Anna Hallam. Carpento sets, locally designed and built are also sold. The shop is sort of a repository for local crafts.

This is part of the slack season.

"I wish I was better at window-dressing," said Mrs. Robbins. "Then more people would stop," she laughed. The front of the store is all window.

The ladies expect to be busy at Christmas and are starting to stock Christmas items—all locally made.

Even though 10 people crowded into the store at once would be unable to bend over or move, they would like to see 1,000 flock to their store.

After all, they have a teacher to pay.

Role Sought By Teachers In Planning

Close to 200 teachers are sitting on the 30 committees studying education subjects in Greater Victoria, school board chairman Peter Bunn said Monday night.

He was commenting on a meeting between trustees and the executive of the Greater Victoria Teachers' Association two weeks ago where, he said, teachers suggested they were not being given a big enough role in education planning.

The committee membership lists say a lot about how teachers are involved, said the board chairman. He said the GVTA claim was a "gross distortion."

The teachers on the committee are invited to take part as individuals, John Smith, president of the 1,260-member Greater Victoria Teachers' Association, said Tuesday. They are under no obligation to report to the GVTA.

At the meeting Nov. 5, executive members of the teachers' association pressed for GVTA representation on the committees.

The whole point of their case was to offer the association's services, not to demand anything, said Mr. Smith.

"What the GVTA is asking is to be a part of the decision-making process in areas affecting teaching and the learning situation."

Indian Bands Rap Province For Infringing

CHILLIWACK, B.C. (CP) — Indian delegates to talks on revision of the Indian Act Tuesday accused the federal government of failing to protect Indians from "provincial encroachment."

Spokesmen for 15 Fraser Valley bands and 16 Squamish area bands said the British Columbia government was treating them unfairly.

The Fraser Valley group's brief said that an "appalling rule of thumb" is being applied to provincial and municipal tax collections from non-Indians who lease Indian land.

The brief also said federal Indian education grants to provincial authorities have often gone astray, adding that "the present trend in Indian affairs is to transfer more and more authority to the province without consulting the Indian people.

The Squamish Indians said the federal government had failed badly to meet its obligations as trustees of Indian land.

"Over the past hundred years, encroachment by the province and many other agencies and individuals on our lands and our rights have continued at a steady pace," they said in a statement.

Some delegates said they believed that the tough line taken by delegates would lead to a direct confrontation between federal and provincial authorities.

They based their observations on comments last week by John Chretien, minister of Indian affairs, who said he would support valid Indian land claims in B.C. even if it meant fighting Premier W. A. C. Bennett.

MASS MEDIA STUDY AIM OF SENATOR

OTTAWA (CP) — Senator Keith Davey (L — Ontario) gave notice in the Senate Tuesday that he will present a motion Dec. 3 seeking establishment of a special Senate committee to study the ownership and control of mass communication in Canada.

The committee would particularly examine the impact and influence of such communication on the public.

Senator Davey declined in an interview to explain further his proposed motion. He said he will be speaking to it when it comes up for debate.

Informer On Mafia Under Guard

TROY, Mich. (AP) — A reputed police informer on Detroit-area Mafia activities, Peter Lazaros, is under "protective custody in his home" in suburban Troy, Michigan Attorney General Frank J. Kelley confirmed Tuesday.

The Detroit News says it learned Michigan police and Internal Revenue Service investigators have been dispatched as far away as Florida in an investigation of statements attributed to Lazaros that Oakland and Macomb county law enforcement officials and Detroit police officials accepted bribes.

The paper says it had learned from an "authoritative source" that Lazaros, in interrogation sessions with investigators, described himself as a "fixer" for the Mafia.

Student Rights Study 'Needed at Universities'

A University of Victoria student Tuesday hailed an announced national study of student rights.

"I think it's good," said Rhys Phillips, students' council executive vice-president. "It is certainly needed at some universities."

The study, announced by two national university organizations this week, will investigate the student's position at various schools and recommend general principles on disciplinary policy, guarantees for academic freedom and civil rights.

It will be headed by Prof. C. B. MacPherson, president of the Canadian Association of University Teachers.

Two professors and two representatives from the Canadian Union of Students will form the study committee. No deadline for a report has been set.

"There seems to be a real need to do something about the student's place in universities," Mr. Phillips said.

"We don't have a problem with discipline here, but some universities do. In the east, some student editors have been fired for printing certain articles."

Student unions in British Columbia are believed to be the strongest in North America, he said, and usually handle their own disciplinary measures.

Some guidelines for academic freedoms of students are also necessary, Mr. Phillips said. Universities sometimes discipline students for activities off campus, such as demonstrations or marches.

"This would protect the student from actions of the administration," he said.

Prof. MacPherson said, in announcing the committee, it may gather information from local groups of CAUT or CUS, or visit the universities.

DON VALLEY BATTLE COSTLIEST

OTTAWA (CP) — Money evidently was a major weapon in the battle of Don Valley.

Almost $108,000 was spent by two candidates in the riding last spring, making it the costliest arena on record in the June 25 federal elections.

Liberal Robert B. Kaplan, who won the seat, also emerges from incomplete statistics as the candidate who spent the most money in the campaign.

Figures tabled in the Commons indicate Mr. Kaplan spent $68,369.17 to defeat his opponent, Dalton C. Camp, the president of the Conservative party, whose spending was listed at $38,683.23.

Another costly battle took place in Winnipeg South, where Liberal James A. Richardson ousted Conservative Bud Sherman, outspending him $44,896 to $36,620. Mr. Richardson is a minister without portfolio.

In Calgary South, Liberal Pat Mahoney spent a reported $37,431 to defeat Conservative MP Ray Ballard, whose listed spending was $23,757.

The open wallet paid off in British Columbia, where Liberal Ray Perrault put out $20,000 to upset NDP leader T. C. Douglas, whose spending was listed as $11.360.

The figures were made public as a result of a request by Stanley Knowles (NDP—Winnipeg North Centre) and came from the chief electoral officer.

Agents for each candidate are supposed to file a report on election spending with constituency returning officers, who are supposed to send them to the chief electoral officer.

Electors in a riding may go to court to have a candidate produce the figures not handed in within a certain period after the election.

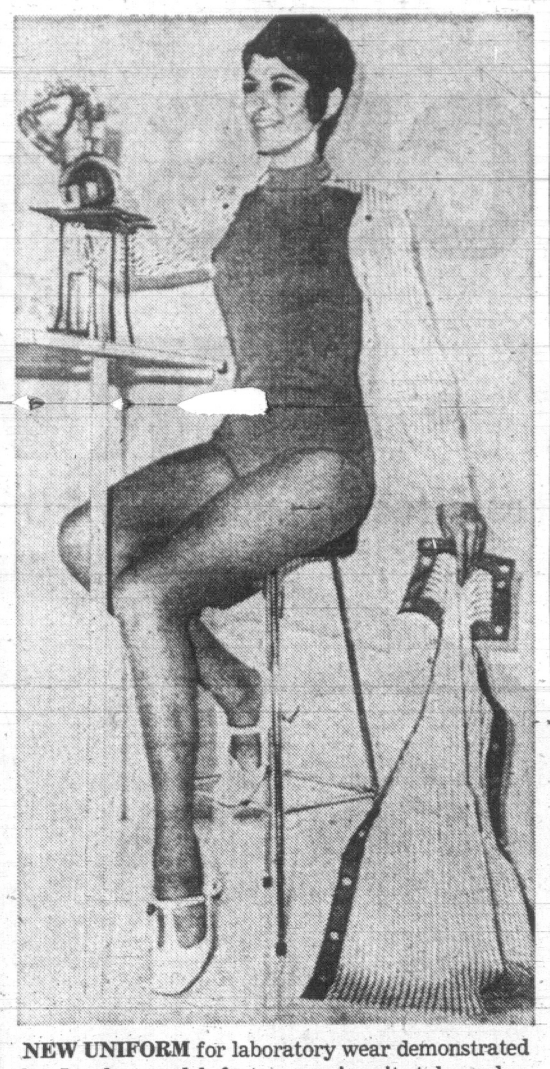

So far more than 700 candidates have filed reports showing total spending of more than $6,500,000. Another 275 or so have not reported.

The election expense reports aren't checked by anyone and are highly suspect by other parties as a result.

Election expenses at best are difficult to define and may or may not include party funds put into a riding as well as personal spending.

The second-highest account reported was by Liberal Robert B. Major, who sepnt $66,280 unseating Conservative Roger Regimbal in Argenteuil, north of Montreal. Conservative Frank Moores was next with $50,000 spent to defeat Liberal MP James Tucker in bonavista-Trinity-Conception, a Newfoundland riding.

At the other end of the spectrum, Crediitiste Leader Real Caouette reported spending $1,587 and handily defeated challengers who spent $17,000 and $14,000.

Waterloo University President Resigns

WATERLOO, Ont. (CP)—The University of Waterloo has announced that Dr. J. G. Hagey has asked to be relieved of his duties as university president.

In a statement to the university's board of governors, Dr. Hagey, president since the university was established in 1957, said he intends to step down from office because of health reasons.

Housing Starts Leave Doldrums

By JOHN CUNNIFF

NEW YORK (AP)—After having been frustrated for at least two years by rising prices and high borrowing charges, many potential American homeowners seem to have made a decision to act now and buy.

This at least is suggested by the recent high number of housing starts, a startling figure of 1,500,000 units for September. This was the highest rate since early 1964 and came as a surprise even to some real estate people.

For many months Americans had been delaying home purchases primarily because mortgage rates were rising sharply. But, as they delayed, they saw the prices of homes rise as fast or even faster.

In the last three years, for example, some young couples with their eyes fixed on what they believed was a $20,000 home have found to their dismay it now is priced at $25,000, or beyond their capacity to finance.

No wonder then that purchase decisions are being made. An inflationary psychology, never long absent from the real estate market, seems now to have won out over caution.

NEED MORE SPACE

Adding to the pressure for new homes is the fact that home purchases can not be postponed indefinitely. Growing families demand more space. Apartment houses, which in many sections are filled to capacity, fail to serve this need. And so, despite high mortgage lending rates, young families are buying.

Now that the housing market is beginning to show more action, some of the real estate people who were hurt when sales fell off, a few years ago are getting some slight gratification from telling the world that it was only a matter of time anyway. The boom was bound to return, they say.

Recently the president of the National Association of Real Estate Boards, Lyn E. Davis of Dallas, announced that the industry not only was back on its feet but approaching one of the greatest booms in history.

There is evidence to support Davis' contention that the U.S. faces a real estate boom.

In the year ended in August, the Real Estate Boards reported that the resale value of existing single-family homes, generally of three bedrooms, rose almost $1,000 to a national average price of $20,630. The same house a year earlier could have been bought for $19,662, and in 1966 for $18,685.

Farmer Wins Uvic Contract

A $1,719,500 bid for construction of a six-unit residence college for the University of Victoria was formally approved by the board of governors Monday night.

The bid was submitted by Farmer Construction of Victoria. The college is slated to open in September, 1969.

Spouse Tax Liability

TORONTO (CP) — If a company pays the expenses of an employee's wife when she travels with him on business, should that be considered taxable income?

It is, Montreal lawyer R. G. Decary told the Canadian Tax Foundation, even though "it encroaches on the personal freedom of a man."

"The value of travelling with a wife is wholly personal and may vary from one individual to another one."

Mr. Decary suggested it would be more appropriate if the government were to provide that "if the employee refuses to travel with his wife, he should be entitled to a tax-free allowance for cases of emergency of any nature."

Range of Bids Wide For PGE's Extension

Twelve companies submitted a wide range of bids for clearing, grubbing and fencing the first leg of the Pacific Great Eastern Railway's extension ho Fort Nelson.

Lowest bidder was Peter Kiewit Sons Company of Canada Ltd. which submitted a tender of $2,240,500, it was announced today.

The other bids ranged up to a high of $3,485,220 tendered by Attache Construction Ltd. of Fort St. John.

The project covers only the first 73 miles of the planned 250-mile extension from Fort St. John to Fort Nelson, near the Northwest Territories border.

The entire extension is scheduled for completion within three years.

Road Washed Out

PRINCE RUPERT (CP)—The road to Granduc Mines Monday was washed out at Haida, 60 miles north of here, by the flooding Salmon River. Mining operator Carl Wickstrom said water has covered the road and no traffic is getting through to the mines, 520 miles north of Vancouver.

Yuletide Postal Solution

By ELIZABETH FORBES

A friend of mine recently came to a firm decision. She would not, she said, send out local cards this Christmas. The six-cent postal rate had her stymied.

Forbes

"After all," she told me, "I'll see most of the people I've sent cards to in the past, before Christmas. I'll extend my wishes personally when I do see them."

It sounded like such a good idea I decided to follow suit. I, too, would do my thing, as today's youth would say, whenever and wherever I met those friends to whom I had always sent cards.

Of course I did reason it would mean commencing fairly early. After all, you cannot be certain you'll meet all your friends in the last days before Christmas.

Logical starting point was my address book. I looked it over. Sorted out the local names and fixed them firmly in my mind. Then, last week, I set out to extend my greetings.

First person I encountered was a family friend. I hadn't seen her for months. So, it was natural to rush up, tell her how pleased I was to see her, then plant a hearty kiss on her cheek and warble "Merry Christmas."

Her eyebrows went up at least a quarter of an inch. In the process, her hat slipped high on her forehead.

"Christmas!" she said with a vague sort of stare. "Why! It's still more than a month away."

"It's coming! It's coming!" I insisted as I rushed off to catch a green light.

★ ★ ★

When I looked back from the far side of the street she was still standing there, hat a little out of plumb and staring over at me with a puzzled frown.

I really don't think she got the point.

In the next block I met another couple of friends. "Merry Christmas!" I chortled as I shook both their hands.

"Aren't you rushing it a bit, dearie?" said the man in this twosome. His wife merely glared at me.

"Well, you know the old adage . . . shop early!" I gave him back.

"What's that got to do with it?" he wanted to know.

Actually, I wasn't sure what it did have to do with it. So, I backed away and in doing so bumped into a tall, good looking executive type, carrying a briefcase.

Quick on the reflex action I said "Merry Christmas!"

"Merry Christmas to you!" he answered with a grin.

I didn't even know him.

The couple to whom I'd been talking watched this encounter in silent wonder. Then, rather sadly (I sensed), they shook their heads and walked on.

★ ★ ★

My next effort was in a department store. I was on the up escalator. Two friends went by on the down side. We were well separated when I shouted back at them "Merry Christmas!"

With the words I became the centre of attention. It seemed as if a silence descended on the store. Indeed, I wouldn't have been surprised if the escalators had stopped.

I stumbled off at the next floor and lost myself in the china department. When a pretty girl came up and asked if she could help me, all I could think to whisper was "Merry Christmas!"

"Not here," she answered, "It's over behind the piece goods."

That finished me I crept back to the escalator. Rushed out of the store. Found my car and high-tailed it for home.

★ ★ ★

Immediately I started to make out my local Christmas card list. I stretched my budget to include six-cent stamps for the lot.

Yesterday I picked up the cards. Today I intend to start addressing them.

Into the bargain I've made up my mind that I'll not offer further good wishes to anyone I meet until we are bang up against the Yuletide.

That is with this exception. In case I miss sending any of my friends a card between now and the 25th of December I'd better say here and now (and for the last time) . . . "Merry Christmas!"

Chemical Sweeteners Safety Queried

By VICTOR COHN

WASHINGTON (WP) — A new question about the safety of the cyclamates—chemicals used to sweeten Americans' diet drinks and many other diet foods—has been raised by U.S. Food and Drug Administration animal studies.

A breakdown chemical called cyclohexylamine is produced by these sweeteners in the bodies of perhaps a third of those who consume them. This substance may be a cause of genetic damage, the new research indicates.

This conclusion is not yet sure. The work is still "preliminary and inconclusive," in the words of Dr. Marvin Legator, chief of the FDA's new cell biology branch.

But the potentially serious fact, he reports, is this:

In both test-tube and animal studies, cyclohexylamine in moderate amounts has caused "significant" breaks in chromosomes, little rod-like carriers of heredity within cells.

BROKEN CHROMOSOMES

Chromosome breaks in quantity, in response to realistic, reasonable stimuli, spell trouble to geneticists. Broken chromosomes usually produce nonviable cells, cells which cannot survive and are eliminated by nature.

But sometimes the broken chromosomes piece themselves back together—wrongly. Then the cells produce defective offspring, and if these are the sex cells of young men or young women, this can mean defective children.

The FDA researchers are far from ready to say this is now happening as a result of cyclamate consumption. But the research they have done is already raising serious concern among FDA regulatory officials and companies making and using cyclamates.

"There is no question but that this is a very hot finding," one FDA official said off the record. "A lot of people are worried, and this thing will have to be settled."

The FDA research was first reported to scientists in late October, at a Gatlinburg, Tenn., conference on mammalian biology and somatic (body) cell genetics. There, cell geneticists Kenneth Palmer, Kyle Peterson, Sidney Green and Legator told how:

CHEMICAL CHANGES

● Cyclamates are broken down in some persons—the precise number is unknown—into cyclohexylamine and perhaps other chemicals.

● Cyclamate alone, in their tests, failed to have any effect on the chromosomes of cells in laboratory culture (not in test tubes, strictly speaking, but in shallow lab dishes). The cells used were a strain of kidney cells of the rat kangaroo, a standardized strain commonly used in FDA cell tests.

● Cyclohexylamine, however, in what Legator calls "a low concentration for this strain," 10 parts per million, produced "significant chromosome breaks" in the cells in lab dishes.

Cyclohexylamine was then injected into laboratory rats. The animals were dosed every day for five days. Then they were sacrificed, and both their general body cells and sex cells showed significant increases in chromosome breakage, compared with cells of rats who got no cyclohexylamine. The response was "marked" with doses as low as 10 milligrams per kilogram of body weight.

Some biologists and medical authorities question the significance of chromosome breaks in laboratory tests, and point out that "many chemicals,' even sugar and salt, can break chromosomes.

IMPRACTICAL AMOUNTS

"This is true," Legator said in an interview, "only if you flood the cells in a culture with impractical amounts. In fact, most compounds in reasonable amount do not break chromosomes. A few do."

Among those "definitely shown to do so in animals" are, he said:

● The highly toxic and damaging alkylating agents like nitrogen mustard, used to treat far-advanced cancer.

● A mold-produced chemical called aflotoxin, a contaminant of peanuts. "It was common in our peanut butter products until 1961 or 1962," Legator said. "Now the peanut industry is well aware of it, and it has pretty well been eliminated."

● Captan, an agricultural and garden fungicide in current use.

● "Very probably" LSD.

Many chemicals in our environment have not yet been examined. Geneticists throughout the country are worried about this, and are calling for development of new and surer tests to assess them.

INTERIM REPORT

The whole question of the safety of the cyclamates and other artificial sweeteners (mainly saccharine) is now being examined by a special panel of the National Academy of Sciences, at FDA request. Its interim report is due in December, and a final report in mid-1969.

The interim report will not reflect the new chromosome findings, said Dr. Julius Coon, panel chairman and pharmacology professor at Jefferson Medical College, Philadelphia. "We don't have the data yet," he said. "And the chromosome business is a big mystery. It requires a lot of work before we know what it means."

Dr. George Berryman of Abbott Laboratories, North Chicago, Ill., leader in cyclamate manufacture, also said the findings need far more study before any human application can be made.

Should we or shouldn't we continue to use cyclamate products in the meantime?

BRITISH ACTION

Two British Ministry of Agriculture studies recently caused three major retail chains to remove cyclamate products from their shelves. But the British government took no official action.

The official FDA view, written in 1961, is that: "There is no evidence that cyclamates, at present use levels, are a hazard to health."

Use has increased greatly since, and some children—and diet-conscious adults—are consuming several bottles of diet drinks a day.

It is possible—FDA commissioner Herbert L. Ley Jr. said in a recent interview—that FDA, after seeing the National Academy of Sciences report, may revise its 1965 stance by setting recommended use limits and adding some cautionary information to labels.

DIVORCES

Nine divorces were granted in Victoria Law Courts Monday on grounds of separation for more than five years, as allowed by Canada's new divorce laws.

One was granted because of physical cruelty—another of the new provisions which became law on July 1.

Three were granted under the old law of adultery.

Divorces were granted to:

John E. Stokes, 1527 Cedar Hill Cross Road, from Patty C. Stokes, La Jolla, California. They were married at Alberni in 1940.

Christopher C. Bell, 3950 Cedar Hill Cross Road, from Shirley A. Bell, Surrey. They were married at Ottawa in 1962.

Opposition Invited

OTTAWA (CP) — If the provinces agree, the federal government will reserve places at the federal-provincial constitutional conference for representatives of the opposition parties in the Commons, Prime Minister Trudeau said Monday.

Replying in the Commons to George Hees (PC—Prince Edward-Hastings), he said he could not say whether the provincial government delegations would open similar positions for members of opposition parties in the various provincial legislatures.

The federal government's plan is to have places open at the Dec. 16-18 conference here for Commons opposition party members to sit in as observers.

Britain Will Maintain Arms Supply to Nigeria

LONDON (CP) — Foreign Secretary Michael Stewart says the British Labor government will continue to supply arms to the federal forces of Nigeria.

Responding to a number of House of Commons questions on the Nigerian civil war over the breakaway state of Biafra, Stewart said Monday the Lagos administration is still looking to Britain for part of its arms requirements.

"And it remains our policy to approve the export of carefully-controlled quantities of weapons of the kind traditionally supplied to the Nigerian armed forces," he said.

He declined to give details, saying such disclosure is not in the public interest.

UNDER PRESSURE

Stewart has been under pressure from the Labor party's left wing to halt the arms supply, but he gave no indication he would do so.

Asked whether he could give figures on the number of dead and dying on both sides as a result of disease and famine, Stewart referred to the British government's investigation last July when estimates were given of about 1,000,000 "in real need in the federal areas" and at least 500,000 in refugee camps "on the other side with many more outside them."

But Stewart gave no figures on those who may have died and said he has no further up-to-date information.

At another point in his written replies, the foreign secretary said responsibility for relief lies mainly with the International Committee of the Red Cross and the Nigerian Red Cross Society.

RELIEF GETS THROUGH

"The distribution of relief supplies has been difficult and frustrating, particularly in the Ibo areas (Biafra) but the relief effort now has gathered considerable momentum."

He cited a recent international committee report that 1,250,000 refugees, including 500,000 children, received food supplies in September and October.

Touching on peace possibilities, Stewart said the Lagos government is ready at any time to begin negotiations "provided that the principle of an undivided Nigeria is accepted." The Biafrans have rejected that principle saying a united Nigeria would lead to a federal massacre of their people.

Plunges to Death

NIAGARA FALLS, N.Y. (AP) —A middle-aged woman plunged to her death over the American Falls Tuesday, Niagara Frontier State Park police said. Police said an elevator operator at the Prospect Point Observation Tower told them he saw the woman climb over a railing and enter the Niagara River about 30 feet above the crest of the falls. The woman left behind a coat and a purse, which contained a compact but no identification, police said.

Sooner or later, that day comes, the day when a woman feels she's changing.

THE ACCOUNTANT'S ADVICE

Rigidity Risks

(This is a service provided by The Times and the Institute of Chartered Accountants of British Columbia.)

By EDGAR A. DOWNEY, CA

Credit control is a double-edged tool. It can be used to cut losses from bad debts but if it is too vigorously applied it will also cut sales and profits.

Where a business is selling the whole of its available production it can afford to be very selective and eliminate all potential customers where where is even the slightest risk that payment in full might not be promptly made. But if business is really that good the management should investigate the possibility of expanding production.

However, most businesses have idle capacity and need to increase sales to attain the full profit potential. An excessively stringent credit policy not only cuts sales by the amount of the refused credit accounts but may also discourage the sales personnel so that they may not try to improve.

The credit control must follow a very narrow path to ensure that it is neither too strict nor too lenient. Where the control is in the hands of competent credit managers who are educated in merchandising as well as in collecting accounts few problems arise.

Many small businesses, however, do not have an experienced credit manager and accounts must be accepted or refused upon snap judgment by people who have no training in the field. If this judgment causes credit to be granted too easily the results show up clearly in the bad debt expense. However, too often the eventual consequence of such a lax policy is to switch to the other extreme and refuse questionable accounts completely.

Such a harsh correction may appear to have accomplished good results in that the bad debt expense is eliminated but the loss of potentially profitable sales is not so clearly evident.

To examine a simplified example: For a business with a gross profit margin of 30 per cent of selling price, every dollar of sales will contribute 30 cents towards paying for the overhead. If the manager rejects ten potential $10 customers (i.e. $100 gross sales) because they each have a 20 per cent risk of not paying, he loses $30 of his gross profit. But his estimated loss by bad debts would have been only $20 if he had accepted all 10 customers. Thus, he has lost $10 more by being too careful than he expected to lose if he had been more venturesome.

Of course, in practice, assessment of credit is never so simple as an exact percentage risk for each account but the total bad debt results of a particular business can be compared with the percentage for the trade as a whole. A reasonable bad debt ratio is a normal cost of business.

DRAESEKE AGREES WITH FREE TRADE

VANCOUVER (CP) — Gordon Draeseke, new president of the Council of Forest Industries of British Columbia, reiterates Finance Minister Benson's call for free trade in forest products between Canada and the United States.

He said tariffs not only have a cash cost to customers of the protected industry, but also have a production cost to the industry itself.

Mr. Draeseke succeeded Bert Hoffmeister as council president on Nov. 1.

Finance Minister Benson issued his warning against protectionism when addressing U.S. international trade executives in New York on Monday.

The minister said that just as the free trade agreement in automobiles between the two countries was working out well, so to could a similar agreement for forest products and non-ferrous metals.

Automakers Criticized On Warranties

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Federal Trade Commission has released a controversial staff report that charges automakers with stressing sales at the expense of proper warranty service and repair operations.

A 1965 field study, conducted largely in the Washington, D.C., area, was the jumping-off point for the investigation described in the report, including extensive interviewing among the manufacturers and dealers.

"The report has focused attention on several problems," the agency said. "It concludes that many new cars are delivered to the buyer in poor condition; car owners experience difficulty in having repairs made simply and expeditiously, often causing them great inconvenience; workmanship in warranty repair work is frequently shoddy; and exclusions, limitations and conditions in the warranties are not made clear to the purchasers."

The commission itself has taken no position on the report, which is the work of two of its staff bureaus.

But it announced it will open hearings on car warranties Jan. 9 and may make some proposals to Congress.

Tobacco Firm Refused Right To Trade Mark

OTTAWA (CP) — A ruling Monday by the Supreme Court of Canada bars St, Regis Tobacco Corp. from using the trademark "golden circlet" for its cigarettes.

In a 4-to-1 decision, the court found that the proposed trademark could be confused with the trademark "gold band" used by Benson and Hedges (Canada) Ltd. for its cigars and cigarettes.

Benson and Hedges registered its mark in September, 1928, for cigars and in 1958 registered the same mark for cigarettes and tobaccos of every kind.

When St. Regis filed an application in 1964 for use of gold circlet, Benson and Hedges opposed it on grounds the two marks were confusing.

The registrar of trade marks dismissed the Benson and Hedges opposition but the Exchequer Court of Canada reversed his decision.

Mr. Justice Roland Ritchie, writing the majority judgment for the Supreme Court, said the two marks were sufficiently alike to "lead to the inference that the wares . . . were produced by the same company."

Chief Justice J. R. Cartwright in his dissenting judgment said it was unlikely that cigarette buyers would be confused by the marks.

Dosco Steel Sale Wins Approval

MONTREAL (CP) — The final hurdle was cleared Monday for the eventual sale of Dominion Steel and Coal Corp. Ltd. with Dosco debenture holders voting unanimously in favor of a purchase proposal by Sidbec, a Quebec Crown corporation.

The action opened the door for Sidbec to make a formal offer for the purchase of Dosco shares with the aim of launching an integrated steel industry in Quebec.

Jean-Paul Gignac, Sidbec president, said after the meeting that the formal offer for the purchase of Dosco shareholders would be made within a couple of weeks.

He said he expects it will take about two years to put the Dosco steel-making operation in the profit margin, and about five years to develop a healthy industry.

The meeting involed holders of $15 million Canadian worth of 5¾ per cent sinking fund debentures Series A, $15 million Canadian worth of 6 per cent sinking fund debentures Series B and $8 million United States worth of 5¾-per-cent sinking fund debentures series C.

Voting in favor of the transaction proposal were holders of $13.074 million Series A debentures, $12.035 milion Series B debentures and $8 million Series C debentures — for a total of $33.082 million. Not one vote was cast against the resolution.

Federal Role Urged

TORONTO (CP) — The federal government's lack of leadership in national development is threatening Canadian unity, the Canadian Tax Foundation was told Tuesday.

George McClure, director of the Nova Scotia program development agency, said the government's inability to solve regional economic disparities has increased the differences between various areas, creating a threat to Canadian unity.

He accused the government of having an "obvious lack of long-term goals and a tradition of responding only to crises."

Mr. McClure said that while various areas in Canada were at different stages of development, their economies should be considered on an inter-related basis and federal policy should reflect this.

Canada's regional disparities, he said, were usually associated with underdeveloped nations and if the government was unable to solve them the country would slip from the position of an intermediate power to the level of a "third-rate power."

He said Canada has the technology and the natural resources to eliminate regional economic disparity, but an explicit commitment is needed from the government.

FACES RISING COSTS

A panel discussion concluded that Canada faces at least another 10 years of rising costs for education, health and welfare programs and that inflation would continue to be a major factor affecting economic growth.

J. E. Osborne, director of research and statistics for the health and welfare department, said health and welfare spending by all levels of government has increased more than 200 per cent since 1957 and for the last fiscal year stood at about $6.5 billions, more than 10 per cent of the country's gross national product.

Mr. Osborne said it was difficult to forecast increases in health and welfare costs and it was still too early to predict the costs of the federal medical care program for the first year because too many factors were involved.

He said judging by the pattern among physicians in increasing fees every two years, medical care costs could be expected to rise at least 4 per cent a year.

Hospital costs increased to $75 per Canadian in 1966 from $46 in 1961, a major factor in the increase of total health costs.

Mr. Osborne said if the government's war on poverty is effective, many assistance programs might be reduced or phased out by 1978 to keep spiralling health and welfare costs down.

In a discussion on business income, a panel of accountants and lawyers agreed that existing tax laws and regulations are too vague in many areas for businessmen to be able to act with certainty in planning.

SEES SOME CHANGES

Delegates were told the government must establish clearer guidelines in determining business income for taxation purposes, but Edwin C. Harris of Dalhousie University's faculty of law said there had been some encouraging developments in the last four years.

Mr. Harris said many points of uncertainty still remained to be clarified and improvements made in the capital cost allowance provisions.

"We may hope that the long-awaiting process of major tax reform, when it finally begins, will not lead to an indefinite postponement of attention to the less glamorous but no less pressing need for a thorough review of the capital cost allowance rules," he said.

Frank D. Jones of the University of Alberta's law faculty said problems involved in assessing the value of goodwill in commercial transactions is another area where clarification is needed.

"In my opinion our courts in the past have not completely understood the broader meaning of goodwill," he said. "This has given rise to unfortunate judicial concepts which have muddied still further the waters which are at the best of times anything but clear."

Mr. Jones said customer-oriented thinking by the courts as to the fundamental meaning of goodwill has given rise to many problems.

Perennial Wheat Developed?

MOSCOW (AP) — Soviet scientists have developed a perennial wheat that yields several harvests from a single planting, the newspaper Rural Life reports.

It says the problem of creating perennial wheat has been solved in principle and "constant forms of perennial wheat representing a new species have already been created."

The article says the perennial was developed by crossing wheat and couch grass.

Tax Proposal Attacked

TORONTO (CP) — Delegates at the annual conference of the Canadian Tax Foundation Monday attacked a federal government proposal to permit tax exempt transfer of property between husband and wife.

Critics described the proposal as a carrot dangled before wives, which could lead to unexpected tax pitfalls and might even encourage relationships without marriages after the death of a husband.

In his October budget, Finance Minister Benson proposed that gifts and bequests between husband and wife should be free of tax. But the proposal was coupled with suggestions for higher rates of tax on transfers made outside the family unit—to persons other than a husband or wife.

Michael B. Jameson of McCarthy and McCarthy, a Toronto law firm, told the conference that while there are obvious benefits to a wife under the proposal, the benefits may easily be lost if a will is incorrectly drawn.

If a husband leaves his entire estate to his wife, or if he leaves his estate in trust under a provision in which the wife, and only his wife, has lifetime rights to the estate, there will be no tax. But if the children share in the income or capital during the wife's life, the exemption will be lost.

COULD CAUSE TROUBLE

Many wills contain a clause providing that the surviving spouse must survive for 30 or 60 days before taking over the property. Mr. Jameson said that such a common disaster clause would disqualify a bequest from the exemption because the bequest would not be absolute.

Similarly, a remarriage clause in a will, under certain circumstances, would cause the exemption to be lost.

If a will provides for encroachment on capital for the benefit of children, the tax exemption might also be lost, Mr. Jameson said.

"This certainly puts a premium on a testator providing for the education of his children. Nor can he provide for his mother—unless this is completely separate from his provision for his wife."

NEW PRESIDENT . . .

. . . SEEKS FAN SUPPORT

Bob Fenton Leaves Royals

By ERNIE FEDORUK

When New Westminster Royals drop around in a few days, Victoria fans may notice a few changes in the B.C. Junior Hockey League squad.

Royals, who play in Memorial Arena next Tuesday, and Bob Fenton have parted company.

Fenton, the Royals' manager-coach for 11 years before turning the coaching assignment to Bobby Love this season, has resigned as general manager following a heetic directors' meeting.

Dick Spring has been named to succeed Fenton. President Derek Williams and vice-president Gerry Payment also resigned with Fenton as the result over arguments concering club operations.

The new club president is Steve McDonald, who infers that Royals need to take a "hard look" at fan support and promotion of junior hockey in New Westminster.

"Our immediate need is fan support," said McDonald. "We just can't survive on crowds of 150 fans, and that's about all that we have been getting." McDonald feels Royals need to average 300 fans a game "to break even."

Westminster's new directors, who include Love as coach, feel there is no danger of the team losing or giving up its franchise because of financial difficulties.

Westminster has won its past two games and Victoria coach Doug Anderson tips his hat to Love.

"I don't think New Westminster has the talent it had in other years, but I can tell you that Love has his guys playing good hockey," said Anderson.

BUCKS HERE SATURDAY

At the moment, the Cougars are more concerned about Kelowna Buckaroos than New Westminster.

The Bucks make their second appearance in Victoria this Saturday evening and Anderson says all of his players "will be ready." That includes wingers Bruce Cowick and Len Barrie, who were among the missing last Saturday when the Cats clipped Kamloops Rockets 7-1.

Eagle Wants Room For Reed to Romp

CALGARY (CP)—Practice, including a 90-minute session in below-freezing temperatures, has been coach Eagle Keys' therapy for Saskatchewan Roughriders.

The Roughriders, shocked 32-0 in the first game of the Western Football Conference final last Saturday, have been on the practise field for 3½ hours and have held a couple of team meetings to prepare for tonight's second game in the best-of-three series.

The objective was to get the players back into the groove on blocking and other assignments for the 7 p.m. PST kick-off. The game will be televised on the CTV national network.

CREDIT TO CALGARY

Keys said Saskatchewan's offensive performance was inept in Regina last Saturday, but he gave full credit to the Calgary defence.

The Roughriders held a practice Sunday and then ventured into 15-degree temperatures Monday for an hour.

The field at McMahon Stadium was expected to be in good shape, a far cry from the frozen turf in Regina.

Telecast of the Calgary-Saskatchewan game will be picked up in progress after completion of the Toronto-Pittsburgh National Hockey League game which commences at 5 p.m. on Channel 8.

A Chinook has boosted Calgary temperatures to the 50s and warm air was being blown under polyethylene cover to keep the football surface soft. The temperature at game time was expected to be in the 30s.

Calgary split end Terry Evanshen, who sprained his ankle in the first game, was expected to make way for Bob McCarthy. Art Froese would come off the bench to fill in for McCarthy.

GOOD RECEIVERS

Calgary has four good receivers for Peter Liske's passes—Herman Harrison, McCarthy, Gerry Shaw and Dave Cranmer.

Keys, coach of the year in the Canadian Football League, said that if his club won tonight "I don't think they'll beat us again in Regina."

The third game, if needed, will be played in Regina next Sunday.

The thing to do tonight, Keys said, is to punch out some room for fullback George Reed to run.

JAPANESE HOCKEY CLUB TO PLAY AT ESQUIMALT

Esquimalt Sports Centre has been awarded one of the games to be played in Canada this winter by a touring Japanese team.

Sports Centre manager Joe Iannarelli announced today that the Japanese club is scheduled to play at Esquimalt on January 1, probably meeting an all-star squad from the Vancouver Island Hockey League at 8:15 p.m. Tickets will be sold in advance on a reserved-seat basis.

Approval of plans for the Japanese visit is expected at a Thursday meeting of the Esquimalt Sports Centre Commission.

Small Bottle May Unlock Derby Puzzle

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP)—A small bottle labeled 3956U may help answer one of racing's greatest mysteries: What really happened on Kentucky Derby Day?

From that bottle state racing chemist Kenneth W. Smith says he extracted a urine specimen which, under testing, showed traces of phenylbutazolidin.

Because the medication is banned at Kentucky race tracks, Dancer's Image was deprived of the first prize of $122,600 and his owner, Peter Fuller, is now trying to reverse that decision by Churchill Downs stewards.

CHANGED PROCEDURES

Smith, who has been conducting tests for the state since 1940, told the Kentucky Racing Commission Tuesday that he deviated somewhat from his normal procedures in checking this sample.

He also testified that he had been mistaken about some of the chemicals used in the test and went on to explain that in acidifying the urine he had used sulphuric acid instead of hydrochloric acid.

Smith said he did not reach that conclusion until several weeks ago while trying to reconstruct the events that occurred in his mobile laboratory at Churchill Downs on the evening of May 4.

'DIDN'T CHANGE OUTCOME'

Smith contended, however, that the use of sulphuric acid instead of hydrochloric acid would not have changed the outcome of the test on Dancer's Image.

Smith underwent vigorous cross-examination by Arthur Grafton, one of the attorneys for Fuller, a wealthy Boston businessman.

Grafton charged that the procedures used by Smith's laboratory were different than those followed by other racing chemists.

Grafton asked Smith if he had informed Churchill Downs stewards of the changes he had made in running tests on Dancer's Image urine.

Smith said: "I wasn't asked whether I had varied my procedure."

Under examination by Grafton, the chemist told of receiving a telephone call from one of his employees who informed him that one of the samples taken in the Derby was positive.

Smith said he and two other employees then met at the mobile lab at Churchill Downs and began running an involved series of tests on the questionable sample.

Broncos Balk At Trip

KAMLOOPS, B.C. (CP) — Tonight's scheduled British Columbia Junior Hockey League game between Kamloops Rockets and Penticton Broncos has been postponed, Rockets' manager, Don Brown said today.

He said the game was put off at the request of Penticton which did not want to travel the 100 miles from Penticton to Kamloops for the single week-night game.

He said the game would be re-scheduled for a weekend, and the Broncos would probably stay overnight and play a second game.

Brown said picket lines which have been set up around the Kamloops arena by striking Canadian Union of Public Employees workers also contributed to the decision.

Many fans have refused to cross the picket lines to attend games.

BERNIE GEOFFRION
. . . has a reason

Rangers Want Revenge For Shutout by Kings

By The Canadian Press

Coach Bernie Geoffrion and his New York Rangers have a couple of good reasons for wanting to trounce Los Angeles Kings tonight.

The Rangers hold a one-point edge over the runner-up Montreal Canadiens in the National Hockey League's Eastern Division and may need the win to maintain their hold on first.

You have to go back to Nov. 6 to come up with the second reason. That was the night in Los Angeles when the Kings and their rookie goaltender Gerry Desjardins blanked the Rangers 2-0.

That shutout was the first inflicted upon the Rangers in 60 games dating back to December of last year.

So Geoffrion, who refuses to take defeat lightly, would like nothing better than to watch his Rangers defeat the Kings at New York—and by a wide margin.

In other games tonight, Pittsburgh Penguins visit Toronto Maple Leafs, Oakland Seals are at St. Louis Blues, Detroit Red Wings are the guests of Montreal Canadiens and Minnesota North Stars are at home to Chicago Black Hawks.

Goaltender Jacques Plante is playing an importtant role with the Western Division leaders—St. Louis Blues.

Plante, 39, who came out of retirement this season after a three-year layoff, has played in 10 of the Blues' 17 games and posted a goals-against average of 2.02. He must receive much of the credit for the Blues' four-point margin over second-place Minnesota and Philadelphia.

Another goaltender received plenty of attention Tuesday. He is Jan Marek, 21, from Czechoslovakia, who practised with Toronto.

Marek, a former player with Sparta Prague in the Czechoslovakia First Division and the Czech junior national team, escaped from Prague by train during the Russian invasion.

But it is unlikely Marek ever will play for Toronto. It may be difficult to obtain his release from Sparta because the Canadian Amateur Hockey Association has an agreement with European clubs not to pick up players unless they have a release from their teams.

Also the Toronto system is crammed with goaltenders — three with the Maple Leafs, three with Rochester of the American Hockey League, two at Tulsa of the Central Hockey League.

SAANICH HOCKEY DEADLINE

Two nights remain for boys aged seven to 18 living within the municipality of Saanich to register in the Saanich Minor Hockey Association.

Registrations will be received between 6 and 8 p.m. tonight and Thursday at the George R. Pearkes Arena.

Only players moving into the area may register after Thursday.

More than 450 players are already signed and divided into 28 divisional teams.

EXPOS SIGN HOFFMAN

MONTREAL (CP) — Montreal Expos of baseball's National League have signed first-baseman Ron Hoffman, 22, to a 1969 contract.

Players Planning Selling Program

TORONTO (CP) — The National Hockey League Players' Association announced Tuesday it has entered a program aimed at producing hockey-related products bearing the new NHLPA crest.

President Norm Ullman of the NHLPA said at an association meeting that the Licensing Corporation of America has been appointed to represent the players in the field of endorsements, merchandising and licensing.

AIMED AT CHILDREN

Ullman, a centre with Toronto Maple Leafs, said the products will be aimed mainly at children and will include games, pucks, sticks, skates, foods and novelty items.

President Allan Stone of the New York-based licensing Corporation said he expects the program will exceed $100,000,000 in retail sales during the initial term of the agreement.

The program enables players on all 12 NHL teams to deal as a common entity with leading manufacturers in the United States and Canada.

The agreement will not prevent any player from making individual endorsements.

First United Clips Jayvees

First United bounced University of Victoria Jayvees 54-36 Tuesday night as the two junior clubs in the Victoria Women's Basketball League clashed at S. J. Willis Junior High School.

Jayvee star Trish Hadfield paced the scoring parade with 19 points but greater depth of talent paved the way to victory for United.

Diedre Ogden (15 points) and Margo Jackson (14) were the First United scoring leaders.

Card Bats Boom In Tour Finale

SHIZUOKA, Japan (AP) — St. Louis Cardinals slammed seven homers—two each by Orlando Cepeda and Ed Spiezio—to rout Yomiuri Giants 16-9 today in the final baseball game of their 18-game goodwill tour of Japan.

The National League champions finished their tour with a record of 13 victories and five losses.

Ted Taylor Paces Vancouver Victory

VANCOUVER (CP)—Vancouver Canucks broke loose for four unanswered goals in the third period to grab a 5-0 victory over Seattle Totems in a Western Hockey League game before 6,872 fans Tuesday night.

Ted Taylor led the Canuck attack with two goals and George Gardner came up with his second shutout of the season as Vancouver moved into a second place tie with Portland in league standings.

Taylor picked up his fourth and fifth goals of the season and John Gofton, Darryl Sly and Duke Harris added a goal apiece.

Following a scoreless first period, Taylor gave Vancouver a 1-0 lead at 46 seconds of the second period when he banged in his own rebound past Seattle goalie Don Head.

Head was brilliant even in the 5-0 defeat, turning aside 42 shots, 18 of them in the second period when Canucks hemmed the Totems in their own end for almost eight minutes.

Gardner came up with two sparkling saves early in the first period, but was not called on to make more than routine saves the rest of the way in the Canuck net.

Gofton gave Vancouver a 2-0 lead with his seventh goal of the season early in the third period.

Taylor then banged in his second goal on a pass from Murray Hall at 10:01. Sly and Harris finished off the scoring.

Totems, Oaks Stretch Hoop Victory Streaks

Victoria High Totems and Oak Bay remained in a deadlock for first place in the Inter-High School Senior Boys' Basketball League as they stretched undefeated streaks in Tuesday games.

Oak Bay made it three wins in as many starts with a 78-29 trouncing of Esquimalt while Victoria stayed in step with a 48-34 victory over Mt. Douglas.

Brent Mullin paced the Oaks with 23 points and Tom Holmes added 19 as no Esquimalt player made the two-figure bracket.

Down one point after the first quarter, Totems bounced back for a 25-18 lead at intermission, and led the rest of the way.

Dave Mulcahy led Totems with 18 points while losers were paced by Wayne Hatch with 12.

Mel Lohr came back with an 11:06-pound catch for second prize while Dorothy Horrel finished third.

THREATENS LEGAL ACTION

PGA Warns Golf Rebels

SUNOL, Calif. (AP)—The Professional Gofers' Association has announced a $50,000 tournament here for Jan. 9-12, and Joe Black, the PGA tournament director, says PGA members who sign for the conflicting $100,000 Los Angeles Open will face legal action.

The Alameda County open invitational, to be played at the Sunol Valley golf course southeast of Oakland, opens the 1969 PGA winter tour.

The Los Angeles Open will be held at the same time and the $100,000 Kaiser Open, at Napa, Calif., will take place a week later. Both have signed with the rebelling American Professional Golfers.

Black announced the Alameda tournament Monday night in a news conference at the Sunol course, and said Tuesday that injunctions will be sought against PGA members who play in Los Angeles.

"It's our legal position that they cannot play in the Los Angeles Open as members of the PGA without being in violation of their membership agreements," said Black. "It takes six months for a letter of resignation from the PGA to become effective—and we have none on file."

VETERANS TO PLAY . . .

. . . AT VANCOUVER MONDAY

Huff-and-Puff Hoop Special

One-night basketball comebacks will be plentiful at Vancouver's Pacific Coliseum next Monday night.

It will be "Hall-of-Fame Night" while the Seattle Supersonics and Milwaukee Bucks clash in a National Basketball Association game and special presentations by the B.C. Hall of Fame at half-time of the pro game will honor the achievements of British Columbia athletes in many sports.

Feature of the half-time festivities will be an old-timers' game, which will bring briefly out of retirement about 24 former hoop stars. Invited to play are veterans who were active in senior basketball 22 or more years ago.

The huff-and-puff special is shaping up as a renewal of once-bitter rivalries between Victoria and the mainland. Slated to be reunited are Art Chapman, Norm Baker, Doug Peden, George (Porky) Andrews and Richie Nichol, all former members of the national-champion Victoria Dominoes who formed the nucleus for the professional Vancouver Hornets 22 years ago. Chapman is listed as the coach and expects to obtain the services of at least one more Victorian—Hank Rowe.

Chuck Jones is listed as coach of the other squad and will have available a flock of one-time mainland hoop aces, including John Purvis, Brud and Ran Mathison, Jim Bardsley, Pat McGeer, Sandy Robertson, Ron Weber and Jack Pomfret.

Ranks of both teams will be boosted, but the noted veterans who are already listed to appear Monday helped win, over a period of 22 years from 1929, no less than 18 national senior championships. Hall of Fame officials believe they represent the most consistent dynasty of Canadian champions of any sport played in British Columbia.

MAKING DEBUT in winners' circle of Times' Bowler-of-the-Week contest is Rick Bate, who has captured men's tenpin award in seventh week of annual contest. Rick topped division as he staged blazing finish to roll 170-206-244—620 series in Tuesday's All-Star League at the Mayfair Lanes. The award qualifies Rick for Bowler - of - the - Year rolloffs next May.

BOYCOTT THREAT . . . . . DELAYS DEBUT

Second Setback for Penny

LOUSVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Penny Ann Early, whose debut as a jockey was delayed for the second time Tuesday, said her scheduled mount's trainer did not want male jockeys to boycott the race.

Penny was to have ridden No Deficit in the ninth and last race at Churchill Downs. She was replaced by Guy Smithson, regular jockey for the horse's owner, E. C. Ginsberg.

"He (trainer Clarence Breedlove) said he didn't want the jockeys to strike—he wanted his horse to run," Miss Early said.

The threat of a jockeys' strike came up last Saturday when Miss Early was assigned her first ride, subsequently scratched.

"Is it that they think their manhood is being threatened?" the 25-year-old blonde questioned. "That's the only answer I can think of."

She learned she had been taken off No Deficit when she went down to be weighed at 7 a.m. "I was never more disappointed in my life," she said later.

The second setback in her attempt to become Kentucky's first women professional flat race jockey has not stemmed her determination to ride.

"I've got plenty of heart," she said. "There are a couple of trainers who have said they'll give me a ride.

"It's inevitable, I'll ride."

Florida Jockettes Join Fight to Crack Barrier

MIAMI (UPI)—Barbara Rubin rubbed the backside of her tight jeans, stirred the sawdust with a toe, and talked about the revolt of the jockettes.

"They say you lose heart after a fall, but I don't think so," said the dark-haired 18-year-old who has the face and figure for a boutique instead of a stable.

While girl jockey Penny Ann Early was still trying to break the sex barrier at Churchill Downs in Louisville, Ky., this week, Barbara and petite Iris Coppinger were planning to slip into some silks at Miami's Tropical Park.

Barbara, who broke up with he jockey boyfriend because "he didn't want any part of me riding," planned to apply for a jockey's license under contract with trainer Bryan Webb.

Miss Coppinger, a 19-year-old native Miamian, planned to challenge the legality of the Florida State racing commission's rules which presently refer to jockeys as "he" and "him."

"I want them to put down in writing why I can't ride, and I've got an attorney," Iris said.

"Gee, I'm skinny enough," the 98-pounder said. "I'm kinda scrawny around the middle and you can't tell whether I'm a boy or a girl even up close."

Neither girl expected the resistance from male jockeys which marred Miss Early's debut with threats of a strike at Churchill Downs.

"The boys around here are really trying to help me," Iris said. "It's really funny.

"The difference is that down here there are so many riders. If some of them decide to strike, there are plenty of others to take their place."

Barbara, the soft-spoken daughter of a Miami Beach lounge owner and free-lance pilot, agreed.

Trainers and owners alike agree that Barbara, who has her own quarter horses on the family ranch in North Dade country, has a way with high-spirited thoroughbreds. When she started exercising horses for trainer Dave Harper in New England last spring, she was the only rider who could handle a problem horse named "Be Dashing."

"He was just nervous," she said. "I sang to him."

Dean Higuchi Defeats Tolos

Dean Higuchi defeated John Tolos in the feature bout of a professional wrestling card at Memorial Arena Tuesday night.

In other fights, Bobby Shane won on a disqualification over Dutch Savage, Kostas grappled Andrews to a draw and the tag team of Froelic and War Eagle downed Heidemann and Bence.

Lab Surge Cracks Tie With Red Lion

Labatts turned on the scoring power late in the first half Tuesday night and cruised into sole possession of first place in the Victoria Senior Men's Basketball League.

Labs erased a nine-point deficit before the intermission at Mount Douglas High School and went on for a 70-61 triumph over Red Lion Inn to snap a first-spot deadlock with the Lions.

In the second game of the doubleheader, Farmer Construction settled back in the last half to defeat Colony Inn 81-77 and leave losers on bottom of the league ladder.

By the intermission Labs had surged into a 36-31 lead and were never seriously threatened the rest of the way. Joe Patterson's 19-point effort sparked the win. Bruce Clarke chipped in 14 for Labs.

Losing Lions were paced by 18 points from Morris Douglas and 14 from John McKeachie.

Trailing 42-31 at the half, Farmers were paced to victory by Pete Simmonds (25 points) and Fred Gubbels (24).

Jim Cunningham led Colony with 20 points.

LONDON (AP) — David Hemery, gold medalist in the 400 metres hurdles at the Mexico Olympics, has been elected British Sportsman of the Year by this country's sports writers.

Lillian Board, silver medalist in the 400 metres run, got the vote as Sportswoman of the Year.

Pentagon Verdict Will Aid Yankees

NEW YORK (UPI) — The Pentagon's decision to release some of the naval reservists before the end of their two-year active duty commitment will help New York Yankees in the 1969 season.

The Yanks announced Tuesday that infielder Jerry Kenney, who's currently stationed at the navy's Pearl Harbor base, will be released in December and will be available for play next season. He missed all of last year while serving on active duty.

Since another infielder, Bobby Murcer, has finished his two-year army stint, the Yanks feel they'll be strengthened in the 1969 season.

"If both Murcer and Kenney make it, and we expect they will, we'll have our youngest and fastest team ever next year," said general manager Lee MacPhail.

Manager Ralph Houk said he may consider moving Kenney or Murcer to the outfield to make room for them in the lineup. Both are fast and good hitters although their fielding has been a question mark. Kenney hit .294 in Syracuse in 1967 and Murcer hit .266 in Toledo in 1966.

"It'll be a problem to figure out where to play them but it's the kind of problem you like to have," Houk said. "If Kenney hadn't been in the navy last year, we would have given him a full shot at shortstop. But Tom Tresh moved in from the outfield and did a job there. So, I can say we'll have some positions up for grabs."

Houk figures Murcer and Kenney can play short, third or the outfield.

Royals Enter Western Loop

EDMONTON (CP) — Vancouver Royals have been accepted as the sixth team in the Western Canada Soccer League.

Harry Skidmore of Edmonton, newly-elected league president, made the announcement after returning from the annual general meeting in Winnipeg.

Other teams in the league are from Winnipeg, Regina, Saskatoon, Calgary and Edmonton.

Clippers On Top After Scorefest

BALTIMORE (AP) — Sixteen goals were scored in a wild, free-skating contest between Baltimore Clippers and Springfield Indians with Baltimore emerging on top, 9-7, in an American Hockey League game Tuesday night.

Wayne Hicks and Keke Mortson led the winners' attack with two goals each while Billy Inglis registered three for the losers.

Quarry Scores Unanimous Win

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Jerry Quarry, No. 3 contender for the world's heavyweight boxing championship, took a unanimous decision over Willis Earls in a 10-rounder Tuesday.

Quarry, 203, from Bellflower, Calif., held the upper hand all the way over his 185-pound opponent from Austin, Tex.

Grid Eagles Suspend Talkative Receivers

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Pass receivers Mike Ditka and Gary Ballman, who were acquired a year ago to revive the Philadelphia Eagles' offence, both were suspended indefinitely Tuesday for statements to the news media.

The Eagles of the National Football League made no announcement of the action by general manager-coach Joe Kuharich, but Ditka and Ballman both confirmed that they had been suspended.

"I was called in today (Tuesday), by coach Kuharich and told I was suspended indefinitely," Ditka said.

"I'm on suspension and I believe I've been placed on waivers," Ballman said.

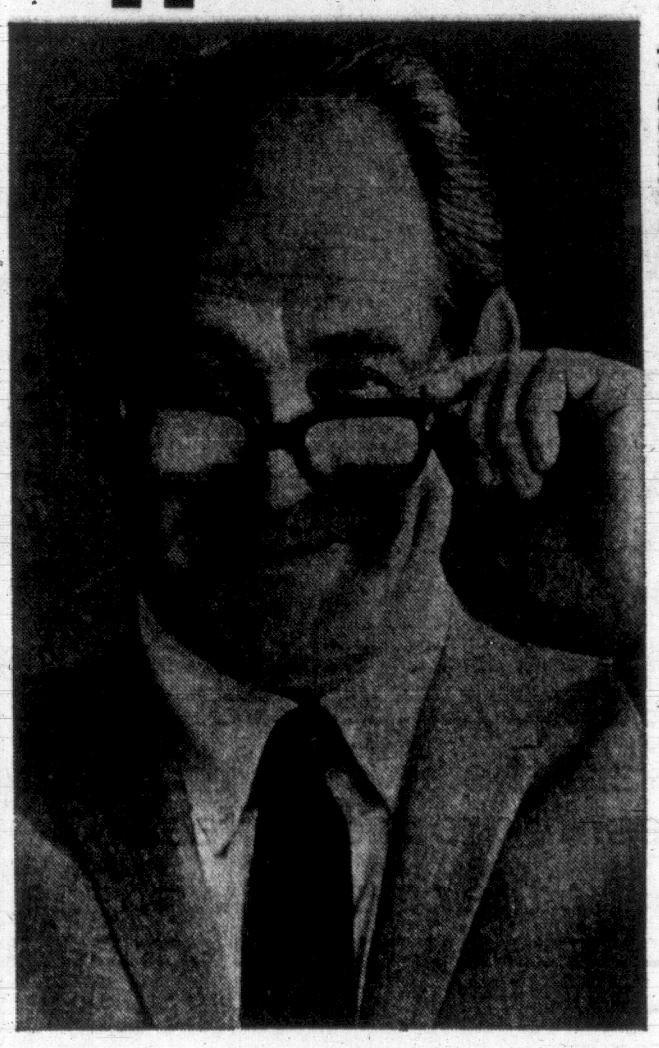

The 28-year-old Ballman, who was acquired from Pittsburgh Steelers in 1967 for two players and a third-round draft choice, said:

"Mr. Kuharich told me that I wasn't going along with the Eagles' program. He referred to several articles which appeared in the New York area news media in recent days."

Ballman, an eight-round draft choice from Michigan State by the Steelers in 1962, said the suspension was unfair because "I was misquoted. A different version of what I said appeared in the newspapers."

Ballman said he told New York sportswriters that Snead hasn't been throwing the long-ball to his side. He admitted describing the Eagles' offense as stereotyped.

India Pioneers Outdoor Prisons

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—India is building more and more open prisons.

This year a dozen open prisons were built in various provinces. In all, there now are 30 of them.

The authorities feel that open prisons help to rehabilitate criminals more effectively. Prisoners are said to be not only healthier and happier but pose fewer problems of adjustment.

Urban prisons in India are badly overcrowded. This has resulted in serious discipline problems. Officials feel that the only answer is to build new prisons in the country and shift long-term prisoners out of the cities.

A government commission which studied the operation of the central jail in New Delhi found that at one stage it had 5,000 prisoners as against its normal capacity of 1,300.

SOME GET FREE RIDE

The population explosion is also having its impact on India's prisons. As one official said: "More people means more crimes and more criminals. Our prisons are not only bursting with people but we have to release a large number of convicts before their time is up."

Apart from criminals, prisons have to cope with an unending flow of political demonstrators.

On a single day in Calcutta, 2,000 anti-government demonstrators were arrested. They included 300 women, some of them with babies in their arms.

Indian police have evolved a new technique to save prisoners from being deluged by purely temporary prisoners.

They arrest the demonstrators, put them in rans and set them free after a free ride around the city.

In some provinces, police vans take arrested demonstrators a few miles out of the city before releasing them. They have to walk back to their homes and this, it is felt, does them some good.

Red China's Western Trade Cut

TOKYO (Reuters) — Trade between Communist China and non-Communist countries dropped sharply during the first six months of this year, mainly because of the disruptive effect of the cultural Revolution, the semi-official Japanese Trade Organization said Tuesday.

It said its worldwide survey showed a 17.8 per-cent drop in Chinese trade with non-Communist countries compared with figures for the same period in 1967.

Trade during the first half of 1968 with 19 non-Communist countries totalled $1,163,972,000, it said.

The 19 countries are Canada, Australia, Japan, Pakistan, Ceylon, Malaysia, Singapore, Hong Kong, Norway, Denmark, Switzerland, Sweden, the Netherlands, Luxemburg, Belgium, Britain, Italy, France and West Germany.

The organization said trade with these countries accounted for more than 80 per cent of China's annual trade with non-Communist nations.

Co-Existence Enables Club To Aid Girls

Co-existence is the word at the Boys' Club of Victoria these days.

Executive director Ron Havard said today that two groups of girls will use the club two evenings each week on an experimental basis.

The junior girls, between 8 and 12, and senior girls, between 13 and 18, will learn cooking, sewing, arts and crafts and jujitsu.

For the time being, Mr. Havard says membership is limited to the sisters of Boys' Club members, mainly due to a lack of space.

He adds, however, that if the program is successful some thought will be given to expanding girls' facilities.

To raise money for their projects, the senior girls will hold a car wash at the Town and Country Plaza from 6 to 9 p.m. Friday and from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Saturday.

North Saanich Council Rejects Region Planning

North Saanich council Monday rejected a proposal that the regional district board take over the function of planning for the whole of the regional district.

At present this function is carried out to a certain extent by the Capital Region Planning Board. The city and Saanich have also individual planning departments.

Mayor J. B. Cumming said council's decision was based mainly on legal advice.

Aldermen contended there was a danger of North Saanich losing its authority over planning affecting the municipality, he said.

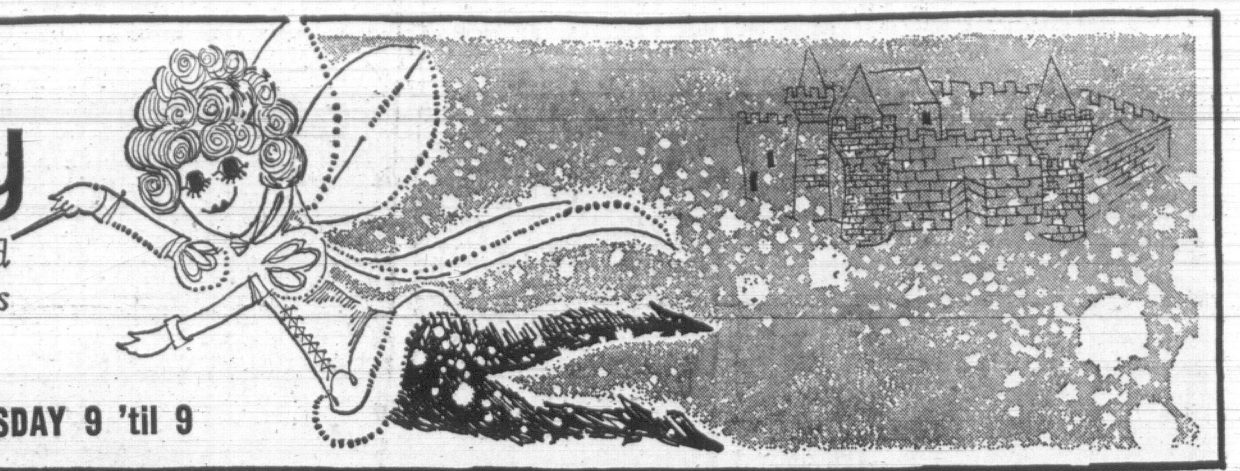

Central Saanich is the first municipality to oppose the proposal. Esquimalt and Central Saanich have indicated approval.

Professor Sentenced

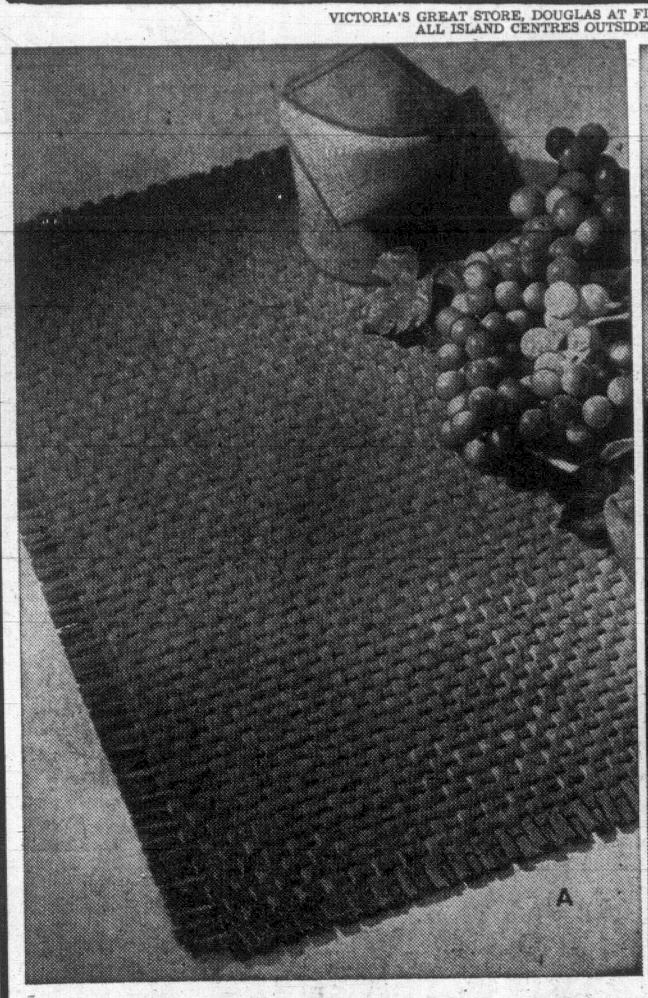

RICHMOND (CP)—A University of British Columbia assistant professor was sentenced Tuesday to one day in jail and a $1,000 fine for possession of hashish.

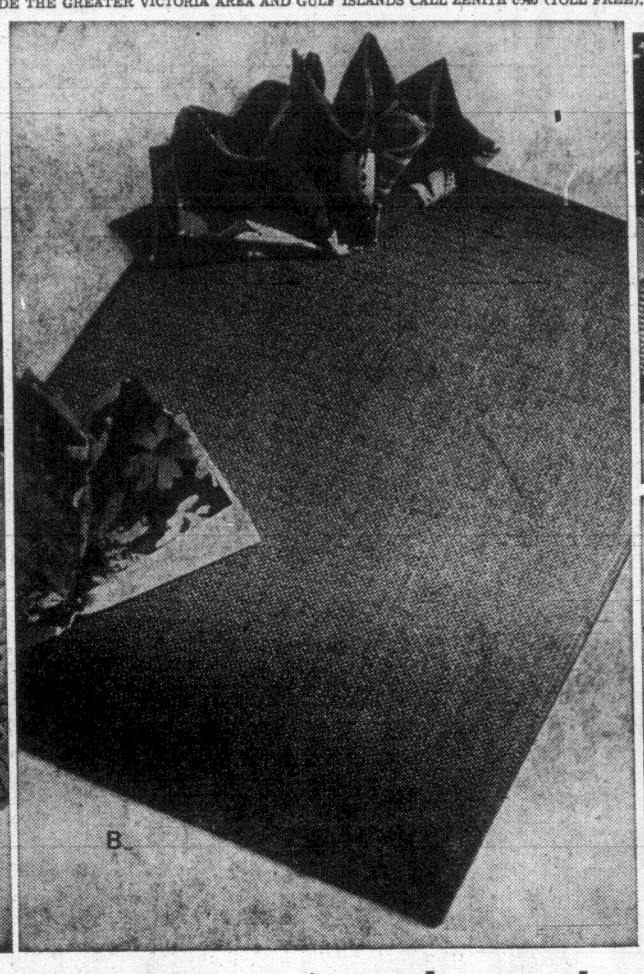

Eugene Lee Sobel, 26, was arrested Aug. 11 at Vancouver International Airport here after customs officers said they found a small quantity of the drug in his luggage on his return from a teaching assignment in Australia.

Record Salmon Catch Predicted

ANCHORAGE (Reuters)—Experts predict salmon fishermen in the Bristol Bay area in southwest Alaska can probably look forward to record catches for the next three years.

The forecast is that next season's total haul in the great spawning area will be the fourth largest of the last 14 years and three times that of last year. The prospects for 1970 are equally promising.

A recent disastrous fishing cycle therefore appears to be over, salmon researchers say.

Steven Pennoyer, a research supervisor on the staff of the state's fish and game department, expects an over-all run in 1969 of 21,100,000 coho salmon, a superior, firm-fleshed fish.

Of that, he says, 2,500,000 probably will be caught by Japanese fishermen on the high seas and another 9,400,000 will be needed for escape to the spawning beds. This will allow a catch of 9,200,000, more than three times the 2,800,000 taken in Bristol Bay this year.

There has been much controversy over the reasons for the increasingly poor runs since 1940. A good deal of blame is attached to the Japanese, who, it is claimed, kill many of the fish which should be allowed to return to the spawning beds.

On the other hand, others blame non-Alaskans who swarm north to make a quick fortune by depleting the resources once considered to be the world's greatest salmon run.

Others, such as Chuck Meacham, state director of international fisheries, say the cycles are natural. But they also feel work on escape protection and on the prevention of overfishing carried out by the government since 1960 is beginning to pay off.

Meacham says that, while the forecasts still are tentative, there are strong indications that big salmon runs are likely in the bay for at least the next three years.

Bristol Bay is a great indentation of the Bering Sea, framed on the south by a long arm of the Alaska peninsula which points west to the Aleutian Island archipelago.

Numerous smaller bays fed by several river systems are the goal of the coho salmon and millions of them swarm unerringly to their fresh water birthplace every year.

The whole run takes place within about six weeks and commercial fishermen, who by law must fish within their specified districts, work around the clock in the long summer days to earn their year's livelihood in that short period.

Stereotyped Appeal Loses Council Aid

Canadian University Services Overseas got exactly nothing from Saanich council Monday.

It was a matter of bad public relations.

First, CUSO made its request for a donation in a standard, mimeographed form letter—which drew comment from one councillor.

Second, the letter noted that any contribution would be tax deductible—which left most councillors thinking it was directed at individuals rather than at municipal corporation.

Ald. Alan Newberry said of CUSO: "In view of the student organizations we read about in this nation and the kind of havoc they're trying to bring upon us, I would like to know more about it" before making a contribution or recommending that other residents contribute.

Over the past few years, the organization has sent several hundred Canadians abroad to work in developing nations at the going wage in those nations.

The idea is to provide a cheap supply of missing skills, whether academic or technical.

Ald. Edith Gunning said CUSO is "an excellent cause, no doubt about it," but she did not believe the request for money was properly directed.

Denturists To Provide Welfare Aid

B.C.'s 100 public denturists soon will be allowed to serve welfare patients who want them to make their dentures instead of dentists.

That was the word this week from L. E. Lewis, president of the Public Denturists Society of B.C., after a delegation met with Social Welfare Minister Dan Campbell.

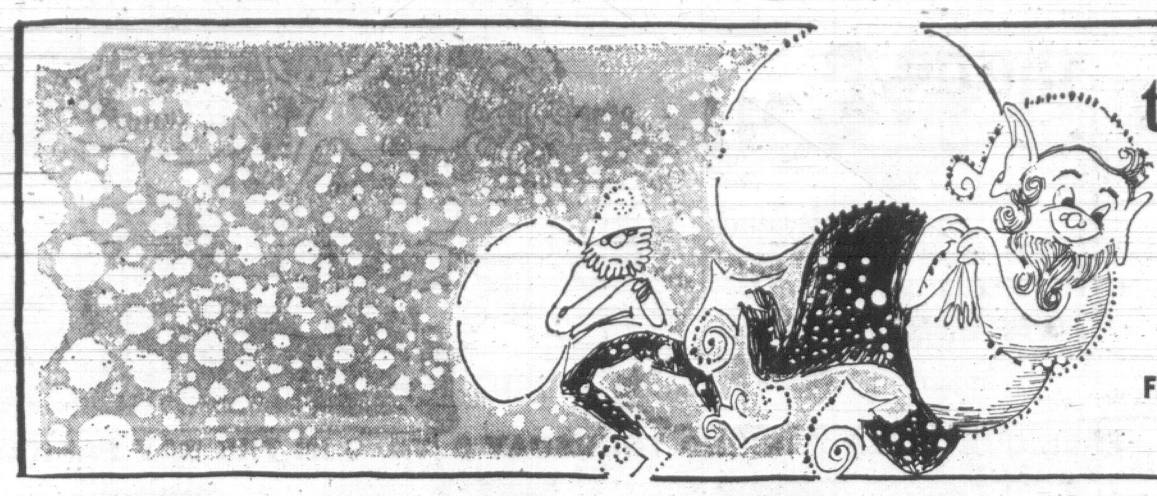

Mr. Lewis said that regulations at present prohibit welfare patients from going to public denturist and the delegation asked for change allowing them to choose—as the general public can now—between dentists and denturists.

He said Mr. Campbell agreed to make the change and the rates to be paid by the department for work by denturists in fitting, manufacturing and relining dentures as well as repairing partial dentures will be negotiated as the next step.

Envoy Plan Vetoed

LONDON (Reuters)—Prime Minister Wilson Tuesday rejected the idea that Britain should have a governor-general so that Queen Elizabeth could spend more time informally in Commonwealth countries. He told a questioner in Parliament there is no pressure from any Commonwealth country for legislation to enable the Queen to appoint a governor-general in Britain.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 20, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Once I knew a fellow by the name of Geoffrey who used to boast about the little blackboard in his family kitchen.

"Best reminder system you can have," he assured me. "I picked ours up in a toy department, brought it home, and told my wife, 'Now, anytime some little thing needs fixing around the house, you just take the chalk and note it on this. I attend to it, and you cross it off'."

As one who rarely does today what can be put off till tomorrow, efficiency in others has always impressed me. Often, as when our sink clogged after a month or so of warning gurgles, I thought of that memory-jogging blackboard.

Once I even mentioned it to my dear one. But she only smiled and sliced another carrot with the knife I had promised the week before to sharpen.

Not long after, we went to a party at Geoff's house.

I found him fixing drinks in the kitchen. He turned a tap. The sink drain gave out a prolonged gurgle.

"Be a pal, will you?" he asked. "Slip out and get some tonic water. I meant to get a carton on the way home."

His little blackboard was secured to the inside of a cupboard door by two screws, hammered in lady-style.

At the top, in neat round script, was "Clean Paint Brushes." The notation hadn't been crossed out. There were several other reminders of little tasks that needed doing, and a final one in a weary scrawl, "I give up!" That message had a line through it and a sputter at the end where the chalk had snapped.

★

The board, of course, was a mistake, and a wise wife would have realized the fact. All it did was serve to point up one of the average male's more amiable failings. His intentions are good when it comes to small, homely tasks, but he tends to falter in his execution.

He means to put a new washer in the hot-water tap, also to tidy up the garage and cart the clutter of old magazines from the basement. But there is this game he would kind of like to watch on TV.

Maybe he does lack a certain sterling quality of character, but this can also be a virtue. Geoff the putter-off was easy-natured as an old shoe.

So was a carpenter who once turned out such a set of bullnosed joints for us as I never hope to see again. His own house was close to falling apart, but I still remember him sitting with his arm around his wife in the shade of a willow tree. He, she, and their several kids were catching sunfish, and a happier family you never saw.

He had a gift for enjoyment, which is more than I can say for the "better now than later" type who once dropped in on us. A floorboard gave the merest squeak beneath his shoes. He stiffened like a bird-dog on point.

"Canary!" he announced. And nothing would do but that we traipse downstairs, where he showed me precisely where I should fit a brace between floor-joists.

★

The squeak took care of itself before I could get around to it, and for other fixit jobs that announce themselves, I follow a long-established policy.

This calls for a spell of waiting, in hopes that by some miracle the torn screen will mend itself, or the rake propped against the raspberry wires return to its rack.

But a time does come when even an artist in delay grows weary of putting off.

I came to one of those times this week, and am glad to report several minor repairs accomplished.

The man who grabs his tools and hastens into action the moment some home task presents itself is no doubt to be commended.

But the sense of conscious virtue runs much stronger when one has conquered the molehill he has allowed to grow to a mountain, and announces the fact in words like this:

"You know the doorknob that's been sticking for weeks? Well, I finally figured out that all it needed was a squirt of oil!"

Queen Makes 'Snap' Gift

Queen Elizabeth II is making a gift of 50 exclusive photographs to the city of Victoria next April.

The photographs, all of Queen Victoria, will form the nucleus of a special historic art exhibition to be held April 30 to May 25 to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria.

Professor F. W. Jackman, of the University of Victoria history department, is organizing the display.

★ ★ ★

The photographs promised by the Queen will be of engravings now held in the Royal Library at Windsor as part of the Queen Victoria collection.

After close to a month on display they will remain in Victoria as part of the city's archives.

In addition to the gift from the Queen the city has also been promised 11 original photographs of Queen Victoria and her family from the collection now held by Her Royal Highness Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone.

★ ★ ★

Other family portraits of Queen Victoria and family will be coming to Victoria from Dr. Roy Strong, director of the National Portrait Gallery, London, and from various other private collections.

In making the announcement of the Queen's gift Mayor Hugh Stephen said he expected the April-May display to be one of the most popular and historically important exhibits ever to be held in the city.

PHILIPPINE PHANCY DRESS was exhibited at St. Joseph's Hospital today at a women's auxiliary bazaar opened by Philippine Consulate General Felipe L. Lamdagan of Vancouver, centre. The nurses, some of them from Royal Jubilee and Veterans' Hospital, are also a practiced dancing troupe and gave several performances. About 40 nurses from the Philippines are now on St. Joseph's staff. Their message to their guest in their native language was "Mabuhay ang Victoria," in their adopted Spanish "Bienvienida en Victoria"—or simply "welcome to Victoria." Top row, left to right, are Marcelina, Bolanos, Mercedes Velasco, Susan Arroyo, Zeny Ragalado. Seated at front, from left, are Sheila Munieza, Eliza Castillo, the consulate general, Norma Caceres and Warlinda Filamor.

Militant Spirit Grips Servants; Mass Rally Set

By JOHN MIKA

Provincial civil servants plan to demonstrate their new militant spirit Friday in separate mass meetings here and in Vancouver to publicly protest arbitary discrimination by the provincial cabinet.

And there was talk that if the government continues to ignore their appeal for equal treatment, it will face an early and massive rebellion against the new Mediation Commission Act which threatens each civil servant with fines up to $1,000 for striking.

The Victoria meeting is expected to draw about 1,000 of the 2,500 civil servants in the downtown area.

It will be held between noon and 1 p.m. in the Crystal Garden.

Friday night the lower mainland branch of the B.C. Government Employees Association plans a mass meeting in the Pender Auditorium.

Norman Richards, BCGEA president, told The Times both meetings are intended to protest the fact that all municipal, federal and Crown corporation employees in British Columbia have the right to bargain collectively but the provincial cabinet continues to refuse this right to its civil servants.

He said it was discrimination, intensified by the fact that employees of provincial Crown corporations such as the B.C. Hydro and Pacific Great Eastern Railway have the right to bargain collectively.

"We are the only ones in the province who don't have bargaining rights and that's what we want to bring to the attention of the government again, and to the public on Friday," he said.

Meeting 'On Our Time'

Mr. Richards pointed out the mass meetings will be conducted "on our own time" during the lunch-hour here and after work in the lower mainland.

And he added that the meetings were not to be construed as parallels to the brief 1959 strike by the provincial civil servants over the same issue which was stopped within minutes by a government application for a court injunction.

Since then, the government amended legislation to outlaw strikes by its civil servants but there was a hint at the BCGEA convention this fall that it may find itself facing an illegal strike if it continues to refuse the right to bargain to its employees.

Alex Brady, president of the Victoria BCGEA branch, this morning fortified that hint as he began distribution of leaflets announcing the mass meeting call for the Crystal Gardens.

Mr. Brady said apprentice electricians outside of government service are now able to make higher wages than journeymen electricians in provincial employ and this situation is repeated in many other occupations.

He said the government has simply used its power to establish a law which would enable it to continue unjust treatment of its employees on a discriminatory basis.

"We will have speakers at this meeting Friday and there may be some demonstrations — if the people want it, we may take a walk from the Gardens.

'Driving Us to Strike'

Mr. Brady said the protest meeting will exhaust the last legal avenue the civil servants have of seeking redress and if it also produces no results, it will be a case of "the government driving us to a strike.

"This (the meeting) is the last thing we've got. To go any further we will have to break the law."

The meeting leaflets invite all B.C. civil servants, whether BCGEA members or not, to show up for the protest against the government policy which "has fostered a continuing cheap-labor policy upon its employees."

The association, which won back dues checkoff which had been taken away from it by cabinet order after the 1959 strike, now has about 12,000 members out of the 23,000 government employees in the province. But between 4,000 and 5,000 civil servants are in the professions and not considered potential members.

Mr. Brady issued a press release recounting the recent history of a simmering wage dispute that began last December when Premier Bennett publicly backed up a government contention that B.C. civil servant pay should be "comparable" to that of civil servants in other provinces and not to the pay of British Columbians in similar vocations.

In February a mass meeting of 1,000 Victoria civil servants demanded a fact-finding committee and subsequently, at the BCGEA's request, a special cabinet committee of Works Minister Chant, Education Minister Brothers and Trade Minister Skilling heard the association's argument.

"This appeal was rejected outright and the honorable the prime minister stated to the news media that comparability was acceptable but should be based on comparability with other provinces," the Victoria branch press release said.

"Our position re this statement is simple — we live in B.C., work in B.C. and expect to receive wages comparable with other workers in B.C.

"If B.C. government employees had accepted this type of thinking we would have been faced with a lowering of salaries at a time when cost of living was skyrocketing."

Go Mod With Your Odd Job!

Can the Mod Squad do it? Will they find enough jobs to put the United Appeal over the top?

They think so.

The 200 students from local high schools, University of Victoria, and the Institute of Adult Studies, who decided last weekend that the campaign will not fail say they are earning a dollar a minute for the Appeal. They hope it lasts.

Tuesday was their first day in business and they boosted the Appeal fund by $600. By noon today they had received an additional $180 worth of pledged work.

Other young people are also volunteering to do odd jobs for the Community Chest. Tuesday night 25 members of the Junior Achievement Program added their support and 160 students from St. Ann's Academy volunteered their services.

All they need now is more work.

Inquest Juror Fined $40

A juror who failed to appear at an inquest Monday night was fined $40 today by Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

Mr. St. Jorre said William Douglas Thompson, 1121 Catherine, paid the fine forthwith and was discharged from jury duty. He could have served five days in jail in lieu of paying the fine.

Mr. Thompson was foreman of a jury inquiring into the death Oct. 6 of Mrs. Dorothy Schofield, 404 Superior. The coroner issued a warrant for his arrest under the Coroner's Act after the man didn't show for the third and final session of the inquest.

The act allows him to impose a fine of $100 or 30 days in jail.

Mr. St. Jorre said the man was not arrested but was waiting at his office door when he arrived early this morning.

He said he thought the inquest was Nov. 25 and that he had checked with another juryman to make sure, Mr. St. Jorre said.

He was fined $40 because jurors enter a bond for that amount when they are sworn to the jury, he said.

Mr. St. Jorre said it was only the second time in four years a juror hadn't appeared.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you explain the function of the Senate in Canada? —D.S.

A. The Senate acts as a sort of "second chamber" to the House of Commons. It examines legislation put forward by the House of Commons as well as occasionally initiating legislation of its own. In order to become law, a bill must receive the assent of both the Commons and the Senate as well as Royal Assent.

'Look to the Land' Curtis Tells Loffmark

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was told today to take his eyes off the sea and look to the land for Greater Victoria's most serious pollution problem.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, addressing the Victoria Real Estate Board at a luncheon meeting, said the minister apparently does not concern himself with "such minor matters as malfunctioning septic tanks."

"I suggest, as many of my colleagues (in municipal government) have suggested, that Mr. Loffmark is a classic example of a man who has turned his attention in the wrong direction," Mayor Curtis said.

"He is looking out to sea when his first duty, when his primary responsibility, is to turn around and look inland."

MORE SERIOUS THREAT

Mayor Curtis stepped up his critical attack on the health minister charging him with a stubborn refusal to accept the fact that land pollution posed a far more serious threat to health and development than the possibility of sea pollution.

"Having taken this position he cannot, or more importantly, will not alter it, with the result that more than one municipality in this province is experiencing a period of intense frustration in attempting to put sewer pipes in the ground," the mayor said.

Mayor Curtis repeated his oft made charge that the Pollution Control Board and the provincial health department are at loggerheads on ultimate methods of sewage disposal.

"(This) will be vigorously denied, I am certain," he said. "But there is a very major difference of opinion now in existence between the Pollution Control Board and the provincial department of health.

"The battle lines have been drawn at least since last summer and the struggle will become even more intense in the months immediately ahead."

As a result of the impasse created at the provincial level, Mayor Curtis said planning in many areas was proceeding "by percolation — costly in dollars and land use, and something we shall regret in this community for decades to come."

Mayor Curtis was referring to provincial legislation which permits the building of homes on land where the soil permits subsoil disposal by percolation but will not permit expansion of sewer lines to underdeveloped areas until treatment plants are built.

He stressed that to his knowledge no municipal governments were opposed to sewage treatment before disposal.

"We say this: The best available, expert opinions, with no political axes to grind, with no power struggle to wage within a provincial cabinet, assure the Greater Victoria region that treatment before disposal is not necessary.

"Our attitude is, very well, if treatment is not necessary then we should not proceed to spend in excess of $16 million to provide treatment plants at this time."

But the mayor added municipalities should be acquiring land for treatment plants for future use.

SURE SIGN CHRISTMAS DRAWING NEAR

Japanese mandarin oranges went on sale in Victoria today for the first time this season.

The 2,000 boxes appearing in downtown stores were part of a 150,000-box shipment delivered in Vancouver recently.

Another 580,000 boxes will arrive in Vancouver Friday and about 15,000 boxes will be trucked to Victoria.

During the next few weeks, eight more ships will arrive from Japan to unload a record 3,792,670 boxes.

MAN ROBBED, ASSAULTED; CHARGE PAIR

Two men appeared in central court today to face charges of robbery with violence in which an 87-year-old man was assaulted.

Roderick O'Toole, 34, and Glen Gordon Wright, 27, both of Victoria, were remanded to Nov. 27 without plea by Magistrate William Ostler. Neither were represented by counsel.

ENTERING ROOM

Police said Yong Chong, of Suite 7, 546½ Herald, was about to enter his room about midnight Tuesday when two men grabbed him. He was hit a number of times and suffered a slight wrist cut, they said.

One man then held him from behind while the other took $32 from him. Police said he came to the station following the robbery with a friend and reported the incident.

O'Toole and Wright were apprehended about 1 a.m. at a motel on the Gorge Road.

Magistrate Ostler set bail at $2,000.

Saanich Rejects Rezoning Bid

An application to rezone McRae Road property to permit construction of apartments was rejected by Saanich council Tuesday.

The advisory planning commission recommended rejection because building at 1510 and 1516 McRae would isolate two single-family dwellings at the corner of Wetherby Road.

Suites Damaged In Night Blaze

Fire swept through two suites of an unfinished $525,000 apartment building in the 1000 block Pendergast Tuesday night.

No one was injured in the blaze which broke out about 8 p.m. in the 57-suite four-storey apartment being constructed by Yakimovich and Sons Ltd. A damage estimate was not available at press time but officials said it might be heavy.

Firemen said the fire started in a rear suite on the third floor and spread to the one above. Cause of the blaze is still being investigated but arson is not suspected.

The floor, interior and exterior walls of the suites and part of the roof was heavily damaged. There was extensive smoke damage in the hallways.

A scaffold on the rear of the building was also burned. Most of the flames were contained inside the building but a large amount of smoke was visible from the outside during the fire.

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said some heavy beams were burned and might have to be cut back or replaced.

He said the drywall was on the building and workmen were to spray it today.

City School Planner Seeks Saanich Seat

The planner for the Greater Victoria school district announced today he will run for a seat on the Saanich Peninsula school board.

John E. Hubbard, 44, of 4992 Lochside, is the second candidate for the rural Saanich seat being vacated by board chairman Mrs. Nora Lindsay.

Civil engineer Stanley Oakes of 814 Royal Oak said Tuesday he will also contest the trustee's post.

It is the first attempt at public office for Mr. Hubbard. Mr. Oakes finished third out of five when he ran as trustee a year ago.

Giant Headache With All Tenant Aldermen?

By JIM HUME

Changes in the Municipal Act which give tenant electors the right to run for office this year could also be creating a giant headache.

Until this year only property owners could be elected to municipal councils. Amendments to the act during the last session of the legislature cleared the way for any resident, whether owner or renter, to run for office.

The only requirement the renter requires is that he has been on the voters' list for two consecutive years.

And this is where the trouble could start.

Two years from now all municipal councils in the Greater Victoria area could conceivably have full councils elected from the ranks of home-renters.

All would be able to vote with full freedom on council business—but none of them would be able to vote on any money bylaws brought before the people during their terms of office.

The amendments, while clearing the way for free elections for all residents, did not make it possible for anyone except a property owner to vote on money bylaws.

"It could create a really serious situation a couple of years from now if a full council, or even a majority of council, came from the ranks of tenant electors," one senior city hall official said Tuesday.

"You would have a council pushing for expenditures say for a big road building program, for new recreation facilities or even for a capital budget.

"Presumably they would try to persuade the people to go for their proposals, but they wouldn't in the final analysis, be able to support those policies themselves.

"In other words they would be advocating expenditures which only applied to property owners, not themselves."

To date in the city no tenant electors have come forward as possible candidates for city council, but there is still time before nomination deadline Monday.

With four seats vacant on Dec. 7 Victoria has only four candidates as yet seeking office. They are Harold Olafson, Ove Witt, Ald. Cecil Parrott and Ald. Percy Frampton.

A fifth candidate, Joseph Richards, is still hoping to file his papers before the deadline.

Youngsters Plot Christmas Caper

By PENNY SAVER

I have always preferred working behind the scenes. I feel that the frantic drama that goes into putting a show on the stage is much more exciting than the carefully controlled action the audience sees. That is why I am particularly glad to be helping with a drama that will take place in a first-grade class room in a few weeks. The class has decided to give their favorite teacher a special gift. Knowing that I know her well they asked me to fish around and find out what she would like best. What they don't know is that she guessed their plan after seeing the delegation leaving my house. The teacher finds it most amusing to catch the guilty looks on the faces of the ring-leaders after they have taken advantage of her leaving the room to collect from their fellow class-mates. Meanwhile I am finding no little pleasure in keeping her on tenterhooks over the exact form her gift will take. We have decided that I will steer the youngsters onto a pen-stand (something they can see and feel proud of all year) but I refuse to reveal what sort of stand they will choose.

Actually at the moment I couldn't tell her if I wanted to since the children don't know yet what they will be able to afford. However, I have been casing the pen-stand scene so that when they do come to purchase one I will be able to show them how to get the most for their money. Just the other day I was looking at some pen-stands that are all made with a marble slab base. These stands range from $4.25 for the simplest single pen-stand to $12 for a double pen-stand with a perpetual calendar. All of these stands are very elegant additions to a desk and I feel that they are very reasonable in price. The marble comes in black, brown, white and gold shades, though I must warn my readers that not all styles are available in each shade. Most models have a brass plate for a name or other inscription. There is a nominal fee for having this plate inscribed which, of course, varies with the complexity of the inscription. The pens are available in brown or black depending on the color of the marble. These pen-stands make a wonderful gift for anyone who likes to keep a pen handy in style.

Tales of Canada

My teacher friend and I were discussing books for children when she mentioned one that she had heard being highly recommended for the 10 to 12 age-group. It is called "Storm Island", and it won an award in the Centennial Commission Literary Competition. The author, Jean MacKenzie, lives right here in Victoria. The tale itself is set on the coast of British Columbia giving it a local flavor that should make the adventure seem even closer to the young reader. The $3.95 hard-cover edition includes a map of the locale of the story on each of the cover pages and illustrations of the text by Gordon Rayner of Ontario.

The Northwest Territories is one of the last frontiers. Here real-life adventure can still be found in the form of lost planes and daring rescues. It is small wonder that tales of Eskimos are popular with our youngsters. I found three of these books set in the Northlands aimed at children in the pre-teen years. One, "Akavak" by Janis Houston, can be read by children between the ages of 8 and 12 and could be read children between the ages of eight and 12and could be read to younger children as well. The tale of "Kavik the Wolf Dog" by Walt Mercer should interest children up to age 14, as will "Orphan of the Tundra" by Verne T. Davis. Vibrant black and white illustrations add to the interest of these books and they were set in a type that is easy for a child to read, but not so large as to be "babyish". All three of these books are available in hard-cover and all are priced around the $5 mark.

Please call 382-3131 if you would like to know where to shop for these items.

Mrs. D. H. Raymond (at right), a newcomer to Victoria is seen presenting a candy house she created to Mrs. B. T. Shaw, regent of Royal Roads Chapter IODE. The chapter will hold a draw for the house. Proceeds are earmarked for the G. R. Pearkes' Clinic for Handicapped Children. Mrs. Raymond reports the house took 3½ days to make. Full of candy, the house has approximately 25 pounds of candy, sugar and cookies in its construction.

DEAR ABBY . . .

Visiting Parents Get 'Bad Deal'

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: When we go to visit the son and his wife, they are always playing cards. No matter what time of day or evening, it's cards, cards, cards.

"Pull up a chair and watch," they say. Now Abby, I don't go to anybody's house to watch them play cards. I feel insulted. I say they should play out their hands and quit, as we stay only half an hour. My husband says they should go on playing. What do you say? — PUZZLED.

DEAR PUZZLED: If you stay only half an hour, I would say your card-crazy son and his wife are rude. Perhaps your son should have been introduced to a different kind of "hand" when he was younger.

DEAR ABBY: I have what most women think they want—a husband who does everything for me. He decides on where we should go and what we should do. He and a decorator did our house. He and his secretary pick out any gifts we have to send. They even select our Christmas cards. (He has yet to ask me how I like them.)

He disciplines the children, and tells them what HE thinks. He never asks what THEY think. They love him, but they rebel in their own way by taking it out on me and the whole neighborhood.

When I tell my husband our children have no friends, he says, "Nobody needs friends. They just have to be rich to get along in this world."

Well, at least the children have a way of releasing their feelings, but as for me I feel absolutely — USELESS.

DEAR USELESS: You don't say how long this has been going on, but I would guess it started the day you said, "I do." You only complain—you don't ask for a solution, which would indicate that you are resigned to your unhappy, "useless" life. I'm sorry for you, but sorrier for your children. They cannot "love" this tyrant, but only fear him. And kids, who fear their fathers make miserable fathers themselves.

DEAR ABBY: If I were to tell you that I am a young, unknown actress who became involved with a movie producer (divorced) it would sound like a made-up letter, but it happens to be the truth.

I am 23 and he is about 50. We've seen a lot of each other since we met four months ago, but he never promised marriage.

I just found out I'm pregnant. When I gave my producer friend the news, he said I shouldn't try to hang it on HIM because five years ago he had the operation men have to make themselves sterile, and his doctor will back him up.

Abby, it's GOT to be him because I haven't been with anybody else. I need to know this: Does that operation men have ever fail? I KNOW he's the father, but how can I prove it? How about a blood test? — IN A FIX.

DEAR IN: A blood test will only rule out who the father ISN'T. And yes, "that operation" (it's called a "casectomy") CAN fail if it has not been properly done. But if your producer friend wants to know for certain if he is still able to "produce," a return visit to his doctor for a sperm test will provide proof.

Everybody has a problem. What's yours? For a personal reply write to Abby, Box 69700, Los Angeles, Calif., 90069 and enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

COOKING CAN BE FUN By MARY MOORE

Tuna as Jambalaya Base

Forty students ranging from Grades 9 to 13 attended this cooking class in living color. About once a year, my friend, Iris Gillespie, invites me to speak to her home economics classes and demonstrate something that can be made as they watch.

Moore

I selected Tuna Jambalaya this year because it is good, goes together in a straightforward way and cooks in one-half hour. I have a beautiful avocado green teflon-lined electric frying pan which added to the attraction.

TUNA JAMBALAYA
(serves 6)

NOTE: All 40 girls had a small taste in 40 custard cups.

Three 6½-ounce or 7-ounce cans solid or chunk tuna (not flaked), ¼ cup butter (or oil drained from tuna), 1 cup long grain raw rice, 1 medium onion chopped, 1 medium green pepper chopped, 1 canned pimiento chopped (or 1 sweet red pepper or pimento), ¼ teaspoon thyme, ⅛ teaspoon garlic powder (or 1 garlic clove chopped), ½ teaspoon salt, ⅛ teaspoon pepper, ½ teaspoon paprika, 1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce, 4 cups hot tap water, 1 tablespoon minced parsley (or bottled flakes).

In large frying pan melt butter or heat oil and add rice and cook until it is opaque and straw-colored, stirring often. Now add onion, green pepper, pimiento (or sweet red pepper if used), thyme, garlic powder (or chopped garlic clove if used,), salt, pepper and paprika, stirring them in and gently sauteing until vegetables are limp. Add Worcestershire and hot water. Break up tuna a little into bite-size pieces, but do not mash it. Stir in gently to mix. Cover and simmer 30 minutes. NOTE: The water amount may seem excessive but it is not. In 30 minutes the rice grains have absorbed it and are all separate and tender. Stir in the parsley and serve.

All of the pretty green and red colors are bright and the flavor is delicious.

I hope all our novice cooks and busy mothers and career girls who want a main dinner course in one dish will clip and try this. One of my teacher friends is serving it to her bridge club this week.

NOTE: Equivalent amounts of cooked chicken, ham, shrimp, lobster, crabmeat, salmon or pork could be used instead of tuna.

Realized Less Than Reported

Mrs. Anna Somerton, general convener of the "Let's Build Bazaar," held by Trinity Presbyterian Church on Saturday, reports the proceeds were not $16,500 as previously announced. The amount should read $1,650.

Always Look Ageless

To get an ageless look, you must first make all the little age lines in your facial skin so inconspicuous they won't be seen by people at greeting distance from you. Or, better yet, get rid of them altogether. Ask your favorite cosmetician for a bottle of 2nd Debut, the lotion that women everywhere are calling their secret face lift. This lotion contains CEF (Cellular Expansion Factor) that expands underneath lines to push them upward so they level with the skin's surface and thereby become invisible. This smoothed-out appearance of the skin gives the face an ageless look that favors its wearer with an almost unlimited variety in her choice of clothes.

Beauty Cleansing The Skin

Many of the world's most beautiful women attribute the clear, fine loveliness of their complexions to the toning qualities of a special lemon cleanser that floats away all beauty - robbing impurities without depriving the skin of its natural beauty. The complexion immediately reflects the rewarding benefits as the cleanser is smoothed over the skin. Dry, ageing lines are eased and the skin becomes clear and softly endowed with a radiant bloom. Jelvyn cleansing milk is the perfect cleanser for all skin types.

Swedes Advocate Emancipation of Men

UNITED NATIONS (AP)—A new battle cry is being heard in the struggle for women's rights. Put simply, it's "emancipate the men!"

A Swedish government report to the UN on the status of women says any attempt to give women an equal place in the world without relieving their traditional burden of caring for home and children is doomed.

Thus, the Swedes reckon, husbands should be "emancipated" from their work so they can devote more time to cooking dinner, doing the wash, taking Johnny to the dentist and other housewifely chores.

Undoubtedly this would mean giving most men shorter working hours and educating and encouraging them to take a more active role in parenthood, the report says.

It even goes so far as to note a suggestion voiced in some Swedish quarters that fathers are entitled to leaves of absence from their jobs—with pay—so they can stay at home while their children are young.

SUPPORTS IDEA

"The government is well aware that this view appears revolutionary and unrealistic in the eyes of the representatives of many other countries," the Swedes admit. "A growing opinion in Sweden has, however, rallied to its support."

In a country where four out of every 10 workers are women and 70 per cent of its women hold jobs of some sort, the problem of working mothers in Sweden is a burning public issue.

This lively debate, the report says, has fostered a new approach involving a break from the traditional habit of regarding these problems strictly as "women's question."

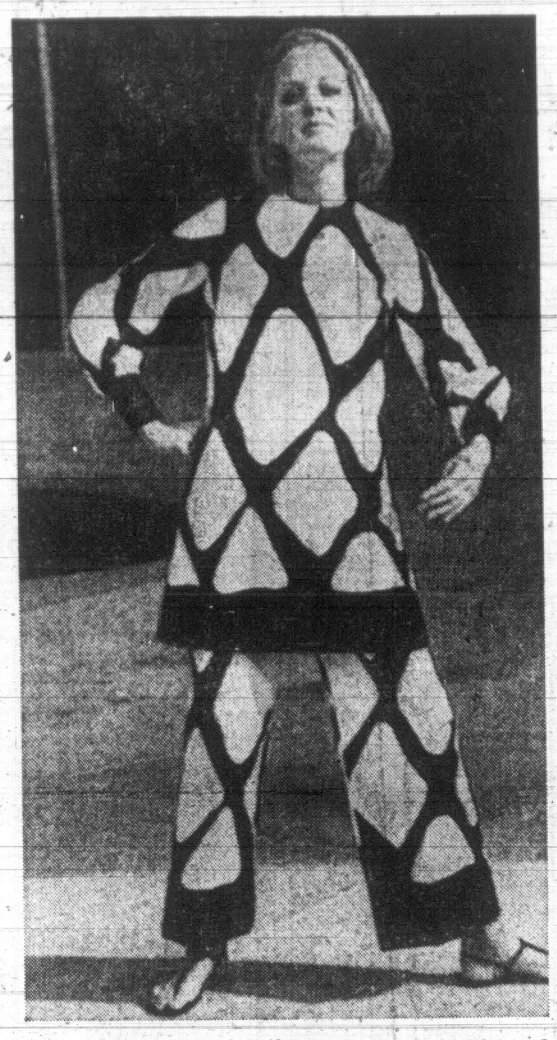

The report also makes a number of other somewhat controversial points on the women's rights question.

Some examples:

● "The character of matrimony as an institution for the support of women according to the Occidental tradition has become an indirect obstacle to her emancipation in modern industrial society."

● If women are to have full equality, they must assume a greater share of what has traditionally been considered manly obligations, such as trade union and political activity and sharing in the responsibility of providing financial support for the children.

● Women should "not be able to acquire social status and privileges automatically by virtue of their husbands' c tribution to public life."

You're in Current Fashion Swing If You Wear Black and Velvet

NEW YORK (CP) — With the holiday season approaching with parties, dinners and dances, the fashion spotlight falls on clothes for late-day and evening wear.

Black, along with paler shades, has replaced the neon brights of previous seasons for afternoons; and chiffon, long a top favorite, drops well down in fabric preferences. Velvet is the new leader in New York, especially in short formals, with brocade probably next, followed by crepes and crisp wools.

There isn't as much over-all glitter this winter, but the heavy gold—or bullion look as New York designers call it—is much in evidence, edging plunging necklines or as belts outlining the waist.

Necklines themselves are either very low, or continue the covered-up look of several seasons: No in-between line is in evidence.

For late afternoon parties, you should have a double-duty dress suitable for office wear but adequate for after work with slight additions or subtractions.

FESTIVE CHOICE

Here the Sleeveless jumper and the tunic loom important. Even a shaped velvet tunic or jumper can be worn to work, teamed with a floral cotton or plain crepe blouse and a patent belt. Then for the festivities you have a choice and a change.

You may have brought along with you to work a long-sleeved white or pastel pink satin shirt and a gold belt. Substitute them for their daytime counterparts and you're all set for the evening.

Or just remove the daytime blouse and you have a sophisticated sleeveless jumper or tunic. Add the glamor belt and that's it. This wzs the advice from the Wragge salon, with choirboy crepe blouses for daytime wear with delicate pink or fawn tweed jumpers. Without the blouse, the jumper is ready for a party.

Or you could add a fur scarf to a sleeveless tunic for a high neckline and the new fur-trim look.

If your wardrobe needs one or two purely social dresses, you have a wide fabric and style selection. Crepes, for example, range from a long-sleeved bright red wool crepe by Tina Leser, with a side-saddle draped skirt, to Oleg Cassini's young orange silk crepe, midi-length, and accented by a brown-and-glitter belt and scarf.

Buffet Supper

The Lorne Terrace home of Mrs. D. J. Elder was the setting when 17 members of the Victoria Branch of the Saskatoon City Hospital School of Nursing Alumnae met for a buffet supper and social evening. During the evening several members discussed plans to attend the school's 60th anniversary celebrations, to be held from May 5 to 10.

The 35 guests included conveners of the View Royal Elementary School Bazaar, held earlier in the evening, some of the bazaar workers, teachers and the principal of the school. Some of the guests were still in the Spanish dress they wore at the event, giving the party a Spanish flavor. An impromptu musicale was one of the highlights of the evening.

BE WISE . . . IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE!

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Regain Youthful Energy And Enjoy Being Alive

Abundant energy is one of the greatest blessings a person can have. It paints daily life in vivid colors. It triggers laughter, makes work a pleasure and the stars seem brighter. It expands personal horizons amazingly.

Lowman

There are all kinds of weariness, but the kind which haunts more folks than any other is dragging chronic fatigue, for no apparent reason. Far too many people take this for granted as one of life's smaller hardships. Actually, the penalty it demands is tremendous.

What would have seemed a small responsibility or chore turns into a towering impossibility. Procrastination wins over good intentions. Success loses its excitement and disappointments and failure take on monumental proportions. Dreams atrophy and plans are discarded. The "bounce" disappears from life.

I receive so many letters saying things like: "How can I do the things you suggest to become more attractive? I am so tired all the time I can barely do the things I must do." And, "I have everything to live for and am in good health as far as I know, but I am exhausted most days." And, "I have two small children and [illegible] my own work. Other women do this and are not as tired as I am every single day."

I feel sorry for these people, because the few short brushes I have had with feeling this way were all I ever want. What can you do if you are chronically fatigued? There are several approaches to the problem.

In the first place, boredom causes a lot of fatigue, it may be due to too much leisure or to being tied to the walls of a house with no change of pace. No matter how you love what you are doing, too much of the same routine, day after day, can become deadly.

If you are the mother of small children, try to arrange to get away from home for a few hours a few times a week. If you are bored with your job, change it if you can. If you have too much leisure, find new ways in which to spend it.

Then there is the fatigue which follows prolonged emotional strain or an illness. However, this should right itself, given time. That is not the sort of tiredness I am thinking of. I am concerned with the kind which comes from poor health habits or some physical condition which requires medical attention. The latter may be very simple and easily remedied. The former you yourself can correct.

Have a physical checkup and investigate your daily habits of life. Too little sleep or too little exercise or an inadequate diet or the habit of hurrying all day long or too much smoking or too many pounds, all affect your energy.

Don't settle for less than normal energy! And remember—every ounce of extra pep you can develop increases the dimensions of your life. Find out why you are tired, if you are! There is so much help available today in both physical and psychological fields that you should not feel just half alive without trying to do something about it.

If you would like to have my leaflet "Pep" send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Benefits Dubious In Kennedy Pact

OTTAWA (CP) — Parliament moved Canada closer Tuesday to implementation of the Kennedy Round agreements on international trade and tariffs, but a Saskatchewan MP said the agreements are of doubtful benefit to Prairie farmers.

"If there are benefits, they have yet to be shown," Alf Gleave (NDP—Saskatoon-Biggar) said during Commons debate on tariff resolutions arising from the Kennedy Round.

But the resolutions were passed without dissent and the government immediately introduced legislation to implement its new tariff schedule by Jan. 1.

New international agreements on trade and tariffs were concluded recently in Geneva after several years of bargaining known as the Kennedy Round because of the initial impetus given by the late U.S. president.

Mr. Gleave said Canada apparently moved into this bargaining at the insistence of the United States.

"But no sooner was that new agreement negotiated than the United States cut the price, and Canada encountered one of the toughest sales periods in a good many years."

RUSSIA ISN'T INCLUDED

Another drawback was that the Soviet Union, a participant in the old international wheat agreement, wasn't in the Kennedy Round and therefore isn't bound by the terms of the new grain arrangement.

Mr. Gleave said Prairie farmers deserve a statement from Trade Minister Jean-Luc Pepin "telling them where the agreement, reached as a result of the Kennedy Round negotiations, is taking us."

Rhodesian Stalemate Has Smith on Griddle

SALISBURY (Reuters) — Rhodesian Prime Minister Ian Smith is facing a rising tide of protest over his failure to reach agreement with Britain on the independence issue—now deadlocked on only one major point.

Criticism of his handling last week of the latest round of talks with the British minister in charge of the Rhodesian problem, George Thomson, came from the moderate Centre party and the Rhodesian Constitutional Association.

Centre party chairman Pat Bashford, who talked with Thomson in Salisbury, rejected Smith's announced reasons for turning down the British settlement terms.

The Constitutional Association accused Smith of putting the interests of his party, the powerful Rhodesian Front, before those of the country.

Smith told Rhodesians in a broadcast Tuesday night that the only major difference with Britain was the insistence by Britain on a built-in safeguard in any independence constitution to protect the political rights of the African majority in Rhodesia from future change.

One British proposal accepted by Smith is that Africans in the Rhodesian Parliament would be able to block constitutional changes.

Doctors Shake Brain Of Gunshot Victim

SUNNYVALE, Calif. (AP) — A centrifuge normally used in space research was employed Tuesday to re-position a bullet lodged in the brain of a holdup victim.

Joseph Barrios, 63, was strapped into the whirligig at the National Aeronautics and Space Administration laboratory here and subjected to up to six gravities.

The bullet had moved into a critical area, the third ventricle, and it was hoped to move it by centrifugal force into a soft tissue area where it would either lay harmless or could be removed by surgery with less risk.

NO BAD EFFECTS

Although doctors were not able to move it to the soft tissue area, they did get it back into its original position in a lateral ventricle.

The patient showed no adverse effects from his 20-second spin.

Barrios, a cook, was shot last Oct. 7 at his restaurant. Bone and bullet fragments were removed, but most of the .22-calibre bullet remained in an area where surgery was considered risky.

Reporters To Watch Via TV

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Unless the defence or prosecution objects, closed circuit television will be used to accommodate an overflow crowd of reporters at the trial of Sirhan Sirhan on charges of slaying Senator Robert F. Kennedy.

Judge Herbert V. Walker of Superior Court, who will preside at the trial, made the disclosure Monday. He said he will hold a hearing, probably next week, to see if there are any objections.

The defence, at the same hearing, is expected to ask another postponement. The trial now is scheduled to start on Dec. 9.

Sirhan, under heavy guard since Kennedy's assassination, is to be tried in courtroom 107. This was chosen so Sirhan, 24, a Jordanian, can be taken from his 13th floor jail cell without being escorted through any public section of the building.

The courtroom seats only 75, and Walker said there have been more than 100 requests from "responsible news media" for the 35 seats available for reporters.

The closed-circuit TV camera would be concealed in a fake air conditioning box. Sight and sound would be piped to a room with seats for about 80 accredited reporters. The general public would not see the closed-circuit showing.

McEwen Files Nomination In Oak Bay

Elmer McEwen, a former Victoria alderman, Tuesday filed nomination papers for one of three vacancies on Oak Bay council.

Mr. McEwen, 1006 Newport, said there is a need for better regional planning throughout the Greater Victoria area.

"The regional concept is especially necessary for police and fire departments," he said.

A shoe store proprietor, Mr. McEwen served on Victoria council from 1957 through 1960.

He said part of Oak Bay council's problem is a lack of team effort and a lack of a concentrated ability to reach decisions.

"I think it's necessary to have your own opinions," he said. "And I think people expect you to make decisions."

He noted a particular need in Oak Bay for more housing and recreation facilities for a growing population.

Calder Backs Berger's Bid

NDP leadership candidate Tom Berger Tuesday was publicly endorsed by Atlin MLA Frank Calder.

Mr. Calder, only Indian elected to the B.C. legislature, praised Mr. Berger as the lawyer fighting the current test case in which B.C. Indians claim ownership of provincial lands.

He also recalled that he strongly supported Mr. Berger's previous bid for party leadership when he unsuccessfully challenged Robert Strachan two years ago.

Inquiry Ordered

LONDON (Reuters)—A public inquiry has been ordered into a Glasgow warehouse fire in which 22 persons died behind iron-barred windows.

Stepped-Up Relief To Biafrans Urged

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Two Canadian MPs, fresh from a trip that exposed them to bombing in Biafra, today urged stepped-up mercy efforts by Canada in view of what they called widespread malnutrition caused by the civil war in Nigeria.

One of the parliamentarians, Liberal Ralph Stewart, said Canada should not become involved in the conflict and it would be a good thing "if other countries followed suit" in this respect.

But he suggested that "at the invitation of both sides, Canada should act as a mediator to get a ceasefire and bring both parties to the conference table to work out a solution."

His companion on the sometimes-dangerous trip, NDP member Lorne Nystrom, said that in working for a ceasefire, Ottawa should bring pressure on the British government, work to have the Nigerian conflict included on the agenda of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in January and offer Canada as a mediator.

Canada also should work through the United Nations, said Nystrom, MP for Yorkton-Melville, Sask.

Stewart, whose riding is Cochrane, Ont., and who is a member of the Commons committee on external affairs, criticized as slanted to the federal side news broadcasts beamed by the BBC from Nigeria.

In an interview, he also quoted a French mercenary he met in Biafra as having reported seeing 26 British mercenaries fighting on the federal side.

Both MPs flew to Biafra Nov. 8 on a trip sponsored by B'nai B'rith, a Jewish organization helping Roman Catholic and Protestant relief efforts in the area. They also visited federal Nigeria, and wound up their visit to the region Tuesday.

RAN FOR COVER

En route to an airstrip for their Nov. 13 flight out of Biafra, they and legislators from Holland and Denmark were forced to leap for cover when a federal Nigerian jet swept over on a raid against the airport.

The Soviet-built MiG jet dropped a bomb which landed about 100 yards from the point where the Canadians had found cover.

"Ralph and I found a sort of natural hole in the bush," said Nystrom.

They huddled there until danger passed. No one in the group, which also included journalists, was hurt.

But they came within sound of front-line fire on a later visit to Onitsha, about 100 miles north of Port Harcourt.

Stewart said he saw no signs of genocide and added that the Biafrans spoke of buying arms —though not of receiving them as free supplies—from the French.

France has denied reports it is shipping arms to Biafra.

Arms are coming from Gabon and Portugal, he added, and use was being made of the "black market."

Canadian MPs Return From War Zone

Nystrom quoted Biafran leader Col. C. O. Ojukwu as telling the visiting parliamentarians: "We'll accept help from anywhere."

Stewart called Ojukwu "a very impressive fellow."

INSPECTED ARMS

The visitors saw captured and home-made weapons being used by Biafran trainees.

Nystrom said he asked Ojukwu whether Canadian diplomatic recognition of Biafra would help the region's cause.

"He said, 'Sure, it would help a lot,'" the Canadian MP reported.

Nystrom said the colonel would like to meet Prime Minister Trudeau or officials of the Canadian external affairs department.

After their Nov. 13 departure from Biafra, the MPs went first to the relief-base island of Fernando Poo, recently declared independent of Spanish control and now known as Esquatorial Guinea.

From there, they flew to Lagos where they saw Nigerian federal officials as well as Canadian representatives.

On Fernando Poo, they talked with officials concerned with a Canadian Hercules plane and reported that the aircraft has made 11 flights into Biafra with 20 tons of relief supplies each time.

Another Hercules, based at Lagos, had been unable to fly supplies to federal-controlled points as planned because available airports were not large enough.

Nystrom suggested that relief measures for Biafra now should allow for carbohydrates as well as protein deficiencies among victims of malnutrition.

Supplies of salt fish from Canada were beginning to reach the area.

Nystrom found the refugee camp "just terrible," and recalled one man with a dying child and about 1,000 refugees "from all over the place."

STENCH OVERWHELMING

He spoke about the shock of being in the stench-ridden refugee camp.

"And the world stands idly by," he recalled thinking at the time.

The Canadians helped dole out soup in one feeding centre and described "a real stampede" when they offered the children candy.

The MPs were told by officials of a Biafran determination to fight to the death.

At one training camp for guerrillas, the visitors set off what seemed to be mock booby trap.

"I was almost at the front of the group," Stewart said. "Then, bang, something exploded and there was a yell to get down." Again no one was hurt.

The two are scheduled to return to Canada by plane Thursday.

Habits of Aged In Retirement Surprises Survey

By JIM HUME

Gardening is in, parties are out for the majority of Greater Victoria's elderly population.

A survey on retirement habits recently concluded by the Capital Region Planning Board on a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation grant, states that gardening and other work around the house is responsible for 52 per cent of the activities of retired persons.

Parties and entertainment account for only seven per cent of activity—and even that isn't too enthusiastic.

Instead, the retired group prefers walking, hiking or fishing as an alternative to gardening (36 per cent of them) and hobbies, such as woodworking (29 per cent).

But even with gardening running high on the elderly interest chart it still isn't number one.

In that position, with a solid 56 per cent vote, is reading and writing with 80 per cent of the group indicating high interest.

Regional planner A. H. Roberts presented his preliminary report to the CRPB Tuesday afternoon.

BASE FOR NEEDS

While stressing that the preliminary report was just a mass of figures tabulated by computer, Mr. Roberts noted that the information compiled would form a strong base for further studies on retirement needs and habits in 1969.

Other information brought to light in phase one of the over-all study shows the majority of retired people favoring single family dwellings to high-rise apartments but that they wanted those houses in relatively sheltered and quiet areas of the city.

Some of the statistics pumped out by the computer surprised the survey team.

Two out of five of the retired people interviewed own their own cars and enjoy driving them; two thirds of them never visit a park, 15 per cent go to the park once or twice a year and 21 per cent are satisfied with one session.

Some 77 per cent never visit the library—which leaves unanswered the question of where the 56 who read a lot get their books—five per cent visited the library once in a while and 18 per cent were regular users.

By the same token 87 per cent never or rarely visited the Senior Citizens Activity Centre in Centennial Square but those who do give the senior citizens' headquarters a high rating for service and accommodation.

LITTLE CULTURE

And as for art and culture, well the elderly are just too busy in their gardens to bother with either.

The survey revealed that 92 per cent of the group surveyed never or rarely visited either the art gallery or the museum. Eight per cent made one trip to each and called it quits.

Low interest in libraries and other cultural activities explains the minimal approval the survey gives to proposals to expand library or art gallery facilities.

Only eight per cent of the elderly interviewed agreed with such moves while 23 per cent said extra money should go into hospital beds.

Mr. Roberts said when the survey, the first of its kind in Canada, is completed it will provide strong directions for municipal councils seeking to provide needed facilities for the elderly.

BOMBINGS CREATE GRAVE SITUATION

By DAVID QUINTNER

MONTREAL (CP) — Only "pure luck" prevented deaths or injuries in this city's "unprecedented" series of bombings in the last three months, the head of the police bomb squad says.

Sgt. Robert Cote warned in an interview Tuesday, however, that the explosive charges being used—generally dynamite attached to batteries and a clock —"are getting bigger all the time."

He said the 24 bombs planted since mid-August in the Montreal area indicate "a new generation of bombers may be at work."

"Those who set bombs before have passed on their knowledge."

Montreal experienced a six-week rash of bombings in 1963, centred principally in the predominately English-speaking suburb of Westmount. Six bombs exploded and three others were found before they detonated.

This year, however, the targets "on the surface, anyway," have had less obvious political connotations—ranging from strike-bound sites to an armory, clubhouses and individuals.

While police refuse to comment on whether there is a discernible pattern to the plantings, they admit to one thread linking most of the explosions—they usually occur on weekends.

No arrests have been made.

BLAST HEAVIEST YET

The most recent bombing, last Sunday, was "the most powerful explosion yet," Sgt. Cote said.

Eight sticks of dynamite were used, he believes, to crack the concrete foundations of a structural steel manufacturing plant, shatter windows in the neighborhood and wreck furniture in the building.

Union and management at the plant are affected by a jurisdictional dispute.

That blast was the fifth in a series of incidents in one week —three of the devices were found before they could explode. The first incident was the explosion in an underground passageway linking the CNR's downtown station with the $75,000,000 Place Bonaventure and Hotel Bonaventure.

Little damage was done and police say only one or two sticks of dynamite were used.

As in all 17 explosions this year in the city, no one was injured although three persons were in the 200-foot tunnel at the time.

Next day, a bomb wrapped in a newspaper was discovered in the street two blocks from the tunnel blast.

QLB STORES A TARGET

Four bombs have been planted outside strike-bound Quebec Liquor Board stores in the city; stores which have been shut since June 26 when 3,000 QLB workers struck for higher salaries.

A fifth bomb blew up a parked car in the town of Mount Royal outside the residence of a QLB official who was engaged in negotiations.

One bomb exploded on the property of an official of United Aircraft of Canada Ltd. early this month, and three others were found near the Town of Mount Royal homes of three other officials of the same company.

HAS TWO JOBS

Many passenger airliners can change to freight carriers—in 13 minutes.

The next night a bus parked on the property of a company which has an airport limousine franchise was burned in the explosion of a bomb.

Other targets here have included the armory of the Black Watch Regiment, club rooms of Union Nationale and Liberal parties, and the home of the governor of Bordeaux Jail.

Bombs have also exploded at the United States embassy in Quebec City and in Rouyn and Grand'Mere, Que.

A total of 41 bomb-plantings and explosions have occurred in the province this year.

Since the separatist-induced violence of 1963, three persons have died as the result of bomb explosions. All were Montreal residents.

IT WASN'T 'WHO?' BUT 'WHERE?'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday he knows the name of the Liberal MP for Burnaby-Seymour.

The British Columbia riding cropped up during the Commons question period Monday. News reporters then quoted Trudeau as asking: "Who the hell is the member for Burnaby-Seymour?"

The member is Ray Perrault, the former B.C. provincial Liberal leader, who defeated NDP Leader T. C. Douglas in the June 25 federal election.

Trudeau got the opportunity to clarify things Tuesday when George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings) asked whether the prime minister had received a telegram from the riding's Liberal association protesting Trudeau's ignorance.

The prime minister replied that he did not receive such a telegram and, moreover, knows the name of the riding's member.

Trudeau indicated that his comment was wrongly reported. He had, in fact, asked "where the hell the minister was" who might reply to the question.

STILL UNANSWERED

The original question, put by Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova), is still unanswered.

He had asked whether there would be an investigation into how the report of a consultant to the Company of Young Canadians got into the hands of the MP for Burnaby-Seymour.

The precise wording of Trudeau's original stage-whisper "where-the-hell" comment is officially dead. It did not appear in Hansard, the official record of debate, although it was heard around the chamber.

His Tuesday "where-the-hell" comment will live on officially in Hansard since he was on his feet making a formal reply to Hees' question when he made it.

As for Perrault, he was not in the Commons Tuesday to hear Trudeau say that he is known to him. He wasn't there Monday either.

He is in New York with a Canadian parliamentary delegation at the United Nations.

Air Canada Supports Chamber Plea

An Air Canada bid for improved Patricia Bay airport facilities has added weight to 18-month-old pleas by Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The jet era will catch up to the local airport in 1970 with use of such aircraft as the DC-9, replacing Viscount and Vanguard planes which now serve the capital.

District sales manager Stan Mooney said Air Canada had made recommendations to the transport department for longer runways and the addition of landing aids. He was reporting to the chamber's harbor and transportation group Tuesday.

Group chairman George Farmer said a copy of the Air Canada letter was being forwarded as part of its recurring request for better highway access to the airport, and clearer directions to motorists on how to find the airport, especially after dark.

Mercy Plane Flies Refugees

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Hercules aircraft stalled on mercy flights to the breakaway Nigerian province of Biafra Tuesday carried a load of refugees to Dahomey, Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday.

The prime minister said also in reply to a question by Creditiste Leader Real Caouette that discussions are under way for the use of the plane to carry medical supplies from Geneva to Nigeria.

Royal Commission to Probe Alleged Bootlegging in Quebec

QUEBEC (CP) — A three-man royal commission will inquire into allegations of illegal liquor sales during the current strike of Quebec Liquor Board workers and investigate the possibility of placing liquor sales in the hands of private enterprise.

Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand said Tuesday the commission will investigate liquor commerce in Quebec province since Jan. 1, 1964, and study "the most efficent and the most economic means of ensuring supervision of liquor sales.

In extending the inquiry back to 1964, the government has empowered the commission to investigate liquor commerce during a three-month strike of QLB employees late in 1964 and early 1965 when Opposition Leader Jean Lesage's Liberal party was in power.

Mr. Bertrand said Judge Lucien Thinel of St. Jerome provincial court will head the commission. Marcel Belanger, a Quebec City chartered accountant, and Otto Thur, a University of Montreal economist, will be the other commissioners.

It will be the first in-depth study of liquor sales in Quebec since the QLB was established in 1921 as a government body to act both as vendor and administrator of liquor commerce.

The premier said a police inquiry into the seizure of more than 9,500 bottles of liquor Nov. 8 and 9 suburban Vanier is continuing. Several persons have been charged in connection with the seizure.

Mr. Lesage, premier during the 1964-65 QLB strike, said that if there were any illegal sales of liquor by the board then it was not brought to his attention. The Liberals had "nothing to hide."

Liberal house leader Pierre Laporte said the Opposition was prepared to name a second Quebec distillery involved in illegal liquor commerce during the current strike but would not do so because this now was the task of the commission. Already named is Melchers Distilleries Ltd., whose liquor was seized in the Vanier raid.

Meanwhile, contract talks with union representatives of the QLB workers continued in Montreal.

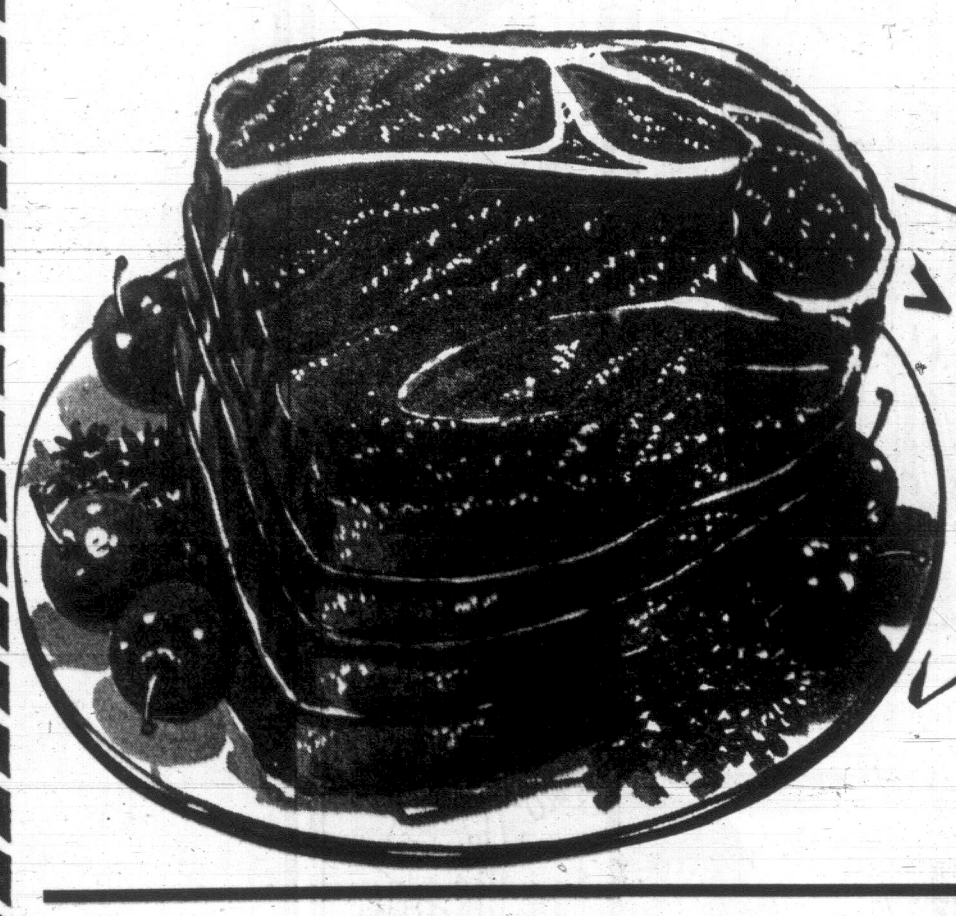

Union negotiators Tuesday expressed confidence that they were "heading for a settlement" of the five-month strike.

In their latest public positions, the government was offering a $16 average weekly increase spread over three years while the unions were asking for an average $27-a-week raise.

The average weekly salary for the 3,000 Confederation of National Trade Union affiliated employees stood at $81.63 when the strike began.

Father of Three Dies in Mishap

A Campbell River father of three small children, James Richard Haight, 27, died Tuesday in Victoria seven hours after his car ran off the Gold River Road and slammed into a ditch.

Mr. Haight was returning from Gold River with a passenger, Kenneth Green of Campbell River, about 6:30 p.m. Monday, RCMP report.

He apparently lost control of the car in a curve on a paved section of the road 16 miles west of Campbell River.

The driver was taken to Royal Jubilee Hospital. Mr. Green was treated for minor injuries in Campbell River.

RCMP said there will be a coroner's inquiry.

★ ★ ★

NANAIMO—A coroner's jury Tuesday night ruled "accidental" the death of a 64-year-old Victoria woman here Oct. 25.

Sarah Lamont, of 2543 Scott Street, was struck and killed on Terminal Ave. near Waddington Road.

The jury noted a .14 per cent blood alcohol content in the dead woman and suggested she was possibly impaired as she "wandered or attempted to cross the highway."

No blame was attached to driver Robert Allen Rathles of Nanaimo.

The jury recommended installation of lights at the Island Highway intersection and that signs indicating the existence of an underpass be installed.

★ ★ ★

NANAIMO — Leonard Edward Jones, 20, was sentenced to 30 days in jail Monday for violating a 24-hour roadside suspension by retrieving his car the morning after RCMP issued the suspension.

★ ★ ★

WESTHOLME — Freeman King, prominent park naturalist, recently visited Eaves Park on the Old Island Highway at Westholme to offer advice on nature preservation.

The park is comprised of 50 acres donated to the provincial parks by Mrs. Janet Eaves Goodall.

The school board is attempting to establish a park on the land similar to Mr. King's park in Colwood.

Seventeen children and eight adults attended the session, held in the property's proposed nature house.

"The 50 acres should last a long time," said Mr. King.

"When trails become run down, all we have to do is let them grow and cut others."

★ ★ ★

NANAIMO — William Tudor Kendall Herbert, 50, a North Vancouver contractor, was sentenced to four years in prison Tuesday night, after being found guilty of manslaughter in the death of his wife Sept. 7.

A Supreme Court of British Columbia jury debated 6½ hours before returning the manslaughter verdict against Herbert, who had been charged with non-capital murder.

Testimony during the trial showed that Mrs. Herbert, 53, died shortly after her husband took her to hospital in Campbell River.

The Crown alleged the woman died from a beating administered by the accused on the Island Highway about 20 miles north of Campbell River.

Dr. R. S. Clarke of Nanaimo testified the woman died of a sub-cranial hemmorhage.

Brian Leicht, a North Vancouver RCMP constable had testified that Mrs. Herbert once told her husband that she should have killed him "a long time ago."

★ ★ ★

NANAIMO (CP) — Three men charged with unlawful assembly following a disturbance in a shopping plaza here Halloween night were remanded in magistrate's court to Dec. 20 to appeal the magistrate's ruling that they could not change their guilty pleas.

The three, Ronald J. Hutchins, 18, of Nanaimo, Patrick Molyneaux, 18, of nearby Lantzville, and Bruce Newman, 20, of Vancouver said they had not received a proper explanation of the charge or had the benefit of counsel when they entered guilty pleas.

The appeal will be heard in Nanaimo County Court and the three will appear in magistrate's court again following a county court ruling. No date was set for the hearing.

★ ★ ★

PORT ALBERNI — Dr. Patrick McGeer, provincial Liberal leader, proposed a three-point anti-pollution plan to members of the chamber of Commerce Tuesday.

The proposal allows for:

- A full time pollution control department.
- A control fund of at least $1,000,000 — derived partly from general provincial revenue and partly from industry through effluent permits, and
- A system of effluent taxes.

A keynote of the proposed program would be incentive.

"It is no use cracking down on industry to a point where jobs are limited," he said.

"But a system of decreasing taxes as pollution is eliminated, would provide worthwhile incentives to industry."

During a press conference, Dr. McGeer suggested a provincial election could occur in April.

NOTED Port Alberni painter, lecturer and author George Clutesi will speak at a Duncan-Alexander PTA meeting at 8 p.m. Monday in Khowhemun elementary school. A protege of the late Emily Carr, Mr. Clutesi will autograph copies of his book "Son of Raven, Son of Deer" now in the public school curriculum.

Operators 'Number Happy'

NANAAIMO — Nanaimo communications bogged down this week when a major changeover in the telephone system left the post office holding the bag.

And since the bag happened to contain 10,000 new telephone directories listing hundreds of changed numbers, B.C. Tel had to call in extra operators to cope with thousands of enquiries.

The confusion began at 12:01 a.m. Sunday when the Nanaimo exchange was expanded to include Ladysmith, Gabriola Island and Wellington.

Without directories, callers had to rely on the operators for new numbers, although the updated directories had been placed in the post office in plenty of time.

A telephone company official said the directories were mailed last week but a vast backlog of second and third class mail, posted before the Nov. 1 hike in postal rates, had thoroughly jammed the post office.

The situation has not yet improved, and today, as the five tons of directories sit in the post office, the busy information operators are answering "directory" instead of the usual "directory assistance."

Too Much Red Tape, Says Minister

PORT ALBERNI — Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien has termed departmental red tape "crazy" and said "I don't like having to sign papers for you."

He was addressing a 45-member group — 13 from Vancouver Island — in Vancouver recently.

He told B.C. Indian Organizations representatives it takes a total of six months to process documents band councils could well do for themselves.

Mr. Chretien, who comes from Quebec, also said "This colonial mantle does not sit well with me."

At the close of the meeting the representatives passed Mr. Chretien a petition calling for an unbiased tribunal with a chairman from outside Canada to settle B.C. Indian land claims.

Six Awarded Certificates

DUNCAN — Six students from the Arcadian School for Retarded Children have received certificates of merit in a fine arts crayon competition judged in Bedford, England.

Certificates were awarded to Raymond Pitt, Diana Poulette, Gene Genereaux, Elmer Neitsch, Myrna Gail Louie and Douglas Ramwell.

Cowichan and district school board are having the certificates framed.

Garage Damaged

CHEMAINUS — Fire today heavily damaged a garage at the home of Ed Cook of Laurel Street. Source of the fire and damage have not been determined. Volunteer foremen quelled the blaze.

Hunter Thanks Rescue Team

NANAIMO — A man who was lost near Mount Benson on a hunting expedition last week has thanked Civil Defence search and rescue crews Tuesday, for finding him.

Ronald McClellan of 323 Sheppard Ave., was lost Nov. 12. He was found shortly after by search and rescue crews.

He thanked civil defence co-ordinator J. Pritchard for an "efficient rescue."

City Museum Site Of Indian Meet

For the first time in its 35-year history, the Native Brotherhood of British Columbia will hold its annual convention in the capital of the province over which it claims ownership.

About 200 delegates from Indian bands throughout the province will meet Saturday for a four-day conference in auditorium of the new Heritage Centre's centennial museum.

The federal-provincial building is an apt location for the meeting where progress likely will be discussed in the landmark test case launched in court this year in which Indians claim title to B.C. still belongs to them because no payment or treaty was made for its transfer to the government.

The case is expected to run the gamut of courts over a period of years before conclusion.

But more convention attention is expected to centre on immediate concerns such as housing help and the impact of the federal government's new system of restrictive licensing of fishboats.

These questions will be fielded by Federal Fisheries Minister Jack Davis and Indian Affairs Minister Jean Chretien in formal appearances before the convention.

Opening ceremonies at 10:30 a.m. Saturday will see Mayor Hugh Stephen welcoming the bortherhood to Victoria and Archbishop Harold Sexton invoking divine assistance.

Dowel-Shooting Weapon For Use Against Rioters

By PAUL W. VALENTINE
The Washington Post

WASHINGTON — New riot-control weapons ranging from a "Turb-A-Fog" tear-gas dispenser to a gun that fires wooden dowels were demonstrated to Washington area policemen last week.

"Aim low and let the dowels ricochet against their knees and shins," said Geoffrey Oberdick, Washington representative for Federal Laboratories, Inc., of Saltsburn, Pa., maker of the weapons.

A group of poker-faced policemen from a half dozen local agencies looked on at the U.S. Park Police Pistol Range as one of Oberdick's assistants fired the gas-operated Dowel gun.

Five pugdy one-inch-long dowels spurted from the muzzle of the gun, skittering across the pistol range at 650 feet a second.

"This has been popular in Hong Kong," said Oberdick. "They've ordered 5,000 of the blast shells from us."

BUCKSHOT WEAPON

The assistant then fired another special short range shell loaded with 42 pellets of double-aught buckshot. "this one has been used in the south," said Oberdick, "but you really should have a pretty serious riot before using it."

Oberdick's piece de resistance, however, was the Turb-A-Fog dispenser, a 30-pound two-cycle gasoline engine which belches and blows tear gas in enourmous clouds for up to four and one-half minutes. An aerosol cannister containing the gas is attached to the machine and activated. When the cannister is exhausted, the operator quickly removes it and inserts another one, good for four and one-half more minutes.

The Turb-A-Fog dispenser, which retails for $395, was used by the Chicago police during the Democratic convention last summer.

"They used it to get the yippies out of the parks," said Donald D. Peace, a Federal Laboratories chemist. "We gave them a special 3 per cent CS gas formula for the job."

ANTI-RIOT GAS

CS gas is one of three major types of anti-riot gas available to police. The other are known as CN and DM.

"CN is just a lacrimator," said Peace. "It makes you cry. CS is a lacrimator and respiratory irritant both. It has a greater uncomfortability factor. DM is a sickening gas. It'll make you puke. Don't quote me, but it also gives you diarrhea."

Washington police have both CS and CN gas. Peace said a number of undisclosed cities have also purchased DM gas, "but as far as I know, they've never used it."

He estimated, when pressed by newsmen, that CS gas also causes nausea in one out of 20 persons.

A pamphlet distributed by Federal Laboratories to the police says DM causes "extreme nausea and loosening of bowels" and warns that persons exposed to it "may require hospitalization."

DM should be used only in "very extreme situations," it says.

Another section of the pamphlet discusses the organization of "tear gas squads" in riot situations. Each squad leader should be "a strong and positive person whose voice rings with authority when he speaks to a crowd through a bullhorn," it says.

With thorough training, the squad will develop "espirit de corps" and will take pride, the pamphlet adds cryptically, "in the efficient handling of a bombastic situation."

Michener Ready If Called

TORONTO (CP) — Gov.-Gen. Roland Michener says his job might require him some day to take over governing the country for a short while.

In a talk Monday night to a special Osgoode Hall Law School convocation where he was made an honorary bencher, Gov.-Gen. Michener said one of his "essential political responsibilities" is to bridge the gap between governments by calling on the leader of the incoming administration to form a government.

"However, in circumstances, there might be a serious question about whom I shall call upon," he said.

"It is nevertheless my responsibility to see that you have at all times a ministry responsive to the will of the House of Commons and the people.

"Conceivably there could be a complete failure of obvious choices by some calamity of nature or war and in that case I might find it necessary to govern in fact, as well as in theory, for a time without ministerial assistance.

"I do have such powers."

Press, TV Coverage At Constitution Talks

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — The federal-provincial constitutional conference in Ottawa Dec. 16-18 will be open to news and television coverage unless the provinces object.

Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday he had suggested this to the provinces.

At the conference the prime minister and 10 provincial premiers are to discuss proposals for a constitutional bill of rights and guarantee of equality for the English and French languages, Quebec's claim to a provincial role in international relations and regional disparities.

The constitutional conference is to be followed Dec. 19 by a federal-provincial conference of finance ministers on tax-sharing. The finance ministers' meeting is expected to be held in camera.

Closed sessions have been the tradition in federal-provincial conferences and in the annual meetings of the 10 provincial premiers.

AMAZEMENT and delight has been expressed by Victoria Symphony patrons who heard 22-year-old Soviet cellist, Karine Georgian play Haydn and Khatchaturian concertos with Laszlo Gati conducting the orchestra, Sunday and Monday. Tonight at McPherson Playhouse, Miss Georgian's incredible brilliance and artistry will again enthrall her audience as she performs a recital program with Robin Wood at the piano. The exciting young artist has been compared to Casals. The recital begins at 8:30 p.m.

Hendrie Impressive Recitalist

By BERYL PROUDMAN

Dr. Gerald Hendrie played his first public organ recital since coming to Victoria at St. John's Anglican Church Tuesday night. The concert was part of the series of evening recitals presented by the evening division of the University of Victoria Fine Arts Society.

St. John's Church is not a large church, nor does it have the resonance necessary for producing a significant echo. The bright, modern Casavant instrument is large for the building, and its shrill bright clarity, unmellowed by softening acoustics makes it difficult to play in a recital of appeal to the general public.

The program opened with several works by Gibbons, and immediately it became apparent that Dr. Hendrie commands a stunning technical facility and understanding of organ tone. Even in the most difficult trills and fast passages, each note was clear and distinctly separated.

GIBBONS AUTHORITY

As an authority on Gibbons, Dr. Hendrie played these works with fastidious correctness though the percussive style of his attack, particularly in fast-turned ornaments sounded more appropriate to a harpsichord than an organ.

The recurrent motif of Bach's Passacaglia in C Minor was robbed of some of its impressive power by the dominating brilliance of the upper parts.

With tasteful discretion Dr. Hendrie restrained the organ until the final grand climax but even a short passage of loud shrill organ in the dry building made the beginning of the following Fugue come as a relief.

Despite explanatory notes Dr. Hendrie's own composition "Statements 1968" proved puzzling.

With retrogressions, inversions, chromatic progressions and other mathematical and gymnastic convolutions of the theme, Dr. Hendrie displayed the intricacies of a masterly structure. Variety was added but complexity too by the employment of many different tones to expose the logically connected but melodically disparate tone row on which the work was based.

Restricted by the acoustics of the building, Dr. Hendrie replaced his other composition, "Elevation 1960" with a work by Olivier Messiaen.

Many Victorians have gradually, over the past few years become familiar with the stirring, strange beauty of Messiaen's music. While the performance of three of his pieces on such a critical organ might delight scholarly purists, it did little to make his music more easily palatable to the ordinary organ-fancier.

"The Celestial Banquet" though played with intelligence and crisp accuracy lacked the slow sensuous enjoyment its chords permit.

One could not but admire the brilliance of the organist's performance of "Les Anges," played with virtuoso skill but "Dieu Parmi Nous" brought moments of exquisite suffering to those with sensitive ears.

The very skill which made Dr. Hendrie play the series of chords near the end with such perfect synchronization, made their attack that much sharper on the listeners.

HOME GARDEN

Soils Can Be Changed

By HILDA BEASTALL

Heavy wet soils are almost impossible to work on during rainy winter months, and it is then we envy gardeners with light gravelly or sandy soils. However, soild can be changed to suit our gardening purposes but mere wishing gets us nowhere.

Hilda

While soils remain heavy, they are sticky when wet and consequently pack tightly around roots when tramped. So we tend to stay off them during winter.

If a bed or border is accessible from a firm path or from a grassed area, a certain amount of work can be done.

The most beneficial chore is removal of weeds from between shrubs, herbaceous perennials and areas planted to spring bulbs.

Grass seeds will have been deposited by wind and birds, and other weeds will make their appearance, regardless of having allowed no undesirable plant to produce and shed its seeds within the borders of the lot.

In some cases, it will be easy to recognize those with perennial roots. Burdock, thistle and couch grass are three of the worst and removing these with roots intact will surely lessen work next year.

Reach in among the plants and pull out these weeds without stepping on the soil while it is wet.

Occasionally it may be worth getting a piece of wood or two to make a foothold for removing a handful of grass roots from the centre of some precious shrub. This will come away readily now.

Seedlings of annual weeds germinated this fall may be left in to act as ground cover for winter. They help to prevent soil erosion and soil compaction.

By April, remove these annual weeds when cultivating and spread a spring mulch of compost between the plants.

They will then not be competing for food and moisture from the soil which should be nourishing only the chosen cultivated plants.

ASK ANDY

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prize? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a World Book Atlas.

Andy sends a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Anne Seymour, age 12, of Cobourg, Ontario, Canada, for her question:

How do they domesticate wild flowers?

You might classify a flowery garden as an expensive hobby or perhaps as an extravagant luxury. But this hard-boiled notion belongs in a dreary world of robots. People need to behold beauty in order to be complete human beings. What's more, the beauty of a garden happens to work hand-in-glove with the plant world that provides our air and our daily diet.

Nature's plant world was established upon this planet many millions of years before the human family arrived to enjoy it. All the different plants were wild, living freely over the land and in the waters of the world. Some of them were the original ancestors of our cultivated crops and garden plants. Over the ages, man has used many techniques to improve plant strains and coax them to grow in new locations far from their native homes.

The dainty African violet is a native of the tropics that admiring visitors coaxed to live in cooler climates. In America it lives the life of a pampered potted plant. Botanists have improved the originals by selecting the best types and have crossed these types to produce a wondrous variety of different strains. Glamorous orchids have been taken from high in the boughs of tropical jungles and coaxed to live in northern greenhouses. Pollen from one gorgeous bloom has been used to fertilize another and the seeds have been pampered to produce an endless variety of super strains. The ancestors of our yummy camellias were brought from semitropical regions of China and Japan.

Seeds Tested

Many other glamorous garden bushes are sold as grafted plants. A new plant produced by cross-pollination may be rather fragile but its blossoms may be breathtaking. Twigs of the new plant are grafted onto a more sturdy root stock. The grafted plant emerges with the durable quality of the root plant plus the beauteous blossoms of the new strain. A hybrid rose is a grafted plant. The pollen from a lovely rose is placed on the stamens of a different one and the flower sealed from passing insects. Its ripened seed is gathered and sown and maybe one in many thousands just will produce a worthwhile strain. Its twigs are grafted onto the root stock of a rose plant that has proved itself able to thrive in normal garden conditions.

Experts are now combing fields of marigold-colored marigolds to find a white marigold. If such a rarity is found, its seed will be selected and tested. Then, if a few of its children are white, they will be tested and gradually a new strain of white marigolds will be produced by the process of selection. Nowadays, countless new strains of flowers are developed by large nurseries and amateur gardeners by using modern scientific methods. In the past, wild flowers were domesticated mainly by trial and error and the gradual improvement went on through centuries.

A man to thank for many of our modern methods of plant improvement is Luther Burbank. He used both cross-pollination and selection. He crossed wild daisies from England, Japan and the United States to produce the garden variety Shasta daisy. The task took years of his life. But it taught him how to produce new strains of corn and other edible plants, including the white blackberry. Burbank crossed raspberries and wild dewberries and got the primus berry—the very first new plant species created by nature plus the patient gardening hand of man.

Andy sends a World Book Globe to Alex Fernandes, age 12, of Fontana, California, for his question:

How did almanacs come about?

Human beings can invent almost anything. As a rule, they tend to invent things when they need them or want them very, very badly. Our remote ancestors were in need of almanacs because they were farmers, and farmers must keep track of the changing seasons of the year. An almanac is a way of keeping track of what happens from year to year. In earliest times, this job was done by astronomers who watched the changing skies through the seasons. In ancient Egypt, when Sirius rose with the sun, the astronomers knew that the Nile would soon flood. It was time to sow the crops. The earliest almanacs were records of the seasonal changes in the parade of heavenly bodies over the sky.

These almanacs proved themselves very useful. So as time went on they were improved. People kept records of each day's weather through years and years.

YOUR HEALTH

Hunger Pains Explained

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

People ask, What is "hunger pain?" It comes at 11:30 in the morning, around 5:30 in the afternoon and sometimes around 1 a.m. — when the stomach is empty — and that is why it is called "hunger pain." Usually the taking of food — perhaps a glass of milk — promptly gives relief. Hunger pain strongly suggests the presence of an ulcer, usually in the first portion of the duodenum — the 12-inch-long first section of the small bowel. Strangely, hunger pain rarely comes at 6 or 7 a.m., when one would expect it to be the most acute. Another curious fact is while almost always, when a man with an ulcer starts to tell me his history, it is so typical I know instantly what is wrong with him. But when a woman with an ulcer comes in, her story is so atypical I may not even suspect what is wrong with her.

Alvarez

Does hunger pain always mean an ulcer or the threat of an ulcer? No, I have known many patients with what I call "pseudo-ulcers" or "imitation ulcers," in fact, during the many years in which I worked under heavy nervous pressure, I often had days or weeks of hunger pain. I imagine I sometimes had some inflammation of the lining of my duodenum, but I never had an ulcer that could be seen during an X-ray examination, such as I had routinely every year.

Also an able stomach specialist friend of mine, with a severe pseudo-ulcer, kept taking me to task for my "foolishness' in talking about a disease which he said did not exist. But when a year or two later he dropped dead, the autopsy showed no ulcer; I knew a number of such persons — many of them physicians — whose pseudo-ulcers bled.

One of these patients, a prominent physician, was so sure he must have an ulcer, he had himself operated on three times — but no ulcer was ever found. An other doctor friend with a pseudo-ulcer one day had a sudden hemorrhage from his duodenum. He immediately got a surgeon to open him up and look into his duodenum. All that was found was a slightly swollen small area. When this was cut out, and sections of it were looked at under a microscope, it was seen that blood was oozing through the area much as it might have oozed through a piece of cloth.

★ ★ ★

Someone asks, "How does emotion produce a pseudo-ulcer, or a true ulcer?" Professor Stewart Wolf and the late Dr. Harold Wolff, in the front of their book, "Human Gastric Function," (Oxford, 1943) published colored pictures of the mucous membrane lining the stomach of their labatory assistant, Tom. In his case, the stomach lining projected through a hole in his stomach wall and his abdominal wall. When Tom was happy, the lining of his stomach was thin and pink; but when he was worried or angry, it was thick and purplish and covered with acid juice. I keep these picutres just back of my desk, and when a patient comes in with an ulcer, I say, "See these pictures; just live so peacefully as to keep your duodenal lining thin and pink like that, and you will be well."

FLASHBACK ON CANADA

Alberta Oil Found By Colorful Men

By BOB BOWMAN

It was on November 20, 1946, that the now-famous Leduc oil well near Edmonton was "spudded in." Oil began flowing in February and led to one of the most important economic developments in Canadian history. Of course it had been known for years that there was oil in Alberta. The Edmonton "Bulletin" reported a discovery at St. Albert in 1892. Colorful "Kootenai" Brown also found oil when he asked the Indians to look for a liquid like molasses and smelling like kerosene that would be coming out of the ground.

Bowman

There was a real boom in 1913 when W. S. Herron, who hauled coal from Turner Valley to Okotoks, saw gas seeps near Sheep Creek. He persuaded William Elder and A. W. Dingman of Calgary to look over the area, and impressed them by lighting some gas seeping from a rock and then frying eggs over the flame!

The Calgary Stock Exchange in those days occupied part of a butcher shop. So many people flocked in to buy oil shares that the cash drawers were filled and it was necessary to put the money in wastepaper baskets!

The boom didn't last long but fortunes were made and lost. The Calgary Herald published a list of regulations said to have been imposed in the Palliser Hotel:

1. No well shall be drilled before 6 a.m. or after 3 p.m. Operations are liable to disturb paying guests in the midst of beautiful dreams of vast wealth.

2. No more than one well shall be drilled in each leather chair or sofa during one time interval. It is exhausting to the furniture.

3. No well shall be drilled in a tone of voice which is audible within the three-mile zone and causes the skylights to flutter.

4. No well shall be drilled nearer than one foot to any door, window, or passageway.

5. No dry holes will be tolerated in the lobby.

There were more regulations and Turner Valley eventually had more than 300 producing oil wells, but not in the hotel! The discovery of Leduc in 1946, however, proved the presence of far greater supplies of crude oil in Alberta.

Other events on Nov. 20:

1827—Lord Dalhousie protested election of Papineau as Speaker of Lower Canada legislature.

1834—British Society in Montreal issued list of 92 grievances.

1888—Federal government and C.P.R. reached final agreement.

1893—U.S. Supreme Court held that Great Lakes and connecting waters were "high seas."

Europe Money Marts Close as Crisis Grows

Finance Chiefs Gather in Bonn

TIMES NEWS SERVICES

As Western governments battled the latest international finance crisis, major foreign exchange markets closed throughout Western Europe and finance ministers gathered in Bonn today to plan ways of shoring up the faltering French currency.

Exchange markets also were closed in Stockholm, Oslo, Copenhagen, Madrid, Cape Town, Kuala Lumpur and Singapore.

With the money exchanges closed, the speculators switched to gold and sent its prices soaring.

Many financial experts in London considered the present emergency even more serious than the March gold crisis because three of the world's principal trading currencies—the French franc, the pound sterling and the U.S. dollar—were simultaneously under attack by speculators.

The crisis resulted from frantic selling of French francs to buy West German marks, at present the world's strongest currency. The widespread belief among speculators that the mark would be revalued upward also put pressure on the British pound, but so far the franc was the hardest-hit.

BONN (UPI) — West Germany appealed tonight at the emergency meeting of the world's richest trading nations for a common solution to the international monetary crisis.

As the finance ministers and central bank governors met, banking sources in Switzerland forecast complete chaos in the world markets and possibly a panic unless there is another Bretton Woods-type conference to revalue the world's major currencies.

In an attempt to check the flight to the mark, the West German government announced Tuesday that it would not revalue its currency, but would make tax changes to reduce the large foreign trade surplus responsible for the expectation of revaluation.

France Slashes Spending

And early today, the French National Assembly approved the government's proposal to reduce spending and slice 2,000,000,000 francs (about $440,000,000 off the 1969 budget deficit.

To deal with the currency crisis, West German Economics Minister Karl Schiller called an emergency meeting in Bonn today of the so-called Group of 10—the finance ministers of Canada, Belgium, Britain, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Italy, Japan, Sweden and the United States.

Observers in Paris said that if negotiations led to a realignment of international currency parities, this would probably mean that the West German mark, the Swiss franc and the Dutch guilder would be increased in official value, while the franc could be devalued.

A franc devaluation would threaten the Italian lire and pose a serious threat to the pound sterling—already pushed to a post-devaluation low in the backlash of pressure on the franc and as a result of poor October figures in Britain's trade balance.

Set Off Chain Reaction

A franc devaluation could set off a chain reaction of downward currency adjustments throughout the world that could threaten to undermine the stability of the international payments and credit system.

Reliable sources here said all French financial markets will be closed for the rest of the week.

In London, it was announced that the foreign exchange market would be closed to day and in Brussels, a national bank spokesman said the Belgium foreign exchange markets will officially close until further notice.

Markets also were closed in West Germany today because of a national holiday.

U.S. Dollar in Plunge

The U.S. dollar plunged through its official floor in relation to the Swiss franc at Zurich, the only major West European market open. The price for $1 at the close ranged between 4.2948 and 4.2953 Swiss francs, compared to 4.2995 francs at the close Tuesday. It was the fourth time since June that the dollar, the only major Western currency trade at Zurich during the day, had closed below the point for government intervention.

Speculators switched to bullion markets and boosted quotations for gold, though they found few

70 Miners Trapped; No Hope for Rescue

MANNINGTON, W.Va. (AP) — Explosions and flames ripped through a deep coal mine early today with "as many as 70 miners" trapped in the long shafts and 21 scrambling or pulled to safety.

Leslie Ryan, inspector at large for the West Virginia State mines department, said "there's not a chance in the world to get those men out."

The estimated 70 men still in the mine were believed to be pinned one to two miles deep in the smoke filled tunnels.

Rescue teams at one of the mine's entrances waited for gas tests to be made. Officials of the Mountaineer Company Mine said the methane factor rose to a dangerous 6 after the blast.

Sheriff Robert Tennant of Marion County said 21 men had escaped or had been pulled from the mine. But James McCartney of the Mountaineer Coal Co., said 70 men were missing.

The first blast, just before 6 a.m., blew machinery through one of the mine's portals, Tennant said, and closed it as an avenue of rescue. Teams gathered around the Farmington portal, one mile away, to concentrate rescue efforts.

McCartney said either gas or coal just set off the explosion and fire which still was sending towers of smoke from mine entrances early this afternoon.

All communication into the mine was lost, McCartney said.

Rescue teams, working in freezing temperatures and snow flurries, faced a dilemma. McCartney said air was being pumped into the shaft to keep the trapped men from suffocating but the air stream also fed the flames deep in the shafts.

"No one knows exactly where these men were at the time of the explosion," McCartney said. "There were six crews of six men each working in the general area of the explosion. The other men were on other assignments throughout the mine."

Rescuers found eight of the men in the Mohan air shaft and plucked them from the 600-foot level two-by-two, using a big scoop bucket on the end of a crane.

Tennant said the confusion about the number of missing men resulted from the destruction of the "lamp house" in the blasts. Miners check into work at the lamp house at the beginning of their shifts, but the explosion destroyed it and its records.

One of these reported safe was Matt Menas Jr., whose father was killed in the same mine in a blast that took 15 lives Nov. 13, 1954.

Quebec House Reform

QUEBEC (CP) — Premier Jean-Jacques Bertrand today introduced a government bill abolishing Quebec's legislative council — upper house — and creating a one-house "national assembly of the province of Quebec."

Viet Cong Steps Up Rocket, Mortar Attack

SAIGON (AP) — Viet Cong gunners stepped up their rocket and mortar attacks Tuesday night, giving Da Nang its heaviest bombardment in three months and hitting two American infantry units, five district towns and one provincial capital.

Casualties and damage generally were light. But one of the mortar attacks on a night bivouac of U.S. infantrymen 24 miles north of Saigon, was followed by a ground attack by 150 guerrillas. They retreated after three hours of fighting.

Sixty-five rockets and mortar rounds hit U.S. and South Vietnamese military installations in Da Nang, South Vietnam's second largest city and the biggest military establishment north of Saigon.

Several shells slammed into a U.S. Navy hospital area, but initial reports said they caused no damage or casualties.

A South Vietnamese spokesman said among the district towns shelled was Camlo, 10 miles below the demilitarized zone, which was hit by 45 mortar rounds. No new incidents were reported inside the demilitarized zone.

The South Vietnamese spokesman said there now have been 74 rocket and mortar attacks on population centres since President Johnson halted the bombing of North Vietnam Nov. 1. He said 33 civilians have been killed in the attacks.

South Vietnam repeated charges that the Viet Cong and North Vietnamese were violating an agreement to stop shelling provincial capitals and district towns in return for the bombing halt. Hanoi has denied making such an agreement, claiming the bombing halt was unconditional.

The U.S. command reported continuing ground activity south of Da Nang, where more than 600 Viet Cong and North Vietnamese have been reported killed in the last three days.

U.S. Turns Down Arms Talks Now

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — The United States Tuesday turned a cold shoulder on calls for immediate Moscow-Washington talks on limiting strategic missiles and a hot blast on the Soviet Union for the August invasion of Czechoslovakia.

It made it clear that the rejection was because of the invasion.

The Soviet Union and Czechoslovakia, in effect, told the U.S. to mind its own business.

Czechoslovakia came up in two speeches delivered by U.S. delegates to UN committees.

William C. Foster, U.S. disarmament negotiator, rejected the calls for negotiations on anti-ballistic missiles and intercontinental missiles in the political committee.

He said that the U.S. and the Soviets had agreed July 1 to talks limiting these weapons, then added "you are also aware that events intervened which forced a postponement of these talks."

A U.S. spokesman said later that the U.S. would like to hold such talks when the right time comes. But he left open when such a time would arrive.

Canada has been among several non-nuclear countries that have called for such negotiations.

Foster also praised the nuclear non-proliferation treaty that seeks to prevent the spread of nuclear weapons to countries that do not now possess them. Eighty countries have signed the treaty but only three have ratified it. Forty ratifications are necessary before it becomes effective.

The U.S. Senate has held up ratification because of the Czechoslovak crisis. Canada has urged more countries to sign.

Senator John Sherman Cooper of the U.S. said in another debate that the invasion of Czechoslovakia violated international law. He was speaking before the legal committee which is discussing the definition of aggression.

The consideration is at the instigation of the Soviet Union and Cooper said there is no visible evidence that the planners of the invasion of Czechoslovakia would follow any new definition of aggression.

Russia's Y. A. Ostrovsky accused the U.S. of attempting to "heat up the atmosphere" to impede the progress of the committee. He said that the U.S. had always objected to defining aggression and that the U.S. was guilty of aggression on several continents and of subversion against the Soviet Union and other Communist states.

Canadian Delegation Headed by Benson

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Edgar Benson flew to West Germany at short notice Tuesday night for an emergency meeting in Bonn connected with the European currency crisis.

The minister was accompanied by Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada, deputy governor William Lawson and Alan Hockin, assistant deputy finance minister.

A finance department spokesman said the Canadians had arrived at Bonn in time for the emergency meeting today of the so-called Group of Ten — the finance ministers of Canada, Belgium, Britain, France, West Germany, The Netherlands, Italy, Japan, Sweden and the United States.

McNAMARA LIFTED FROM MOB

CALCUTTA (Reuters) — World Bank President Robert S. McNamara was rescued by helicopter today after left-wing Indian students tried to break through police cordons to reach him.

About 1,000 Communist-led students tried to break through police lines at the airport when McNamara, former U.S. defence secretary, arrived here from New Delhi.

Two helicopters lifted McNamara and his party out of the airport as the students threw rocks and bricks at the police.

Victoria's sunny weather today comes from Hawaii.

At least from that direction, said weatherman Allan McQuarrie. And after a slightly damp interruption Thursday morning, there will likely be two more days of sunshine.

The cool wet weather the capital usually gets at this time of year comes from winds off the cold ocean to the northwest, he explained.

But a storm which has lingered off the coast for about a week has been pumping air in from the southwest.

The thermometer climbed to 52 in Victoria Tuesday, well short of the record high of 59 for that date seven years ago.

And while it was 54 by midmorning, the weatherman said winds would keep it short of the record high of 57 for this date established in 1943.

The record high temperature for November locally was 66, set on Nov. 2, 1949.

EMPHASIZING the need to maintain health by reducing the tar and nicotine lung intake, Federal Health Minister John Munro, who released a tobacco report today, has cut his smoking from three to one pack a day.

Cigarettes Rated for Tar, Nicotine

By STAN McDOWELL
Time Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — Health Minister John Munro, who has cut his own smoking down from three packs a day to one, today released a table showing tar and nicotine contents of Canadian and American brands of cigarettes.

"We know of no safe cigarette or safe way to smoke, and we strongly recommend that Canadians avoid cigarette smoking entirely," Mr. Munro said.

"Nevertheless, many people find it difficult to stop smoking and we feel it is important to help them to reduce the inhalation of cigarette smoke constituents into their lungs."

The table shows tar content varying from a high of 36 milligrams per cigarette, in an Export king size, plain tip, to a low of 8 milligrams in the Ransom king size with Strickman filter, and in the Viscount king size filter, or king size filter menthol.

Other cigarettes in the low-tar range, 8-12 milligrams per cigarette, Craven A regular filter (nine milligrams); Gitanes regular, filter (12 milligrams; Matinee regular filter (10 milligrams); and Richmond king size, Strickman filter (nine milligrams).

A large number of brands are clustered on the table at the level of 22 or 23 milligrams of tar per cigarette.

Nicotine content generally is in proportion to tar content.

"Tar and nicotine measurements on a particular cigarette may also vary from one test period to another," Mr. Munro said, "depending on such things as tobacco blend and filter material but such variations are not generally large."

Mr. Munro had additional advice for smokers.

Apart from stopping smoking if possible, and if that is not possible choosing a cigarette with low tar and nicotine content, he suggested lengthening the time between cigarettes and between puffs, not inhaling, removing the cigarette from the mouth between puffs and throwing away a long butt.

The table of tar and nicotine content was based on a study by Dr. W. F. Forbes, professor of chemistry and statistics, University of Waterloo.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, NOV. 20, 1968—PAGE 21

Arthur Mayse

Once I knew a fellow by the name of Geoffrey who used to boast about the little blackboard in his family kitchen.

"Best reminder system you can have," he assured me. "I picked ours up in a toy department, brought it home, and told my wife, 'Now, anytime some little thing needs fixing around the house, you just take the chalk and note it on this. I attend to it, and you cross it off'."

As one who rarely does today what can be put off till tomorrow, efficiency in others has always impressed me. Often, as when our sink clogged after a month or so of warning gurgles, I thought of that memory-jogging blackboard.

Once I even mentioned it to my dear one. But she only smiled and sliced another carrot with the knife I had promised the week before to sharpen.

Not long after, we went to a party at Geoff's house.

I found him fixing drinks in the kitchen. He turned a tap. The sink drain gave out a prolonged gurgle.

"Be a pal, will you?" he asked. "Slip out and get some tonic water. I meant to get a carton on the way home."

His little blackboard was secured to the inside of a cupboard door by two screws, hammered in lady-style.

At the top, in neat round script, was "Clean Paint Brushes." The notation hadn't been crossed out. There were several other reminders of little tasks that needed doing, and a final one in a weary scrawl "I give up!" That message had a line through it and a sputter at the end where the chalk had snapped.

★

The board, of course, was a mistake, and a wise wife would have realized the fact. All it did was serve to point up one of the average male's more amiable failings. His intentions are good when it comes to small, homely tasks, but he tends to falter in his execution.

He means to put a new washer in the hot-water tap, also to tidy up the garage and cart the clutter of old magazines from the basement. But there is this game he would kind of like to watch on TV.

Maybe he does lack a certain sterling quality of character, but this can also be a virtue. Geoff the putter-off was easy-natured as an old shoe.

So was a carpenter who once turned out such a set of bullnosed joints for us as I never hope to see again. His own house was close to falling apart, but I still remember him sitting with his arm around his wife in the shade of a willow tree. He, she, and their several kids were catching sunfish, and a happier family you never saw.

He had a gift for enjoyment, which is more than I can say for the "better now than later" type who once dropped in on us. A floorboard gave the merest squeak beneath his shoes, He stiffened like a bird-dog on point.

"Canary!" he announced. And nothing would do but that we traipse downstairs, where he showed me precisely where I should fit a brace between floor-joists.

★

The squeak took care of itself before I could get around to it, and for other fixit jobs that announce themselves, I follow a long-established policy.

This calls for a spell of waiting, in hopes that by some miracle the torn screen will mend itself, or the rake propped against the raspberry wires return to its rack.

But a time does come when even an artist in delay grows weary of putting off.

I came to one of those times this week, and am glad to report several minor repairs accomplished.

The man who grabs his tools and hastens into action the moment some home task presents itself is no doubt to be commended.

But the sense of conscious virtue runs much stronger when one has conquered the molehill he has allowed to grow to a mountain, and announces the fact in words like this:

"You know the doorknob that's been sticking for weeks? Well, I finally figured out that all it needed was a squirt of oil!"

Queen Makes 'Snap' Gift

Queen Elizabeth II is making a gift of 50 exclusive photographs to the city of Victoria next April.

The photographs, all of Queen Victoria, will form the nucleus of a special historic art exhibition to be held April 30 to May 25 to commemorate the 150th anniversary of the birth of Queen Victoria.

Professor F. W. Jackman, of the University of Victoria history department, is organizing the display.

★ ★ ★

The photographs promised by the Queen will be of engravings now held in the Royal Library at Windsor as part of the Queen Victoria collection.

After close to a month on display they will remain in Victoria as part of the city's archives.

In addition to the gift from the Queen the city has also been promised 11 original photographs of Queen Victoria and her family from the collection now held by Her Royal Highness Princess Alice, Countess of Athlone.

★ ★ ★

Other family portraits of Queen Victoria and family will be coming to Victoria from Dr. Roy Strong, director of the National Portrait Gallery, London, and from various other private collections.

In making the announcement of the Queen's gift Mayor Hugh Stephen said he expected the April-May display to be one of the most popular and historically important exhibits ever to be held in the city.

PHILIPPINE PHANCY DRESS was exhibited at St. Joseph's Hospital today at a women's auxiliary bazaar opened by Philippine Consulate General Felipe L. Lamdagan of Vancouver, centre. The nurses, some of them from Royal Jubilee and Veterans' Hospital, are also a practiced dancing troupe and gave several performances. About 40 nurses from the Philippines are now on St. Joseph's staff. Their message to their guest in their native language was "Mabuhay ang Victoria," in their adopted Spanish "Bienvienida en Victoria"—or simply "welcome to Victoria." Top row, left to right, are Marcelina, Bolanos, Mercedes Velasco, Susan Arroyo, Zeny Ragalado. Seated at front, from left, are Sheila Munieza, Eliza Castillo, the consulate general, Norma Caceres and Warlinda Filamor.

'Look to the Land' Curtis Tells Loffmark

Health Minister Ralph Loffmark was told today to take his eyes off the sea and look to the land for Greater Victoria's most serious pollution problem.

Mayor Hugh Curtis of Saanich, addressing the Victoria Real Estate Board at a luncheon meeting, said the minister apparently does not concern himself with "such minor matters as malfunctioning septic tanks."

"I suggest, as many of my colleagues (in municipal government) have suggested, that Mr. Loffmark is a classic example of a man who has turned his attention in the wrong direction," Mayor Curtis said.

"He is looking out to sea when his first duty, when his primary responsibility, is to turn around and look inland."

MORE SERIOUS THREAT

Mayor Curtis stepped up his critical attack on the health minister charging him with a stubborn refusal to accept the fact that land pollution posed a far more serious threat to health and development than the possibility of sea pollution.

"Having taken this position he cannot, or more importantly, will not alter it, with the result that more than one municipality in this province is experiencing a period of intense frustration in attempting to put sewer pipes in the ground," the mayor said.

Mayor Curtis repeated his oft made charge that the Pollution Control Board and the provincial health department are at loggerheads on ultimate methods of sewage disposal.

"(This) will be vigorously denied, I am certain," he said. "But there is a very major difference of opinion now in existence between the Pollution Control Board and the provincial department of health.

"The battle lines have been drawn at least since last summer and the struggle will become even more intense in the months immediately ahead."

As a result of the impasse created at the provincial level, Mayor Curtis said planning in many areas was proceeding "by percolation — costly in dollars and land use, and something we shall regret in this community for decades to come."

Mayor Curtis was referring to provincial legislation which permits the building of homes on land where the soil permits subsoil disposal by percolation but will not permit expansion of sewer lines to underdeveloped areas until treatment plants are built.

He stressed that to his knowledge no municipal governments were opposed to sewage treatment before disposal.

"We say this: The best available, expert opinions, with no political axes to grind, with no power struggle to wage within a provincial cabinet, assure the Greater Victoria region that treatment before disposal is not necessary.

"Our attitude is, very well, if treatment is not necessary then we should not proceed to spend in excess of $16 million to provide treatment plants at this time."

But the mayor added municipalities should be acquiring land for treatment plants for future use.

SURE SIGN CHRISTMAS DRAWING NEAR

Japanese mandarin oranges went on sale in Victoria today for the first time this season.

The 2,000 boxes appearing in downtown stores were part of a 150,000-box shipment delivered in Vancouver recently.

Another 580,000 boxes will arrive in Vancouver Friday and about 15,000 boxes will be trucked to Victoria.

During the next few weeks, eight more ships will arrive from Japan to unload a record 3,792,670 boxes.

MAN ROBBED, ASSAULTED; CHARGE PAIR

Two men appeared in central court today to face charges of robbery with violence in which an 87-year-old man was assaulted.

Roderick O'Toole, 34, and Glen Gordon Wright, 27, both of Victoria, were remanded to Nov. 27 without plea by Magistrate William Ostler. Neither were represented by counsel.

ENTERING ROOM

Police said Yong Chong, of Suite 7, 546½ Herald, was about to enter his room about midnight Tuesday when two men grabbed him. He was hit a number of times and suffered a slight wrist cut, they said.

One man then held him from behind while the other took $32 from him. Police said he came to the station following the robbery with a friend and reported the incident.

O'Toole and Wright were apprehended about 1 a.m. at a motel on the Gorge Road.

Magistrate Ostler set bail at $2,000.

Suites Damaged In Night Blaze

Fire swept through two suites of an unfinished $525,000 apartment building in the 1000 block Pendergast Tuesday night.

No one was injured in the blaze which broke out about 8 p.m. in the 57-suite four-storey apartment being constructed by Yakimovich and Sons Ltd. A damage estimate was not available at press time but officials said it might be heavy.

Firemen said the fire started in a rear suite on the third floor and spread to the one above. Cause of the blaze is still being investigated but arson is not suspected.

The floor, interior and exterior walls of the suites and part of the roof was heavily damaged. There was extensive smoke damage in the hallways.

A scaffold on the rear of the building was also burned. Most of the flames were contained inside the building but a large amount of smoke was visible from the outside during the fire.

Fire Chief Eric Simmons said some heavy beams were burned and might have to be cut back or replaced.

He said the drywall was on the building and workmen were to spray it today.

City School Planner Seeks Saanich Seat

The planner for the Greater Victoria school district announced today he will run for a seat on the Saanich Peninsula school board.

John E. Hubbard, 44, of 4992 Lochside, is the second candidate for the rural Saanich seat being vacated by board chairman Mrs. Nora Lindsay.

Civil engineer Stanley Oakes of 814 Royal Oak said Tuesday he will also contest the trustee's post.

It is the first attempt at public office for Mr. Hubbard. Mr. Oakes finished third out of five when he ran as trustee a year ago.

Militant Spirit Grips Servants; Mass Rally Set

By JOHN MIKA

Provincial civil servants plan to demonstrate their new militant spirit Friday in separate mass meetings here and in Vancouver to publicly protest arbitary discrimination by the provincial cabinet.

And there was talk that if the government continues to ignore their appeal for equal treatment, it will face an early and massive rebellion against the new Mediation Commission Act which threatens each civil servant with fines up to $1,000 for striking.

The Victoria meeting is expected to draw about 1,000 of the 2,500 civil servants in the downtown area.

It will be held between noon and 1 p.m. in the Crystal Garden.

Friday night the lower mainland branch of the B.C. Government Employees plans a mass meeting in the Pender Auditorium.

Norman Richards, BCGEA president, told The Times both meetings are intended to protest the fact that all municipal, federal and Crown corporation employees in British Columbia have the right to bargain collectively but the provincial cabinet continues to refuse this right to its civil servants.

He said it was discrimination, intensified by the fact that employees of provincial Crown corporations such as the B.C. Hydro and Pacific Great Eastern Railway have the right to bargain collectively.

"We are the only ones in the province who don't have bargaining rights and that's what we want to bring to the attention of the government again, and to the public on Friday," he said.

Meeting 'On Our Time'

Mr. Richards pointed out the mass meetings will be conducted "on our own time" during the lunch-hour here and after work in the lower mainland.

And he added that the meetings were not to be construed as parallels to the brief 1959 strike by the provincial civil servants over the same issue which was stopped within minutes by a government application for a court injunction.

Since then, the government amended legislation to outlaw strikes by its civil servants but there was a hint at the BCGEA convention this fall that it may find itself facing an illegal strike if it continues to refuse the right to bargain to its employees.

Alex Bray, president of the Victoria BCGEA branch, this morning fortified that hint as he began distribution of leaflets announcing the mass meeting call for the Crystal Gardens.

Mr. Bray said apprentice electricians outside of government service are now able to make higher wages than journeymen electricians in provincial employ and this situation is repeated in many other occupations.

He said the government has simply used its power to establish a law which would enable it to continue unjust treatment of its employees on a discriminatory basis.

"We will have speakers at this meeting Friday and there may be some demonstrations — if the people want it, we may take a walk from the gardens.

'Driving Us to Strike'

Mr. Bray said the protest meeting will exhaust the last legal avenue the civil servants have of seeking redress and if it also produces no results, it will be a case of "the government driving us to a strike.

"This (the meeting) is the last thing we've got. To go any further we will have to break the law."

The meeting leaflets invite all B.C. civil servants, whether BCGEA members or not, to show up for the protest against the government policy which "has fostered a continuing cheap-labor policy upon its employees."

The association, which won back dues checkoff which had been taken away from it by cabinet order after the 1959 strike, now has about 12,000 members out of the 23,000 government employees in the province. But between 4,000 and 5,000 civil servants are in the professions and not considered potential members.

Mr. Bray issued a press release recounting the recent history of a simmering wage dispute that began last December when Premier Bennett publicly backed up a government contention that B.C. civil servant pay should be "comparable" to that of civil servants in other provinces and not to the pay of British Columbians in similar vocations.

In February a mass meeting of 1,000 Victoria civil servants demanded a fact-finding committee and subsequently, at the BCGEA's request, a special cabinet committee of Works Minister Chant, Education Minister Brothers and Trade Minister Skilling heard the association's argument.

"This appeal was rejected outright and the honorable the prime minister stated to the news media that comparability was acceptable but should be based on comparability with other provinces," the Victoria branch press release said.

"Our position re this statement is simple — we live in B.C., work in B.C. and expect to receive wages comparable with other workers in B.C.

"If B.C. government employees had accepted this type of thinking we would have been faced with a lowering of salaries at a time when cost of living was skyrocketing."

Saanich Rejects Rezoning Bid

An application to rezone McRae Road property to permit construction of apartments was rejected by Saanich council Tuesday.

The advisory planning commission recommended rejection because building at 1510 and 1516 McRae would isolate two single-family dwellings at the corner of Wetherby Road.

Go Mod With Your Odd Job!

Can the Mod Squad do it?

Will they find enough jobs to put the United Appeal over the top?

They think so.

The 200 students from local high schools, University of Victoria, and the Institute of Adult Studies, who decided last weekend that the campaign will not fail say they are earning a dollar a minute for the Appeal. They hope it lasts.

Tuesday was their first day in business and they boosted the Appeal fund by $600. By noon today they had received an additional $180 worth of pledged work.

Other young people are also volunteering to do odd jobs for the Community Chest. Tuesday night 25 members of the Junior Achievement Program added their support and 160 students from St. Ann's Academy volunteered their services.

All they need now is more work.

Got an odd job?

Inquest Juror Fined $40

A juror who failed to appear at an inquest Monday night was fined $40 today by Coroner Edmond Jorre de St. Jorre.

Mr. St. Jorre said William Douglas Thompson, 1121 Catherine, paid the fine forthwith and was discharged from jury duty. He could have served five days in jail in lieu of paying the fine.

Mr. Thompson was foreman of a jury inquiring into the death Oct. 6 of Mrs. Dorothy Schofield, 404 Superior. The coroner issued a warrant for his arrest under the Coroner's Act after the man didn't show for the third and final session of the inquest.

The act allows him to impose a fine of $100 or 30 days in jail.

Mr. St. Jorre said the man was not arrested but was waiting at his office door when he arried early this morning.

He said he thought the inquest was Nov. 25 and that he had checked with another juryman to make sure, Mr. St. Jorre said.

He was fined $40 because jurors enter a bond for that amount when they are sworn to the jury, he said.

Mr. St. Jorre said it was only the second time in four years a juror hadn't appeared.

Ask The Times

Q. Could you explain the function of the Senate in Canada? —D.S.

A. The Senate acts as a sort of "second chamber" to the House of Commons. It examines legislation put forward by the House of Commons as well as occasionally initiating legislation of its own. In order to become law, a bill must receive the assent of both the Commons and the Senate as well as Royal Assent.

Giant Headache With All Tenant Aldermen?

By JIM HUME

Changes in the Municipal Act which give tenant electors the right to run for office this year could also be creating a giant headache.

Until this year only property owners could be elected to municipal councils. Amendments to the act during the last session of the legislature cleared the way for any resident, whether owner or renter, to run for office.

The only requirement the renter requires is that he has been on the voters' list for two consecutive years.

And this is where the trouble could start.

Two years from now all municipal councils in the Greater Victoria area could conceivably have full councils elected from the ranks of home-renters.

All would be able to vote with full freedom on council business—but none of them would be able to vote on any money bylaws brought before the people during their terms of office.

The amendments, while clearing the way for free elections for all residents, did not make it possible for anyone except a property owner to vote on money bylaws.

"It could create a really serious situation a couple of years from now if a full council, or even a majority of council, came from the ranks of tenant electors," one senior city hall official said Tuesday.

"You would have a council pushing for expenditures say for a big road building program, for new recreation facilities or even for a capital budget.

"Presumably they would try to persuade the people to go for their proposals, but they wouldn't in the final analysis, be able to support those policies themselves.

"In other words they would be advocating expenditures which only applied to property owners, not themselves."

To date in the city no tenant electors have come forward as possible candidates for city council, but there is still time before nomination deadline Monday.

With four seats vacant on Dec. 7 Victoria has only four candidates as yet seeking office. They are Harold Olafson, Ove Witt, Ald. Cecil Parrott and Ald. Percy Frampton.

A fifth candidate, Joseph Richards, is still hoping to file his papers before the deadline.

Stepped-Up Relief To Biafrans Urged

By CY FOX

LONDON (CP) — Two Canadian MPs, fresh from a trip that exposed them to bombing in Biafra, today urged stepped-up mercy efforts by Canada in view of what they called widespread malnutrition caused by the civil war in Nigeria.

One of the parliamentarians, Liberal Ralph Stewart, said Canada should not become involved in the conflict and it would be a good thing "if other countries followed suit" in this respect.

But he suggested that "at the invitation of both sides, Canada should act as a mediator to get a ceasefire and bring both parties to the conference table to work out a solution."

His companion on the sometimes-dangerous trip, NDP member Lorne Nystrom, said that in working for a ceasefire, Ottawa should bring pressure on the British government, work to have the Nigerian conflict included on the agenda of the Commonwealth prime ministers' conference in January and offer Canada as a mediator.

Canada also should work through the United Nations, said Nystrom, MP for Yorkton-Melville, Sask.

Stewart, whose riding is Cochrane, Ont., and who is a member of the Commons committee on external affairs, criticized as slanted to the federal side news broadcasts beamed by the BBC from Nigeria.

In an interview, he also quoted a French mercenary he met in Biafra as having reported seeing 26 British mercenaries fighting on the federal side.

Both MPs flew to Biafra Nov. 8 on a trip sponsored by B'nai B'rith, a Jewish organization helping Roman Catholic and Protestant relief efforts in the area. They also visited federal Nigeria, and wound up their visit to the region Tuesday.

RAN FOR COVER

En route to an airstrip for their Nov. 13 flight out of Biafra, they and legislators from Holland and Denmark were forced to leap for cover when a federal Nigerian jet swept over on a raid against the airport.

The Soviet-built MiG jet dropped a bomb which landed about 100 yards from the point where the Canadians had found cover.

"Ralph and I found a sort of natural hole in the bush," said Nystrom.

They huddled there until danger passed. No one in the group, which also included journalists, was hurt.

But they came within sound of front-line fire on a later visit to Onitsha, about 100 miles north of Port Harcourt.

Stewart said he saw no signs of genocide and added that the Biafrans spoke of buying arms —though not of receiving them as free supplies—from the French.

France has denied reports it is shipping arms to Biafra.

Arms are coming from Gabon and Portugal, he added, and use was being made of the "black market."

Canadian MPs Return From War Zone

Nystrom quoted Biafran leader Col. C. O. Ojukwu as telling the visiting parliamentarians: "We'll accept help from anywhere."

Stewart called Ojukwu "a very impressive fellow."

INSPECTED ARMS

The visitors saw captured and home-made weapons being used by Biafran trainees.

Nystrom said he asked Ojukwu whether Canadian diplomatic recognition of Biafra would help the region's cause.

"He said, 'Sure, it would help a lot,'" the Canadian MP reported.

Nystrom said the colonel would like to meet Prime Minister Trudeau or officials of the Canadian external affairs department.

After their Nov. 13 departure from Biafra, the MPs went first to the relief-base island of Fernando Poo, recently declared independent of Spanish control and now known as Esquatorial Guinea.

From there, they flew to Lagos where they saw Nigerian federal officials as well as Canadian representatives.

On Fernando Poo, they talked with officials concerned with a Canadian Hercules plane and reported that the aircraft has made 11 flights into Biafra with 20 tons of relief supplies each time.

Another Hercules, based at Lagos, had been unable to fly supplies to federal-controlled points as planned because available airports were not large enough.

Nystrom suggested that relief measures for Biafra now should allow for carbohydrates as well as protein deficiencies among victims of malnutrition.

Supplies of salt fish from Canada were beginning to reach the area.

STENCH OVERWHELMING

He spoke about the shock of being in the stench-ridden refugee camp.

"And the world stands idly by," he recalled thinking at the time.

The Canadians helped dole out soup in one feeding centre and described "a real stampede" when they offered the children candy.

The MPs were told by officials of a Biafran determination to fight to the death.

At one training camp for guerrillas, the visitors set off what seemed to be mock booby trap.

"I was almost at the front of the group," Stewart said. "Then, bang, something exploded and there was a yell to get down." Again no one was hurt.

The two are scheduled to return to Canada by plane Thursday.

Habits of Aged In Retirement Surprises Survey

By JIM HUME

Gardening is in, parties are out for the majority of Greater Victoria's elderly population.

A survey on retirement habits recently concluded by the Capital Region Planning Board on a Central Mortgage and Housing Corporation grant, states that gardening and other work around the house is responsible for 52 per cent of the activities of retired persons.

Parties and entertainment account for only seven per cent of activity—and even that isn't too enthusiastic.

Instead, the retired group prefers walking, hiking or fishing as an alternative to gardening (36 per cent of them) and hobbies, such as woodworking (29 per cent).

But even with gardening running high on the elderly interest chart it still isn't number one.

In that position, with a solid 56 per cent vote, is reading and writing with 80 per cent of the group indicating high interest.

Regional planner A. H. Roberts presented his preliminary report to the CRPB Tuesday afternoon.

BASE FOR NEEDS

While stressing that the preliminary report was just a mass of figures tabulated by computer, Mr. Roberts noted that the information compiled would form a strong base for further studies on retirement needs and habits in 1969.

Other information brought to light in phase one of the over-all study shows the majority of retired people favoring single family dwellings to high-rise apartments but that they wanted those houses in relatively sheltered and quiet areas of the city.

Some of the statistics pumped out by the computer surprised the survey team.

Two out of five of the retired people interviewed own their own cars and enjoy driving them; two thirds of them never visit a park, 15 per cent go to the park once or twice a year and 21 per cent are satisfied with one session.

Some 77 per cent never visit the library—which leaves unanswered the question of where the 56 who read a lot get their books—five per cent visited the library once in a while and 18 per cent were regular users.

By the same token 87 per cent never or rarely visited the Senior Citizens Activity Centre in Centennial Square but those who do give the senior citizens' headquarters a high rating for service and accommodation.

LITTLE CULTURE

And as for art and culture, well the elderly are just too busy in their gardens to bother with either.

The survey revealed that 92 per cent of the group surveyed never or rarely visited either the art gallery or the museum. Eight per cent made one trip to each and called it quits.

Low interest in libraries and other cultural activities explains the minimal approval the survey gives to proposals to expand library or art gallery facilities.

Only eight per cent of the elderly interviewed agreed with such moves while 23 per cent said extra money should go into hospital beds.

Mr. Roberts said when the survey, the first of its kind in Canada, is completed it will provide strong directions for municipal councils seeking to provide needed facilities for the elderly.

BOMBINGS CREATE GRAVE SITUATION

By DAVID QUINTNER

MONTREAL (CP) — Only "pure luck" prevented deaths or injuries in this city's "unprecedented" series of bombings in the last three months, the head of the police bomb squad says.

Sgt. Robert Cote warned in an interview Tuesday, however, that the explosive charges being used—generally dynamite attached to batteries and a clock —"are getting bigger all the time."

He said the 24 bombs planted since mid-August in the Montreal area indicate "a new generation of bombers may be at work."

"Those who set bombs before have passed on their knowledge."

Montreal experienced a six-week rash of bombings in 1963, centred principally in the predominately English-speaking suburb of Westmount. Six bombs exploded and three others were found before they detonated.

This year, however, the targets "on the surface, anyway," have had less obvious political connotations—ranging from strike-bound sites to an armory, clubhouses and individuals.

While police refuse to comment on whether there is a discernible pattern to the plantings, they admit to one thread linking most of the explosions—they usually occur on weekends.

No arrests have been made.

BLAST HEAVIEST YET

The most recent bombing, last Sunday, was "the most powerful explosion yet," Sgt. Cote said.

Eight sticks of dynamite were used, he believes, to crack the concrete foundations of a structural steel manufacturing plant, shatter windows in the neighborhood and wreck furniture in the building.

Union and management at the plant are affected by a jurisdictional dispute.

That blast was the fifth in a series of incidents in one week —three of the devices were found before they could explode. The first incident was the explosion in an underground passageway linking the CNR's downtown station with the $75,000,000 Place Bonaventure and Hotel Bonaventure.

Little damage was done and police say only one or two sticks of dynamite were used.

As in all 17 explosions this year in the city, no one was injured although three persons were in the 200-foot tunnel at the time.

Next day, a bomb wrapped in a newspaper was discovered in the street two blocks from the tunnel blast.

QLB STORES A TARGET

Four bombs have been planted outside strike-bound Quebec Liquor Board stores in the city; stores which have been shut since June 26 when 3,000 QLB workers struck for higher salaries.

A fifth bomb blew up a parked car in the town of Mount Royal outside the residence of a QLB official who was engaged in negotiations.

One bomb exploded on the property of an official of United Aircraft of Canada Ltd. early this month, and three others were found near the Town of Mount Royal homes of three other officials of the same company.

The next night a bus parked on the property of a company which has an airport limousine franchise was burned in the explosion of a bomb.

Other targets here have included the armory of the Black Watch Regiment, club rooms of Union Nationale and Liberal parties, and the home of the governor of Bordeaux Jail.

Bombs have also exploded at the United States embassy in Quebec City and in Rouyn and Grand'Mere, Que.

A total of 41 bomb-plantings and explosions have occurred in the province this year.

Since the separatist-induced violence of 1963, three persons have died as the result of bomb explosions. All were Montreal residents.

IT WASN'T 'WHO?' BUT 'WHERE?'

OTTAWA (CP) — Prime Minister Trudeau told the Commons Tuesday he knows the name of the Liberal MP for Burnaby-Seymour.

The British Columbia riding cropped up during the Commons question period Monday. News reporters then quoted Trudeau as asking: "Who the hell is the member for Burnaby-Seymour?"

The member is Ray Perrault, the former B.C. provincial Liberal leader, who defeated NDP Leader T. C. Douglas in the June 25 federal election.

Trudeau got the opportunity to clarify things Tuesday when George Hees (PC—Prince Edward Hastings) asked whether the prime minister had received a telegram from the riding's Liberal association protesting Trudeau's ignorance.

The prime minister replied that he did not receive such a telegram and, moreover, knows the name of the riding's member.

Trudeau indicated that his comment was wrongly reported. He had, in fact, asked "where the hell the minister was" who might reply to the question.

STILL UNANSWERED

The original question, put by Louis Comeau (PC—South Western Nova), is still unanswered.

He had asked whether there would be an investigation into how the report of a consultant to the Company of Young Canadians got into the hands of the MP for Burnaby-Seymour.

The precise wording of Trudeau's original stage-whisper "where-the-hell" comment is officially dead. It did not appear in Hansard, the official record of debate, although it was heard around the chamber.

His Tuesday "where-the-hell" comment will live on officially in Hansard since he was on his feet making a formal reply to Hees' question when he made it.

As for Perrault, he was not in the Commons Tuesday to hear Trudeau say that he is known to him. He wasn't there Monday either.

He is in New York with a Canadian parliamentary delegation at the United Nations.

Air Canada Supports Chamber Plea

An Air Canada bid for improved Patricia Bay airport facilities has added weight to 18-month-old pleas by Victoria Chamber of Commerce.

The jet era will catch up to the local airport in 1970 with use of such aircraft as the DC-9, replacing Viscount and Vanguard planes which now serve the capital.

District sales manager Stan Mooney said Air Canada had made recommendations to the transport department for longer runways and the addition of landing aids. He was reporting to the chamber's harbor and transportation group Tuesday.

Group chairman George Farmer said a copy of the Air Canada letter was being forwarded as part of its recurring request for better highway access to the airport, and clearer directions to motorists on how to find the airport, especially after dark.

Mercy Plane Flies Refugees

OTTAWA (CP) — The Canadian Hercules aircraft stalled on mercy flights to the breakaway Nigerian province of Biafra Tuesday carried a load of refugees to Dahomey, Prime Minister Trudeau said Tuesday.

The prime minister said also in reply to a question by Creditiste Leader Real Caouette that discussions are under way for the use of the plane to carry medical supplies from Geneva to Nigeria.

BRUNSWICK SNOW KING

Take a look at that massive tread . . . it spells bad news for snow, slush and mud this winter. The Brunswick Snow King . . . Claws . . . Chews . . . Bites . . . and digs it way through snow, slush and mud, doesn't quit when the going gets rough. Knife-edge massive cleats dig into snow and throws it aside . . . cleans itself for the next bite. Put a set of these tough tires on your car . . . then go home and wait for the snow.
